Germans' Fear Of War On Own Soil Persists After 24 Years Elapse

Interpretation By
Kirke L. Simpson
(Wide World War Analyst)

Twenty-four years ago next Wednesday hostilities in the lesser World War ended in an armistice born of German dread of war on German soil. The German fear of war in Germany still stands. And it is perhaps the greatest unknown quantity in the made-in-Berlin greater World War that has deluged the globe with death and destruction.

As another Armistice day approaches against the tragic background of a new and more terrible conflict, this much can be said. German nerves on the home front are under greater strain than they ever were in World War I. The new war that they fashioned and carried in ruthlessness to so many innocent nations and peoples has come home, by air at least, to roost on German doorsills. When it may come also by land and sea no German can know.

Yet all Germans must know that this Armistice day the war they have made for the world is rolling ominously close to the weakest link in the Axis chain. It is thundering westward on the south shore of the Mediterranean at a pace that threatens to wipe out the last vestige of Italy's boasted African empire in Libya, a short sea jump from Italy itself.

The events of this war have taught caution. Yet it cannot be challenged that the elements of the long sought second-front attack to divert Nazi pressure from valiant Russia are present in the British offensive in Egypt and in the Mediterranean and that elsewhere the ebb is setting in to halt the Axis victory tide. It has set in against Japan in the Pacific, against the Axis in the Atlantic where marauding U-boats have not closed the seas to Allied troop ships or supply craft. It has set in against Germany itself in the ever-expanding Anglo-American air attacks upon Hitlerdom and the western regions of the continent it holds in bondage; against northern Italy that the vast rampart of the Alps cannot protect.

Yet, most of all, the ebb flow has started in Africa. And by Axis testimony the Allied attack in Egypt is only one phase of an opening African offensive. Berlin reports a mighty Allied armada setting out from Gibraltar. If that is true, Africa and the seeing of the Mediterranean of its menace to Allied sea supply lanes must be its assigned objective although where or when the blow will fall can only be conjectured.

Italian morale, never high in the war and now strained by heavy new losses in Africa and unquenchable resistance to Italian forces of occupation in the Balkans, may be destined within weeks or months to fall under

BIG U. S. PLANES SMASH AT BREST

A. F. Bombers Out For New Attack On Northern Italy

LONDON, Nov. 7.—(AP)—United States heavy bombers smashed at the German submarine base at Brest in a daylight attack today and reports from France and Switzerland indicated the R. A. F. had its big bombers out tonight for a new attack on northern Italy.

The raid on Brest was made by flying Fortresses and Liberators (Consolidated B-24) accompanied by R. A. F. fighters. A communique said bombs were seen striking the target—the docks and submarine pens—but no details of the damage were given.

All the bombers returned safely, despite heavy anti-aircraft fire. One German fighter was shot down and one Allied fighter was reported missing.

The last raid on Brest was made by the R. A. F. last February 11, the night before the German warships Scharnhorst, Gneisenau and Prinz Eugen dashed through the channel.

The submarine pens, which were attacked, were built by the Germans to protect their U-boats at the base. They have heavy concrete roofs under which the submarines take cover.

Indications of the second successive night attack on northern Italy were

LYRON FALK NAMED DEFENSE ADVISER

Falk will work in the mobilization of citizens into an "arm-band army" of civilian defense work in the five states. He was on the staff of the state department of public welfare from 1938 until last year when he went to the state civilian defense office.

GENERAL MACARTHUR'S HEADQUARTERS, Australia, Sunday, Nov. 8.—(AP)—Announcing triumph in New Guinea, General MacArthur reported today that the Allies, whose ground forces have been pushing the Japs back across the Owen Stanley mountains, now control all of Papua except the Buna-Gona beach area on the north New Guinea coast.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 7.—(AP)—American soldiers and marines, and their supporting air and naval forces, have killed at least 5,188 Japanese in the Guadalcanal-Tulagi area of the Solomon islands since the invasion began there three months ago today.

Comparable American losses can be estimated at about one-fifth of the Japanese total, or 1,000 men, on the basis of a remark by Secretary Knox yesterday that enemy casualties were more than five times as great as ours.

The total of Japanese dead was announced by the navy in a communique which also reported that 369 enemy planes had been destroyed in the south Pacific during the single month of October. Including these, the total of Jap planes destroyed since the beginning of the Solomons campaign

WILL SPEED UP ARMY TRAINING

McNair Says Troops To Be Made Ready For Battle In 35 Weeks

THIRD ARMY MANEUVER HEADQUARTERS, Somewhere in Louisiana, Nov. 7.—(AP)—Lieutenant General Lesley J. McNair, commander of all army ground forces in continental United States, today announced a far-reaching intensification of combat training operations that will ready divisions for battle in 35 weeks, a sharp cut from present operations.

General McNair, here with many high staff officers for concluding phases of the Third Army's Louisiana maneuvers, said the stepped-up training program was made possible by the greatly increased flow of equipment, more and better officers, increased cadre personnel and greater experience in training.

McNair said the United States already has available sufficient troops for a second front, but that the big problem there was transporting them and necessary equipment overseas and maintaining the supply route. The crux of this vital problem being shortage of ships, a bottleneck he thought likely to continue for some time due to the vast shipping requirements of global warfare.

Under the war department's new intensified training program, field maneuvers may be resumed in this area next February instead of late summer as during the past three years. The maneuvers concluding today under direction of Lieutenant

BOUDREAUX PUT ON TAX APPEALS BOARD

BATON ROUGE, La., Nov. 7.—(AP)—A commission has been issued by the secretary of state to James I. Boudreaux as appointee of Governor Sam Jones to a new term as a member of the state board of tax appeals. His term had expired.

Other commissions have been issued as follows:

Walter Sibille as school board member for ward two, St. Landry parish, succeeding the late F. S. Barry.

S. B. Sims as councilman for the town of Tullos, La Salle parish, succeeding H. E. Mayes, resigned.

J. H. Husband as member of the board of aldermen for Harrisonburg, Catahoula parish, succeeding the late A. L. Gremillion. Hardy Laird as constable for ward eight, Caddo parish, succeeding J. P. Sanders, moved from the parish.

100,000 Of Rommel's Axis Army Captured Or Trapped As British Sweep Forward

Thousands Of Foot Soldiers Left In Backwash Of Battlefront

CAIRO, Egypt, Nov. 7.—(AP)—Approximately 100,000 men of Marshal Rommel's Axis army of 140,000 were reported captured or pinned down in pockets far behind the swiftly moving African front today as the British Eighth Army swept on toward the Libyan border after smashing the German armor in its second attempted stand.

Disregarding the thousands of foot soldiers left in the dusty back-wash of the battlefront, Lieutenant-General Bernard L. Montgomery's British and American tanks tore into the disorganized flanks of their main prize—the battered remnants of the German armored divisions—west of Matruh in an effort to eliminate them entirely. They already had caught up with this fleeing force once and sent it into headlong, harrassed retreat a second time.

Today's communique announced that the counted prisoners now totaled well over 20,000, and unoffical reports said six Italian divisions (an additional 80,000 men) were as good as under lock and key, for they had been abandoned without transport, food or water in the hasty Rommel flight at positions near the El Alamein line, 104 miles east of Matruh. The communique said these forces were being "mopped up." Among them were the Italian Bologna, Trieste, Trento, Brescia and Folgore divisions.

The communique, giving no new estimate of destroyed Axis tanks, said a total of 350 had been captured. This apparently left only a few score tanks at the disposal of Rommel, who previously was reported to have lost 339 machines, captured and destroyed.

Four hundred guns and "many thousands of vehicles" also were in the British booty, but correspondents at the front regarded even these figures as very conservative. They said 300 guns had been captured in the El Daba area alone.

The British were reported to have thrown ten divisions into the fiercely waged battle and among them were three tank divisions which now were wipping relentlessly at the battered

The United Gas Pipeline and Union Producing company contributed an even $500 Saturday for the Twin City Community chest and in addition, the employes of these companies added as their contributions $228.25 more money. Such contributions are needed to bring up the fund to the required $27,000 and those responsible for the chest and its operation are highly pleased at such gifts. But many smaller gifts are just as welcome when one is doing his best to aid a deserving cause. It is a matter of "one for all and all for one."

FEW OUTDOOR YULE LIGHTS REQUESTED

WASHINGTON, Nov. 7.—(AP)—The war production board today requested civic officials, businessmen, and the general public to dispense this year with outdoor Christmas lighting.

Officials said the request did not apply to indoor Christmas decorations, however.

WPB said 50,000,000 kilowatt hours of electricity—enough power to supply all the needs of a city of 50,000 population for a year—could be saved by cutting out the customary holiday decoration of streets, store fronts, and homes. Considerable critical material, especially wiring, also can be saved.

200,000 MARRIED MEN FACE CALL

Delay In 'Teen-Age Bill Will Send Many Husbands Into Conflict

WASHINGTON, Nov. 7.—(AP)—Congressional delay in enacting the 'teen-age draft bill will cause the induction of 200,000 married men into the armed forces in December who otherwise might not have been called until late next spring if at all, informed legislators said today.

This was an over-all figure for the country as a whole. The effect will vary with each locality, depending on the supply of unmarried men still available to each draft board.

Chairman Reynolds, Democrat, North Carolina, of the senate military committee said that even if the measure is finally passed next week and it is signed immediately by President Roosevelt, actual induction of 18 and 19-year-old men probably would not start until about January 1.

Confirming this estimate, Senator Gurney, Republican, South Dakota, attributed the result to delay caused by congressional controversy over a senate amendment requiring a year's military training after induction before 18 and 19-year-old selectees could be sent into combat abroad.

LOCAL BOARDS TO DECIDE ON TIRES

All Passenger Cars Will Be Eligible For Recaps Or Replacements

WASHINGTON, Nov. 7.—(AP)—Local rationing boards, under a quota system, will have the say as to who gets first call on replacement tires and recapping services under the nationwide gasoline rationing program which begins November 22.

Each board will be assigned a quota of certificates entitling motorists to buy tires or have their old ones recapped, the office of price administration announced today, and if there are more applicants than there are certificates, the board will use its discretion in allotting the certificates.

The ruling factor, in case there are not enough certificates to go around, will be the relative importance of the automobile's functions to the war program, public health and public safety.

OPA did not indicate the size of quotas to be assigned to various rationing boards, but made it clear that all passenger cars would be eligible for recaps or replacement tires within the limit of available supplies.

In order to provide as much mileage as possible with a minimum use of rubber from the country's stock pile, emphasis will be placed on recapping

Africa Made Second Front As U. S. Opens Offensive

By J. M. Roberts, Jr.
(Associated Press Foreign Editor)

Africa is the second front.

The United States army and navy, assisted by the British navy and air forces, are putting ashore on the Atlantic and Mediterranean coasts of the French colonies in Africa a great offensive striking force intended to drive the Axis completely off the great continent and turn in into a vast reservoir for the ultimate thrust at Hitler-ridden Europe.

President Roosevelt, announcing the American action at the White House in Washington, said it was taken to "forestall an invasion" of Africa by Germany and Italy.

Further, he said the French government and the French people have been informed of the purpose of the expedition and have been assured that the Allies seek no territory.

British troops will join the operation in the immediate future, Mr. Roosevelt added.

It may not be the second front for which politicians, Russia and the lay publics of the United Nations have been clamoring, but it is the 1942 second front for which Allied military leaders have planned through many weary months amid fulminations of the critics.

For two years the men and war supplies of Britain and the United States have been poured into the middle east when they represented practically everything which could be spared from the home fronts. As great disembarkation bases were developed, as great assembly plants and supply depots took form, the answer became obvious—that the Allies intended to strike back at Hitler not through the gun-studded bloody ground of France and Flanders, but rather at his weakest point, against his one army which could not operate from interior lines of communication.

That blow has been struck. The

GERMANS ASSERT ALLIED ARMADA PLANS INVASION

BELIEVE BRITISH WANT TO GET NORTH AFRICAN PORTS

Berlin Reports Without Confirmation From England Or U. S.

NEW YORK, Nov. 7.—(AP)—The Berlin radio network persistently broadcast assertions today that a great allied armada with "second front" intentions had set out ostentatiously from Gibraltar in plain sight of many observers across the bay in Spain and was now somewhere in the Mediterranean.

"There is no doubt in Berlin that the British aim is to capture North African ports in order to set up a second front from there," said one of these German broadcasts.

The Berlin reports were without confirmation from any American or British source, but independent dispatches from La Linea, Spain, said large battleship and merchant fleet units had sailed into the Mediterranean.

Axis reports of Allied fleet activity at Gibraltar have snow-balled until they have estimated the total strength in naval and other ships at 125 units.

The Berlin radio went further and suggested that another huge convoy battle had begun, but did not actually sponsor such a claim, which perhaps was wishful. It cited "foreign reports"—which apparently were not heard by anyone else—for the story that the convoy was under attack.

The story that the fleet was bound on a "second front" mission was broadcast from the Nazis' Hilversum radio in Holland.

This was a version differing from previous German broadcasts which had hinted that the convoy was only carrying reinforcements for Malta.

Obviously part of the purpose of the many broadcasts relating to the convoy was to elicit information. The Germans would like to know where it is going to strike.

For weeks the Germans have been

General George von Stumme (above), second in command to German Field Marshal Rommel, was killed in action in Egypt during the sweeping British offensive, says a communique from Cairo.

Russia Holds Ground Along Every Front

MOSCOW, Sunday, Nov. 8.—(AP)—The Red army held its ground on all fronts Saturday, the 25th anniversary of the Russian revolution, and killed more than 1,800 Germans in Stalingrad, the central Caucasus and the western front, the Soviet midnight communique indicated today.

The Germans continued to attack fiercely on the Nalchik plains at the foot of the 18,000-foot Caucasus mountains, where the Russians threw two armored trains into the battle yesterday, but failed to gain, the communique said.

In Stalingrad they also threw their tanks and infantry against a Russian stronghold in several attacks, but the Red army repulsed all the attacks and killed about 700 Germans. The Russians also were able to consolidate their positions in other parts of the city.

Four German blockhouses were destroyed in one factory area and another three were blown up northwest of Stalingrad.

The main battleground however, continued to be in the central Caucasus where the Germans were using large numbers of tanks and planes on the plateau southeast of Nalchik in an effort to push through to Ordzhonikidze, key to the Georgian military highway which leads over the lofty mountain range.

The communique said the Russians disabled 66 German tanks in that area alone during the day and captured two other tanks undamaged. Sixty trucks were destroyed and 400 enemy troops killed.

Activity appeared to be increasing on the western front, in the Moscow area, where the Germans have recently reported large Russian forces were being concentrated. The communique mentioned artillery and mortar duels in this sector and said Soviet snipers and scouts killed about 700 Germans Saturday.

The communique said that fighting in the Black sea area, northeast of

RADIO STATIONS TO REDUCE POWER

WASHINGTON, Nov. 7.—(AP)—The federal communications commission, acting to conserve broadcast equipment, ordered radio broadcast stations today to reduce their power by one decibel, an amount so small it said radio listeners wouldn't know the difference.

At the same time, the commission revised its rules to permit radio stations to operate as little as one-third of their authorized broadcast time. Recently the required operating time had been cut to two-thirds of the authorized amount.

The effect of this will be to permit stations to conserve equipment and meet manpower shortages by reducing their hours of broadcast if they desire, but it does not require them to change from their present operating program.

White House Says Action Taken To Forestall Nazi Invasion

By Richard McMurray
(Associated Press War Editor)

The United States and Britain today (Sunday) opened the long awaited second front by large scale landing operations in French African colonies both in the Mediterranean and on the Atlantic coast.

At the same time President Roosevelt broadcast a message to the French people, calling upon them to aid in the campaign which was described as a move to "forestall an invasion" by Germany and Italy.

The landing took place in the early morning hours of Sunday (African time) and was carried out both at points in the Mediterranean and on the Atlantic coast.

It came as the British army was pursuing and hacking to pieces Marshal Erwin Rommel's Africa corps in the Egyptian desert and no doubt was timed to coincide with the Egyptian debacle.

Rommel now has Allied forces both to the front and

GREAT ARMADA IS USED IN LANDING

Fleet Possibly Greatest Assembled In Europe Since War Began

LONDON, Sunday, Nov. 8.—(AP)—Possibly the greatest invasion armada assembled in Europe since the start of the war undertook the invasion of French North Africa today in the first large scale action in the European theater in which the United States has participated.

A force of 24 warships, transports and freighters, followed by the great battleship Rodney and a heavy air escort were reported by the German news agency DNB to have left Gibraltar Thursday night.

A possibility that as many as four aircraft carriers accompanied the attack fleet was seen in axis reports. German broadcasts said the Furious, the Argus and another unidentified "flattop" had been observed in the harbor at Gibraltar and a later Vichy report said four carriers were seen there.

In addition to the vessels which set out eastward into the Mediterranean, DNB said, at least 100 other ships waited at Gibraltar.

Among the 125 originally there, the German reports said, were six cruisers, one auxiliary cruiser, 26 to 28 destroyers, four submarines and one

CHRISTY IS GIVEN DEATH SENTENCE

MIAMI, Fla., Nov. 7.—(AP)—Vincent J. Christy today was sentenced to die in Florida's electric chair for the murder of Irving Leopold, 37, delicatessen operator, last July 17.

He was not brought to trial on companion charges of killing Mrs. Leopold, her six-year-old son and a passing motorist, 19-year-old Ralph J. Morin, Jr.

Christy heard Circuit Judge Paul D. Barns pronounce the death sentence with no evidence of emotion, and in a clear voice said: "Thank you, judge."

PEANUT MAN AIDS IN BOND SALES

Steve Vasilakos Is Out To 'Make Monkey Of Mussolini'

WASHINGTON, Nov. 7.—(AP)—Spurred on by patriotism, pulchritude and free peanuts, Steve Vasilakos' was bond sales campaign is operating on a nation-wide mail-order scale today.

It's costing Steve plenty, but he's out to "make a monkey out of Mussolini," and he explains that improving on nature makes that a tough task.

Steve is a peanut peddler. He's howked his hot roasted goobers just outside the White House gates for some 33 years now.

Last October 28 was the anniversary of Italy's attack on his native Greece. Steve solemnized it by starting to sell war bonds on the side with peanuts as a premium—one bond, one sack free.

Crowds gathered. So did secret service men who get curious about crowds near the White House. They saw it was Steve, shook hands and departed.

Patriotism and peanuts already were doing a heavy bond business when the American Hellenic Educational Progressive association got interested. They provided Steve with a secretary (enter the pulchritude), Miss Helen Cheakalos, and her typewriter.

Pretty as a $25 bond for $18.75, Helen didn't hurt business. The combination clicked and word got around.

Now, President George C. Vournas of Ahepa reported today, war bond orders from all over the country are arriving—addressed to Steve at the White House. The occupant, an obliging neighbor nameed Roosevelt who's been there quite a spell himself, forwards them across the street to Steve's stand.

Helen mails out the bonds and the peanuts. But Steve pays for peanuts, bags, labels and postage, Vournas said, despite all offers to reimburse him.

He figures it's small peanuts, compared to what Musso will pay.

Doesn't Believe Germany Is In Danger Of Cracking

Publisher Returned From Europe Thinks War Will Not End Soon

(EDITOR'S NOTE: William R. Mathews is editor and publisher of the Arizona Daily Star, Tucson. In the last World war he was a marine officer, was awarded the croix de guerre with palm. Long a student of world affairs, his news reporting has taken him to Europe three times, to the Orient once. He has just completed an extensive tour of the British Isles and in the following article expresses his views and conclusions.)

By William R. Mathews
(For The Associated Press)

TUCSON, Ariz., Nov. 7.—One of the most shocking and astounding reactions I have noted since my return from the British isles is the naive hope and confidence that I find in all walks of life.

Repeatedly, I am asked by many highly intelligent people to confirm a popular belief that Germany is about ready to crack and give up, that Hitler is in a tight fix with his power and influence waning, that rebellion in the occupied countries will upset the German war machine, that heavy bombing will win the war because the Germans cannot endure it, and that the war will soon be over.

I wish I could confirm such hopes and beliefs, but after what I have seen I cannot. I can understand how they arise, when I read in my own paper recently about a Belgian refugee arriving in London saying that Germany cannot go through another winter. What this refugee said is reported accurately, but whether the beliefs he expressed are true is open to question.

This same kind of wishful thinking exists in England. At the Blackpool labor conference early in September one Laborite assured the conference "the war will be over in another year," while Mr. Anthony Eden's paper, the Yorkshire Post, September 22, quotes Mr. J. J. Craik Henderson, Conservative, of Northeast Leeds, as saying in a public address, "the war can be won by bombing alone."

I do not believe Germany is in danger of cracking.

Hitler is in no tighter fix than the United Nations, and unless we show much more speed and determination he will have us in a really tight fix.

Rebellion in the occupied countries cannot be successful until there is a successful invasion of the continent.

Heavy bombing can only harass; it cannot, by itself, win the war.

Germany will not crack until her armies have been defeated on the battle fields of Europe. The war will not be over soon.

Germany is in no danger of cracking because of firm leadership at the top. Russia has done the miraculous, because of the man at the top. Stalin's will has kept Russia together when by all the rules of logistics she should be conquered. He is a man of ruthless and inflexible will, with a political organization as well as an army to impose his will. He exterminates all defeatism and opposition.

The same is more or less true of Germany. Hitler is a man who has shown that he has an inflexible, ruthless will and he has no more regard for human life than Stalin. As long as Hitler is ruthless enough to exterminate opposition which must always have leaders; as long as his armies remain unbeaten; as long as he does not give up; as long as he imposes his will through the very effective organization he has built—Germany will not crack.

The United Nations have barely halted Hitler's long record of successful offensives. Despite the heroic stand of the Russians in such adverse circumstances, the Germans have been successful enough in their Russian campaign to capitalize a definite pride in what they have achieved there. When that is combined with their record of successes elsewhere, it is rather far-fetched to assume that the German people are discouraged to the point that they will rise in revolt or refuse to fight.

Germany has the morale as well as resources to continue her resistance indefinitely.

While the casualties in Russia have been heavy, they have not been critical. An army that has been through battle and lost half of its effectiveness is worth as much as an army twice the size that has not been through battle. Hence German casualties, even though they amount to as much as 1,000,000 dead which is doubtful, will not materially reduce Germany's ability to fight on.

Our own B. E. W. (board of economic warfare) will verify that Germany still has sufficient economic resources to hold out indefinitely.

Why cannot we bomb Germany into submission, I am asked. How can Germany stand up against thousand bomber raids night after night for a whole year? If we destroy Germany's factories and transportation systems how can her armies be able to resist? Why cannot we win this war within a year by this plan?

In the first place, weather conditions lay a heavy hand of handicap on such raids, making it impossible to send over a thousand planes on a schedule anywhere near a nightly schedule. Dreams of great raids every night, methodically devastating German city after city, have no foundation in fact.

The limitation of the weather has a more restrictive effect on American daylight bombing than it does on British night bombing. American daylight precision bombing by our fortresses and liberators is done at 23,000 to 25,000 feet. Thus our bombardiers must have a relatively clear sky. When they have it they can hit accurately a target as small as a locomotive turntable.

British night bombing can be made much more frequently, because it does area bombing as distinguished from our precision bombing. As long as the British have a thousand foot ceiling they can go and come.

When we note that during the past year of air raids, Germany undertook an offensive in Russia and has captured much territory and a good part of the Russian oil supply, that her submarine campaign stretches from the Arctic to the Antarctic and that the British were not able to make a successful attack at Dieppe, and have in more than a year made only two publicized land attacks against the continent, just how has bombing done anything really decisive?

The spirit of human beings can upset the most carefully prepared estimates of endurance. The people of Britain proved that. While only a few of the German raids over England approached the violence of the raids that Britain is now delivering at night into Germany, what the British have done in resisting and recuperating gives some idea of what Germany can do.

Those optimistic persons who say that Germany "cannot take it" are ignorant of German history. To prevent disillusionment it is merely a matter of self-interest to credit the Germans with both courage and ingenuity.

Not only does the weather impose intervals between raids that give a chance for recuperation, but the vast number of targets, particularly on the German occupied continent, impose intervals for recuperation. Keil, Hamburg, Luebeck, Rostock and Onesbruck, to mention a few, have been given terrible and rather continuous punishment, yet the Germans have not abandoned those cities. Although they have suffered what one would think completely destructive raids they would not be raided again unless their war production was still substantial.

If the R. A. F. could each night concentrate on one city after another, by the end of the year only a small fraction of German production would be affected, while within a few days or weeks those cities first hit would be producing again. That is what the Germans found out in the case of Britain.

Dispersion of industry likewise helps defeat bombing. For instance, assuming they could blast England's main Spitfire factory, which is a bold assumption, Spitfire production would be interrupted only a few days at the most. The main Spitfire factory is only an assembly plant. The parts for Spitfires come from thousands of small factories scattered all over Britain.

It does not do much good to bomb airports. Planes are dispersed so widely that a direct hit causes little damage.

Bombing of transportation lines can only harass and temporarily interrupt service.

The limits of shipping tonnage are another factor, I believe, that will restrict the use of air power for bombing as well as other missions.

Bombers, for instance, can fly the oceans. But most of the materials and services they need for their military mission, including some fighter planes, require shipping tonnage.

Our Flying Fortresses carry their crews across the ocean, but each plane requires a crew of forty men on the field from which it operates, and most of these men have to be transported over the ocean. The food, the ammunition, the medical supplies, the machine shops, clothing and many other supplies must likewise be transported. Airports must be built and housing provided.

Enough shipping could be provided for all this, but enough shipping cannot be provided to sustain such an effort and maintain the other services needed to follow up the bombings.

Victory requires a balance of all forces skillfully coordinated to reach the maximum force. There has to be a sufficiency of artillery, infantry and tanks and other arms to make bombing effective.

If we can conceive of parachute troops being used by the scores of thousands, of planes carrying light tanks and artillery landing behind the enemy's line and flanking him from that unprotected flank, then we are using air power in a truly decisive manner.

The Germans have, for instance, fortified the western coast of Europe. It is another Maginot Line that must be taken by a flank attack. A direct assault on this line is scarcely capable of success unless it is made as a part of an air attack from above and behind.

Let bombings of 11 kinds, area bombing, precision bombing and dive bombing, soften the enemy's defenses. That is all it can do. But let that operation be combined with a frontal assault and an assault from the rear by parachute troops that will disorganize the enemy's lines of communication. Then air power would be used to take command of actual land.

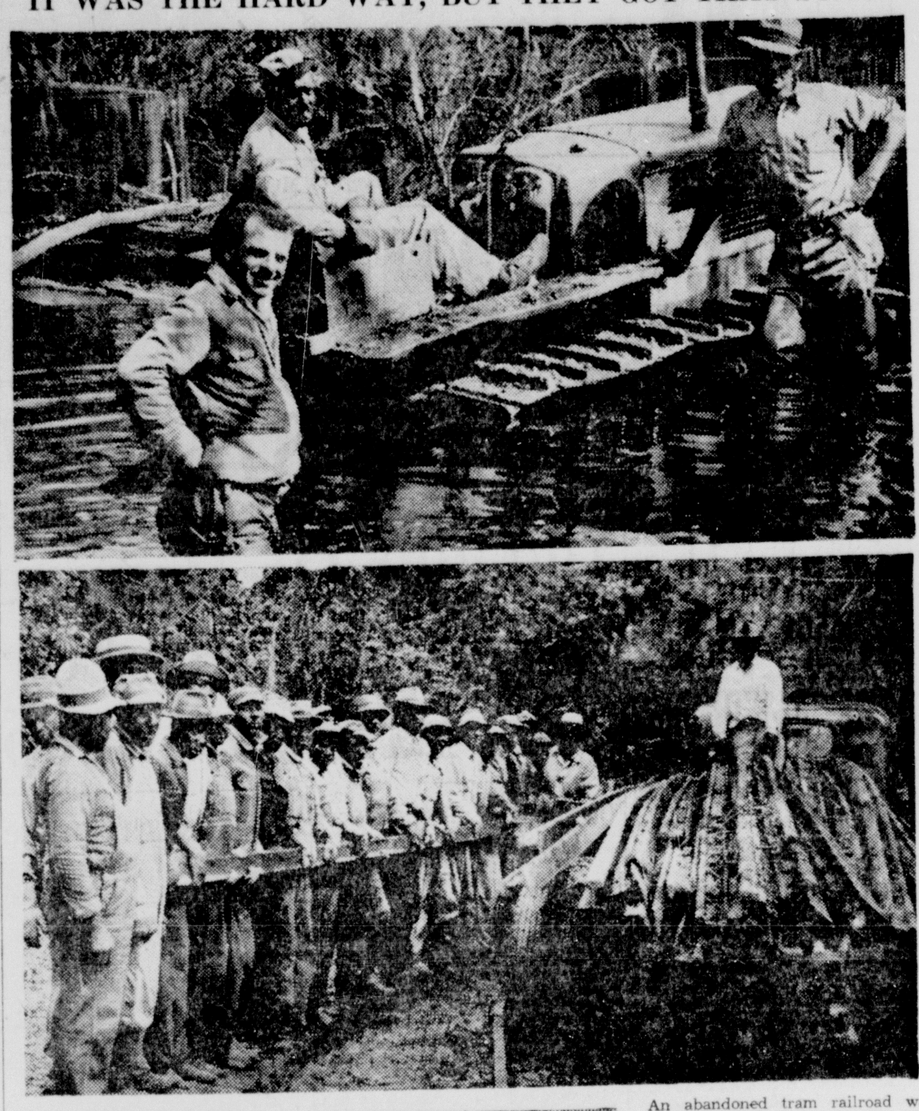

To say that one particular weapon can win the war is nonsense and deceptive. Air power must be coordinated with other arms to be victorious.

The final struggle, the decisive struggle that will determine victory will take place on land, and at the point of victory will stand infantrymen, holding their rifles with bayonets, with supporting tanks and artillery nearby and vitally necessary planes roaring confidently overhead.

IT WAS THE HARD WAY, BUT THEY GOT THAT SCRAP

An abandoned tram railroad was owned by the Cochrane and Franklin Lumber company of Holly Ridge. It was located in a big swamp in Richland parish. Came the newspaper-school scrap drive, and it was suggested that lots of bullets or guns or maybe a tank could be made from the scrap contained in the old rails. George B. Franklin, president of the company, thought so too, so he sent a crew of men into the swamp and removed the rails, giving them to the Rayville High school's scrap pile. Here are three photographs showing the operation. Top, the supervisors of the job with the tractor which pulled up the rails which were under water. Second, the pile of rails being loaded on a truck, and below, a tractor pulling the rails through the woods to be loaded.

Application Forms For Gas Ration Books Here

Instructions Given For Registering For 'A' Books This Week

Application forms which motorists will use November 12-13 in applying for the basic gasoline ration "A" and "D" books have arrived in Ouachita parish and are now being made available to passenger car and motorcycle owners through gasoline filling stations, garages, and tire dealers. Gas and tire retailers may obtain supplies of the forms from the local war price and rationing board office.

The local rationing board office is advised by State Director U. S. Goodman to call attention to the fact that the registration dates in Louisiana have been definitely set for November 12 and 13.

Mr. Goodman also advises passenger car owners, including business firms, which have not turned in excess tires through Railway Express agency, that they should do so immediately. The government tire-purchase program does not affect trucks, or tire dealers, but all passenger car owners must sell to the government through Railway Express agency every extra tire in their possession above five per car.

At the same time, the Office of Defense Transportation advises owners of trucks and other commercial vehicles that they must obtain an ODT certificate of war necessity before gasoline rationing coupon books will be issued for such vehicles. This certificate is not required for passenger cars or motorcycles.

Merchants, farmers and others who own trucks, buses, taxicabs, ambulances, etc., should contact their nearest ODT office immediately if they have not received application forms for the certificate of war necessity. The three ODT motor transport division offices in Louisiana, and their managers are: Shreveport district, John F. Dawson, 622 Ardis building; Baton Rouge district, Fleet C. Hathorn, 410 Triad building; and New Orleans district, W. R. Adkins, 1122 Canal building.

The local war price and rationing board is cautioning local motorists against storing gasoline in their homes in advance of rationing, which goes into effect November 22 following the issuance of coupon books. The state OPA office and the state fire marshal's office have warned that storing of gasoline on private property may void insurance contracts. Moreover, the state OPA office points out that stored gasoline cannot be transferred into automobile fuel tanks after the rationing program becomes effective.

Every owner of a passenger automobile should obtain his "A" application form from a local filling station or the ration board office.

The basic ration for passenger cars is an "A" book, entitling the automobile to 2,880 miles of driving per year. Motorcycles get a "D" book.

OPA officials advised passenger car owners to do the following:

1—Beginning Wednesday (or whenever gasoline retailers have forms for distribution), obtain an application form (R-534) for "A" or "D" gas ration book, with tire inspection record attached.

2—Fill out application and tire inspection record, including serial number of the five passenger tires motorist is allowed to keep after selling all excess tires to the government. If applicant has more than five passenger tires gas rations will be denied.

3—On November 12 and 13 applicant appears at school buildings and any other designated registration centers and presents his application to a registrar who determines that it is properly executed. Complete lists of registration places will be announced before November 12.

4—Applicant must present state motor vehicle license registration certificate or a duplicate or by affidavit.

5—A registered owner of a passenger automobile or motorcycle may secure "A" and "D" books by a duly authorized representative in the following manner:. By giving a representative a written authorization for the registrar to deliver the "A" or "D" books to party authorized. The representative should also have with him the application (R-534) signed by the owner, and the vehicle registration license receipt.

6—He receives the basic "A" book for passenger car or "D" book for motorcycle, and tire inspection record which is detached from the application and returned to applicant. The applicant holds tire inspection record for time being.

7—Should applicant believe he is entitled to more than the basic "A" book, he may ask for and receive an application for supplemental gas rations.

8—Applicant should not execute the supplemental application on the spot. The filled out supplemental application should be mailed or delivered to the local war price and rationing board office.

Owners and operators of commercial vehicles may secure their application forms from the local war price and rationing board.

It is pointed out that applicants for "T" gas ration books, which is the type used for commercial vehicles, must present to the local board his ODT certificate for war necessity.

ARRESTED AFTER AUTO IN MISHAP

Woodroy Lowery of Bernice was being held in the city jail here last night on charges of operating an automobile while drunk, hit-and-run driving and causing personal injury as the result of an accident near the intersection of Apple and South Second streets yesterday afternoon when an automobile he was driving was said to have hit Miss Iris Thomas, 404 Apple street.

Lowery failed to stop after the accident, it was said, and continued toward town. Desk Sergeant H. T. Ward received a call on the case at 4:51 p. m. at police headquarters and redioed an alarm to police cars. A few minutes later Sergeant H. L. Tolbert and Officer G. W. Horton arrested Lowery on North Sixth street as he was approaching Louisville avenue.

Miss Thomas, who was walking across the street at the time of the accident, according to police, was not believed seriously hurt. She was treated for bruises and abrasions at a local doctor's office and was at her home last night.

C. I. O. TO OPEN MEETING MONDAY

Convention To Be Held First Time With Influence Of Lewis

BOSTON, Nov. 7.—(AP)—The Congress of Industrial Organizations, claiming a membership of about 5,000,000 in its 42 affiliated unions, will open its annual convention on Monday with the influence of its founder, John L. Lewis, totally absent for the first time.

Most of the leaders were already on hand today for pre-convention executive board and committee meetings and there were no advance indications that any serious internal warfare was brewing. About 500 delegates will attend.

The C. I. O. is expected to declare formally its wish for reunion with the American Federation of Labor, but the darts shot by Lewis in recent months are certain to be returned in kind. Lewis' united mine workers has ordered severance of every shred of relationship between that union and the C. I. O., even to the extent of making an individual's membership in both incompatible. He claims the C. I. O. owes his union $1,665,000.

Lewis organized the Committee for Industrial Organization in 1935. His first aide was Philip Murray, who organized the steel workers and is now their president as well as Lewis' successor as president of the C. I. O. The organization was placed on a constitutional basis in 1938 and this will be its fifth convention as the congress of industrial organizations.

Lewis did not personally attend the C. I. O. convention last year. He was busying himself in Washington with the "captive" mine dispute, but his brother, A. D. Lewis, and daughter Kathryn, were there to guard the already waning Lewis influence. C. I. O. leaders said they knew of no one attending this year's meeting who would speak for the miners of their chief. Lewis and Murray became estranged last January. Later, Lewis removed his one-time friend as vice-president of the united mine workers and soon is expected to take from him the membership he has held all his adult life.

The C. I. O. executive board accepted the Lewis challenge this week by officially recognizing the united gas, coke and chemical workers, which a former Lewis lieutenant, Martin Wagner, organized last June as a rival of the united mine workers' district 50. Wagner is planning an organizing drive which will be concentrated principally in New Jersey, West Virginia, and the Chicago and Niagara Falls areas.

WAVE OF SYMPATHY STRIKES IS ENDED

DETROIT, Nov. 7.—(AP)—The war labor board arranged a truce today in a jurisdictional dispute between the Mechanics Educational Society of America and the rival United Automobile Workers (CIO) and the society ordered an immediate end to a wave of sympathy strikes that closed 15 war-vital tool and die plants overnight.

Matthew Smith, president of the new confederated Unions of America and head of the MESA, which is the group's largest affiliate, said 9,2 striking members of the society have been instructed to return to their jobs with their regular shifts, or as soon thereafter as employers can arrange to resume production. He said it would be Monday before some plants ordinarily idle on Sunday, would reopen.

Louis M. Gill, regional director of the war labor board, said the MESA had agreed to resume full production without further interruption pending an early hearing of the entire dispute, and to withdraw the threat of sympathy strikes in Cleveland and Toledo, O.

Gill called upon members of the MESA and the UAW alike to cooperate in avoiding violence, intimidation "or any other action which would tend to interfere with production."

GOVERNOR'S RACE ALREADY BUDDING

Prospective Candidates Start Year Ahead To Wooing Votes

BATON ROUGE, La., Nov. 7.—(AP)—Right now nobody has a great deal of concern over state politics with war tidings occupying attention but political leaders quietly are busy building bridges for the next gubernatorial campaign.

By this time next year the race to select the man to be inaugurated as Louisiana's next governor in 1944 will be in full swing.

A year seems a long time to the average citizen but it's no time at all to politicians trying to figure out in advance how the voters can be expected to react in the next gubernatorial primaries. They already are hard at work on vote-getting schemes.

Names of a dozen hopefuls for support from major political groups have been suggested from time to time but the only candidate with his hat already in the ring in former Governor James A. Noe, one-time ally of Governor Sam Jones. Noe declared he would be a candidate in 1944 in testimony before a legislative committee this summer.

Others are at work behind scenes seeking commitments for support from political leaders and trying to feel out their chances before making any formal announcements. Several politically-prominent men have indicated privately their announcements would be made early in 1943.

Meanwhile, Governor Jones has been holding intermittent sessions with various police juries over the state and with high state officials. While these meetings have the direct object of conferring on local problems, to see to what extent they can be solved by the state administration, they do furnish the additional opportunity of making political friends.

Only a few days before leaving on his present trip to New York and Washington, Governor Jones attended a ward meeting of politicians in New Orleans and the gathering broke up friendly enough with a boat trip on the Mississippi river. It would seem by this as well as other indications that the administration is hopeful of picking up strength in the city.

Now that the congressional elections are over, nothing appears on the horizon requiring political punching in advance of the gubernatorial campaign next fall and this leaves the field open for a great deal of ballot-wooing before them.

Potential candidates are preening their feathers for the test, though they and their cohorts have an ever-watchful eye on the international scene for developments which may have a mighty effect in 1944.

WARRING WORLD LECTURE TOPIC

Mrs. Wells Will Tell Of Global Conditions Back In 1939

World War No. 2 broke all too soon to please Mrs. Carveth Wells who was on a globe circling tour when it occurred. That was back in the spring of 1939, and she was but half way through her trip when the first gun boomed.

But she did get far enough to see how millions of people—the other half of the world—live. She visited Egypt, India, China, Japan and other points of the far east in her quest for knowledge of world affairs.

All these she will describe when she appears in Monroe Tuesday at 8:15 p. m. on the Monroe Town Hall program. It will be a bit novel for Town Hall here to listen to a woman lecturer but Mrs. Wells is said to be far more interesting than most men and together with her intimate knowledge of the subject in hand, she adds the charm of a rare and beautiful feminine personality that captivates her audience from the moment she makes her appearance on the platform.

Her talk here will be on the theme: "Around the World in War Time."

FRANKLIN DID A GRAND JOB DURING SCRAP DRIVE

Here's a part of the several million pounds of scrap collected in Franklin parish during the newspaper-school scrap drive. The top and middle photographs show two of the many scrap piles located throughout the parish, while below are two gondola cars filled with scrap, ready to be hauled to the steel mills where the scrap will eventually be made into guns and bullets and battleships for our armed forces.

FARM BLOC WILL MAKE NEW FIGHT

Will Seek To Force Administration To Lift Price Ceilings

WASHINGTON, Nov. 7.—(AP)—The prospect of legislation to force the administration to lift agricultural price ceilings was raised today by militant farm state senators.

As a first step they predicted quick senate approval of an investigation into the administration of farm price provisions of the new price control law as an aftermath of Democratic reverses in Tuesday's elections.

Senators Aiken, Republican, Vermont, and Gillette, Democrat, Iowa, said the agriculture committee would seek abandonment of a policy under which benefit payments received by farmers are included in computing parity prices on which to base ceilings on eggs, chickens, butter, flour and other commodities.

The effect of this policy, plus the use of subsidies to hold down the price of wheat and flour, they contended, had been to keep the income of the farmer below parity.

(Parity is a price calculated to give the farmer an income providing a purchasing power equal to that of a past favorable period, usually 1909-14.)

"The administration's attitude towards the farmer was largely responsible for the election defeats it suffered," Aiken told reporters. "The election demonstrated also that the people in the cities had no complaint against the farmer's getting a profit for his products."

Gillette agreed that there was "quite a feeling" against the office of price administration in farm sections and added that "undoubtedly this was a very definite factor" in the election.

He doubted, however, that Democratic setbacks in themselves would bring about a change of a policy which the agriculture committee contends is based on a "false interpretation" of the price control law inserted in the Congressional Record by Senator Brown, Democrat, Michigan, who was defeated for reelection.

Aiken said he understood that Brown would correct the record to show that this interpretation, approving the inclusion of benefit payments in computing parity, was not part of the general debate on the price control law but an interpretation filed after the vote had been taken.

Gillette said he was hopeful that when the administration was made "fully cognizant" of the intention of congress that the farmer should receive full parity, it would "administer the law in the spirit in which it was intended."

"If not, we will ask congress to rewrite the agricultural sections and make them so explicit that the meaning can not be misconstrued by any one," he continued.

LOUISIANIANS TO ATTEND FIRE MEET

BATON ROUGE, La., Nov. 7.—(AP)—Louisiana delegates will attend a regional school at Stillwater, Okla., beginning November 9 to learn methods of fire fighting and control in case of enemy raids.

Delegates to the regional school, named by Baton Rouge Fire Chief Robert Bogan and Dr. Andrew Triche, state director of vocational-industrial education, will return after completing the course to conduct similar schools to train other instructors.

A series of meetings is being arranged by Chief Bogan prior to establishing the local schools in Louisiana for civilian fire-fighting leaders.

METHODISTS ARE CLOSING YEAR

All Twin City Churches Report Substantial Progress Made

The conference year will close with services held today in local Methodist churches, the annual conference meeting this week, opening session being Tuesday in New Orleans.

All Methodist churches have enjoyed a successful year in the Twin Cities. The First Methodist church in Monroe has added many members and has continued to raise a sizeable sum for the erection of a new educational building. Last year a total of $25,000 was raised and a similar goal has been set for 1942. The attendance at services has been so large that extra seating capacity is being provided for the church auditorium.

The district superintendent Dr. H. M. Johnson will preach at 7:30 p.m. Sunday, after which the fourth quarterly conference will be held and the new board of stewards will be formally organized. Dr. A. M. Freeman, pastor, is concluding his third highly successful year as pastor.

Gordon avenue church, Rev. W. A. Cross, pastor, has added to its membership and also has completed a complete reconstruction of the exterior of the building this year.

Stone avenue church, Rev. Ira Yeager, pastor, also has had an auspicious year as has Claiborne church, Rev. R. H. Hearne, pastor.

The First Methodist church of West Monroe, under the pastorate of Dr. C. Karlos Smith, has paid off the church debt and the building has been formally dedicated the past year. At the morning service hour today, the pastor will render a complete report of the church and its progress the past 12 months.

All Methodist pastors urge that there be a large attendance at today's services as a finale of the year's work.

C. OF C. BOARD HOLDS MEETING

W. W. Kellogg Tenders Resignation As Vice-President And Director

W. W. Kellogg tendered his resignation as vice-president and member of the board of directors of the Chamber of Commerce at a luncheon meeting of the board held Friday in the Maple room of Hotel Virginia.

Mr. Kellogg's resignation was submitted because of his entrance into the United States navy. The board adopted a resolution expressing their regret over the resignation, their appreciation for his splendid work, and their congratulations to the navy for securing such an excellent worker.

Paul Reising, president of the Junior Chamber of Commerce, explained the purpose of the Share-the-Ride club being sponsored by the Junior Chamber and urged the cooperation of all members. Efforts are being made to enlist the assistance of all private car owners who will be issued "A" cards when gas rationing begins November 22.

George Holland, secretary of the chamber, gave a review of its activities for the past few weeks. He stated that except for the 130 houses assigned to our community in the defense housing quota, there would be no further building for the duration. This is due to the fact that the war production board has cancelled its orders P55 and P110, which provided for construction of privately owned houses and renovation of already existing structures. For the duration, private building will be limited to maintenance and repairs.

Secretary Holland state that the chamber office had been st eamlined to meet new war-time demands, and was acting as a center for the dissemination of information to its members. OPA, ODT, priority, and other regulations are carefully studied and distributed to members by the chamber staff.

Secretary Holland also reported that assurance has been received from Major-General Raymond Fleming, director of selective service for Louisiana, of his cooperation in the chamber's efforts to secure an induction center to be located at the West Monroe fair grounds. General Fleming has submitted a brief setting forth this plan to Major-General R. R. Donovan, commanding officer of the Eighth Service command at Dallas, Texas. General Donovan's decision should be announced soon.

Board members present at the meeting were: Chamber President A. K. Kilpatrick, Guy Campbell, George V. Lotton, F. F. Millsaps, I. A. Faulk, Harry Frazer, J. W. Keene, Sam Smith, J. T. Conger, L. P. Milner, J. W. Warren, Junior Chamber President Paul Reising, Mayor H. H. Benoit, Secretary George D. Holland.

HAUGLAND GIVES AWAY HIS SOCKS

A. P. Writer Drops From 155 Pounds To 95 While In Jungle

SEATTLE, Nov. 7.—(AP)—In the jungle of New Guinea, which swallowed him for more than six weeks and left him delirious and near death, Associated Press War Correspondent Vern Haugland gave his socks to a companion who needed them worse than he did.

Haugland and the bomber crew with whom he was flying parachuted into the dense jungle from a height of 13,000 feet during a storm on August 7. In his first letter from Australia to his family, Haugland told how one of the crew, Lieutenant James A. Michael of Temple, Okla., overtook him as he followed a creek.

"Mike's flying boots had been torn off when he parachuted," the war correspondent said in a letter received by his brother, H. W. Haugland, Seattle attorney. "I gave him my socks to put over his feet as a little extra protection.

"We had only grass to chew for the week we were together. He was a swell fellow, and we both felt we were doing better by keeping together. But finally I got so weak and my feet so sore that he agreed to go on ahead and send back help if he could."

Michael still is missing. Haugland, whose diary told of survival on berries and the juice of grass and weeds through night after night of torrential rains, was found by natives and later taken to the coast by missionaries. Others of the crew reached Port Moresby.

Haugland expressed the belief that only divine providence spared him.

"I often repeated the psalm, 'The Lord is my shepherd, I shall not want,'" he wrote. "I would be unable to go one step further, and then I would remember, 'I shall not want' and sure enough there'd be some berries or chewable grass or a creek with good water just ahead."

Haugland said he dropped from 155 pounds to 95 during the ordeal, but was back at 130 when he wrote the letter on October 12.

He said his first vague memory was the visit of General Douglas MacArthur to his hospital bed, but "it still seems unreal." MacArthur pinned a silver star award on the sick newsman in his hospital bed.

Sherrouse School Leads With Largest Membership Gain

The regular monthly meeting of the Twin Cities P.-T. A. council was held Thursday at 4 p.m. with Mrs. W. S. Vincent presiding. Minutes were read by Mrs. G. C. A. membership cup had been won by Sherrouse school with the greatest percentage of increase in P.-T. A membership.

The three schools leading in membership percentage increase were: Sherrouse school, 174 per cent; Central Grammar school, 104 per cent; Georgia Tucker school, 103 per cent. A report on the drive was given by Mrs. Young.

Mrs. Vincent suggested that the goals' chairman in each school give a brief talk on goals at each monthly meeting. Reports on the study groups being held in each school were given.

Mrs. Vinson asked that each welfare chairman send in a report to Mrs. Nelson Abel of the community chest.

Mrs. Fagan Cox, state P.-T. A. president, thanked members of the council for their part in the community chest campaign. She said that she had attended a meeting in Baton Rouge to help organize a child welfare committee of the office of civilian defense for the state. Myron Faulk represented the OCD and there were 18 members representing organizations throughout the state that are interested in child welfare.

Father H. Joseph Jacobi, New Orleans, was named president. He was a delegate from this state in 1940 to the White House conference on children in a democracy.

Mrs. D. L. Nicol asked P.-T. A. presidents to assist canteen corps leaders in their work in the units which are organized in various schools.

Mrs. C. K. Crandall, state summer roundup chairman, gave a report on this work.

Mrs. Cox reported that a national P.-T. A. worker will speak at the Louisiana Teachers convention on November 22 in Shreveport. Mrs. Vincent was named delegate to attend this meeting.

Mrs. Vincent urged all P.-T. A. members possible to contact their local unit presidents and volunteer to aid with the gas rationing registration which will take place here November 12 and 13.

Appearances Sometimes Deceptive

What looks like rank foolishness might be regarded as good sense, if the whole story were known.

A worker in a great war industry plant protests bitterly at what he calls the idiotic decisions of local draft boards. He cites instances where those boards have drafted skilled workers in essential war industries for service in our armed forces. Offhand, one might consider such action idiotic; but here is one such instance explained:

A local draft board called up for military service a workman in an airplane factory. The workman protested to the board that he was doing skilled work essential to our armed forces. The board admitted that he was, but went on to say that he was needed more in Africa to repair the airplanes he knew how to build, and keep them flying, than he was in the United States building airplanes. So the board drafted him to go to Africa.

Undoubtedly some local draft boards have done and are doing some foolish things; for draft boards are composed of human beings, and human beings are as given to doing foolish things as sparks are to flying upward—such, for instance, as placing men who are not able to stand physical stress and strain in military training camps, where they must undergo physical stress and strain. Such men break down and become liabilities to our armed forces, when they would have been assets to our nation in factories or on farms.

A trouble may have been that local draft boards have not been sufficiently instructed what to do and what not to do. Perhaps too much reliance has been placed on native intelligence and not enough on specialized knowledge.

Local draft boards should not be expected to have specialized knowledge in building a modern fighting force. But their superiors should have it.

ALASKA'S ROLE

Military trucks now crowding the newly-completed highway to Alaska are carrying the means of preparation to one of the most strategic spots in the Pacific. For purposes both of offense and of defense the role of Alaska in the war will be of ever-increasing importance.

There is only one feasible Pacific route pointing directly toward the heart of Japan and that is by way of Alaska and the Aleutians. Forces and supplies flowing in that direction from island bastion to island bastion will have the shortest haul, cancelling much of the advantage on the score of distance now enjoyed by Japan in the southwest Pacific.

Alaska likewise offers the possibility of an offensive union with Russia through Siberia. An air route already connects the two. Complete equipment and mobilization of the Alaskan base will result inevitably in an overflow of strength into Siberia for the final closing in on Japan. Unconquered, Alaska is in position to veto any offensive action Japan might attempt against the west coast of the United States by outflanking it.

The highway to Alaska is teeming with the things that will make that territory impregnable and put punch into an American offensive. It solves the problems of American supply routes in the Pacific more nearly than any other one step that has been taken. Alaska may prove to be of tremendous advantage in discharging the hard tasks ahead.

VELOCITY OF MONEY

Much was heard a few years ago of the "velocity of money," a phrase invented and tossed about by the screwball fringe of economists. What it meant, if anything, was the speed with which money is passed from one person to another.

Velocity of money seems to be breaking all records in the United States. Money in circulation has reached an all-time peak of approximately $14,000,000,000, equal to $105 per person in round figures. The per capita figure a year ago was $76. Until recent years the total in circulation was normally $5,000,000,000 in gold, silver and paper.

Two reasons are advanced for the increase in the amount of money outstanding—heavier demand by business for cash due to mounting war production, and hoarding. There are of course many other factors. Possibly one of these is an increase in the use of cash following changes in the customary habits of great numbers of citizens as a result of the war. The American who moves out of his former routine into new activities tries to fortify himself with a little extra cash.

Multiplied millions of times, this could account for the entire increase in the amount of money in circulation.

Japan, which bought much scrap metal in the United States in 1938, 1939 and 1940, is now having it delivered with more velocity and for nothing.

More than 800,000 American troops have been shipped abroad. And, regardless of how many more will be required, America will send them.

Laugh Of The Week: (Lou Holtz's story)—Lapidowitz, flat broke, went to Cohen on a Wednesday for a loan of $50, promising faithfully to repay it on Saturday. He got the loan, but Saturday found him without funds. So he went to Mayer, borrowed $50 on the promise of quick repayment, and used it to pay Cohen. The next Wednesday, he went back to Cohen. "Look," he urged, "I paid you promptly before, I need another fifty." That fifty went to pay Mayer—and from Mayer, the following Saturday, he again borrowed to pay Cohen. For ten months, Lapidowitz, always broke, alternated regularly between Mayer and Cohen. Finally, in desperation, he wrote them letters, which read: "This is getting silly. Will you two kindly exchange checks for $50 every week—and for Heaven sake, leave me out of it!"

They should leave such matters to the law.

New York Day By Day

By CHARLES B. DRISCOLL
Title Reg. U. S. Patent Office

NEW YORK—Dr. Charles G. Abbot, 70-years-old secretary of the Smithsonian Institution, recently published a sensational piece of news to an anxious public. It is this:

The Wright brothers, Wilbur and Orville, have invented a flying machine.

The announcement comes almost 40 years late.

It corrects a false story, which Smithsonian has propagated and tried to establish as fact for 28 years.

That story was that the airplane was actually invented by a former secretary of Smithsonian named Samuel Langley.

Dr. Charles Greeley Abbot, who now makes the crawl direct for his institution, admitting that there was no truth in the claims it has been making for Langley, knew all the facts in the case at least 14 years ago, when he came to the headship of Smithsonian.

I have before me a copy of a letter written by Mr. Orville Wright to Dr. Abbott in September, '28, in which all the facts are set forth. In several thousands of words this letter exposes the fraud of the Langley claims, which were again and again disproved in court.

When Abbot and the Institution stuck to their monstrouously false story, and continued to keep the pressage of Smithsonian behind that story, Wright sent the original Kitty Hawk plane, the first powered plane ever to soar into the air with a man, to England. It was exhibited at South Kensington Museum until this war began. It is now stored in a safe place.

In the days when the Wright-Langley affair might be called a controversy, I wrote many editorials, supporting Wright and castigating the Smithsonian for its stubborn effort to steal credit from the inventors and give it to the former head of Smithsonian. (The secretary is the active head, though the president of the United States is, ex officio, presiding officer.)

As a result of my interest in the case, and in aviation, I spent a long day with Orville Wright, at his laboratory and office in Dayton, in 192[illegible].

We spent most of the time leaning against the Kitty Hawk ship, which Wright even then had determined to send to England if Smithsonian did not desist from its dissemination of a notorious falsehood about the invention of the airplane.

"It will go to England," said Wright, "and it will stay there until Smithsonian is willing to house it with a true label on it, designating it as the first flyable powered airplane, the first airplane flown.

"If they flack down during my lifetime, I may bring the plane back to this country. If I die before they are willing to acknowledge the truth and apologize for the wrong they are doing my brother and me, the plane will stay permanently in England."

Mr. Wright is now 71. Of course, the plane cannot well be returned to the country during the present war. It seems not unlikey that it will remain in England, regardless of what decision may be reached at this time.

It is important that Smithsonian has officially admitted the hoax it has been perpetrating upon the world for so many years.

But the prestige of the Institution as a home of truth and learning has suffered irreparable damage.

The usefulness of Dr. Abbot certainly has been damaged, for, while he now admits the falseness of the claims, he cannot deny having known of that falseness for at least 14 years during which he permitted the institution to continue to misinform the world on this important matter.

He should have resigned when he failed to persuade his crowd to drop their persecution of the Wrights. Or he should resign now, after making such damaging admissions.

OUR CHILDREN

By Angelo Patri

Young people need to be especially careful of their manners in public, just now. Not that there should be any letdown of good manners in the privacy of the family, but that there is a special need for gentleness and consideration for others in these days of trial and tribulation.

The street cars and buses are crowded and crowding always makes people tired. Those who use the street cars and buses are weary to begin with because they are working harder, longer hours, and have grave anxieties beside. Young men have gone into service for their country and the older ones, who are left behind to carry on the work of the nation are straining to the utmost to accomplish it. Boys and girls going to school or returning, must remember this and behave accordingly.

Don't enter a bus with noise and pushing and a general air of, "Get out of my way." The old lady with the shopping bag is grandmother out doing the work the younger women used to do because she must take their places. And as she sits there, her bags about her, looking so stodgy and dumb, she is thinking of the boys who have left home for the service, of the young mother at work in the factory, of the children coming home from school hungry, eager for a comforting word and restoring food. Go past her gently and with the reverence due to a veteran of war. Lend her a hand with the bags when she rises to leave, and give her a warm smile of appreciation as she goes to her duty.

And as you pass the man in dirty overalls, face and hands begrimed, as he holds to the swinging strap, pass gently, with a cordial smile, for he is returning from a grim round of labor in the service of the nation. He has spent his strength, given up his hours of leisure, his comfort, that the freedom of American life may be yours in days to come. Remember that and go by him gently, with respect in your manner and appreciation in your eyes. He needs the lift your understanding gives him. Don't forget him.

Be considerate in school. Teachers are working overtime, under hard conditions. They are serving you faithfully and they need your cooperation and your whole-hearted help. Do your work promptly, take care of the things you are using, don't bother anybody more than you can help. And go gently about the building because noise, hurry, excitement are bad for the atmosphere of a school in wartime.

Young people have a big share in the nation's war effort, not only the physical side of it, but the equally important spiritual side. If you keep cheerful, do no grumbling, think first of the older ones who are carrying the heavy burdens of war, you will be serving well and your country will be the stronger for your contribution. Mind your manners at all times for they are the first expression of your spiritual self, your real self.

Sunday School Lesson

Sunday School Lesson for Nov. 15
Text Genesis 27:30-35; Matthew 5:31, 32; Luke 12:13-15.

By William E. Gilroy, D. D.
Editor of Advance

The things that mar family life are mostly the things that mar life in general and in all social contacts. But there is this difference: in general if we do not like people we can avoid them, or if people do not like us and are irritated by our ways and words, we can also avoid them or they can avoid us. But within the family we have to live together whether we like it or not, unless we are willing to face some crucial disruption.

Accordingly, family life calls for a greater measure of wisdom, restraint, and considerate conduct than is called for in one's general life and contacts. Most of the trouble in family life comes from the failure to take these things into account. The whole condition of family life makes much forbearance necessary as well as a large amount of constructive kindliness.

Our lesson consists mainly of the story of Jacob and Esau. Jacob in has dealing with his brother was inordinately ambitious and selfish to the point of meanness and of criminal deception. What he did, in our day, would be indictable in the courts of law. Esau was easy-going and slack. But both brothers, as we saw in a few lessons ago, turned out a great deal better in later life. Jacob's energetic ambition became tempered by a sense of responsibility while Esau's easy-going slackness developed into a rather fine and beautiful magnanimity.

But why spend too much time upon a story, the points and teachings of which stand out so plainly? Why not get to some application of facts and cases of family life today?

Here the New Testament helps. One portion in our lesson deals with that vexed problem of marriage and divorce. It is too large and too difficult a question to deal with here, but one bold, clear fact stands out, viz., that there can be no happy marriage where there is not loyalty between husband and wife. One might say that love comes first, but there are times when duty and loyalty will tide over a situation and give anchorage and safety when love is tested and strained.

The other passage deals with the old questions of quarrels about financial advantage and inheritance. Brotherhood is often tested where there is a sense of being treated unfairly, or where one in a family has profited to the disadvantage of others. It is better to be brotherly than to be resentful. There is no other way of avoiding quarrels and disruption. Paul expresses the law of the Christian life and a good interpretation of the Christian way in happy family life: "Love seeketh not her own."

FAR MORE COTTON GINNED IN PARISH

The department of commerce, bureau of the census, reports that Ouachita parish has ginned up to October 16, a total of 11,152 bales of cotton from the 1942 crop.

At a similar date in 1941, only 7,739 bales had been ginned.

STORES WILL CLOSE TWO HOURS ON ARMISTICE DAY

Observance of Armistice Day, Wednesday, November 11, in the Twin Cities will be marked by the closing of retail firms from 10 until 12 in the morning, David C. Silverstein, chairman of the Chamber of Commerce Merchant's division, said Saturday.

This observance will be in line practices of former years, Mr. Silverstein stated. Closing the stores for this two hour period will give downtown employees the opportunity to attend various special programs to be held in the Twin Cities.

Mr. Silverstein also announced that retail stores will be closed all day Thanksgiving day, which will be November 26, the last Thursday in the month, as well as on Christmas day and New Year's day. Observance of these holidays will not in any way interfere with the contribution of these firms to the war effort, he added.

IN WASHINGTON

By Peter Edson
(Monroe Morning World Washington Correspondent)

American business men have until July 1, 1943, to familiarize themselves with the War Production Board's new CMP, or Controlled Materials Plan, just announced by WPB Chairman Donald M. Nelson, to manage the distribution of raw materials to essential industries.

CMP isn't anything for the average soldier, citizen or housewife to worry about, for it may never touch him directly. Indirectly, if CMP works, it offers the most assurance there has been thus far that within eight months and thereafter there will be no more plant shutdowns for lack of raw materials, and the civilian economy will know where it gets off.

In the words of Leon Henderson, "It remains to be seen whether CMP is the last plan to solve the troublesome materials problem, or just the latest."

In the words of Ferdinand Eberstadt, the new WPB vice-chairman on Program Determination, "If CMP isn't the last plan, it must be somewhere near the last plan because human patience is limited."

Every businessman who has ever wrestled with a priorities application form will second that.

Meeting Of Many Minds

Eberstadt, the ex-investment banker, and Ernest H. Kanzler, the ex-auto executive who supervised the conversion of the motor industry to war production and was promoted to the job of WPB Director General of Operations, are the two men mainly responsible for bringing CMP into existence as something to correct the mistakes of priorities and production requirements systems. Among the brain-trusters who worked out the details were J. A. Krug, deputy director of priorities control; Blackwell Smith, who has been priorities lawyer ever since the start of the defense effort, and I. N. P. Stokes, Dave Novick and Henry Nelson, bright young men in government.

Eberstadt and Kanzler began working on CMP as soon as they took over their new jobs at WPB headquarters in September. There had been several plans to revise priorities kicking around, and WPB Chairman Nelson had been at work trying to bring overall planning of war production into the picture ever since he took charge in January. At first, only a small group worked on CMP, then gradually other war agencies were called in and finally the men from industry itself. Even the British production men came over to lend-lease their advice.

As now presented, the Controlled Materials Plan may not be perfect, but it is flexible and it can be reshaped to remove whatever holes may appear in the period of transition up to July 1, 1943, when operation of the plan becomes mandatory.

No New Agency

Educating the manufacturers and materials dealers to the operations of CMP is the big job of the War Production Board in the transition period ahead. Bible for this missionary work will be a 72-page manual which describes the operation of the plan in simple English. In the back pages is a complete assortment of the forms necessary to effect transactions in raw materials needed for the manufacture of articles of war. Also, the manual outlines a time schedule for putting CMP in operation. It does not impose a sudden, drastic, confusing turn-over. It applies in the beginning only to iron, steel, copper and aluminum.

Inauguration of CMP will not call for the creation of another huge government agency in Washington. If anything, administration should be simpler than the operation of priorities control, for it is based on decentralization. In Washington the main job apparently will be to determine the total amounts of raw materials available, then divide those materials among the seven "claimant agencies" which are responsible for production and distribution of goods essential to various phases of the war program—the Army, Navy, Maritime Commission, the new Aircraft Scheduling Unit for all plane production, Lend-Lease, Board of Economic Warfare and Office of Civilian Supply. It is then the responsibility of each one of these claimant agencies to decide how its share of the material shall be used.

SURVEY LIVING COSTS HERE

French, assistant director of the bureau. An analysis of the survey will be completed in a few days and copies will be available at the Chamber of Commerce office.

BROOKS SAYS MOST OF UNITS OCCUPIED

WASHINGTON, Nov. 7.—(AP)—Representative Brooks, Democrat, Louisiana, told the house that 132 units of a 139 unit housing project at Bossier city are fully occupied by army and war department personnel.

He asserted that the project "is worth while and most necessary and there has been no waste there of vital materials."

He made the statement in answer to charges by Representative Wilson, Republican, Indiana, that there had been waste in critical materials and that many unnecessary housing projects had been constructed. Wilson listed the Bossier City project among them, and asserted that although it was completed on September 23, 1941 as of Jan. 2, 1942 only 52 units were occupied.

". . . My colleague from Indiana has taken dates on which he said the occupancy of the project was small; but if the gentleman had gone further he would have found that at that time there was a rapid turnover in army personnel at Barksdale Field," Brooks said.

Representative Manasco, Democrat, Alabama, in a house speech last month also defended the Bossier City project and criticized Wilson's figures.

PLAY LEADING ROLES

Mrs. Tom Davenport and Stanley Reid, above, have the most difficult parts in "George Washington Slept Here," which will be seen at Neville High school auditorium on November 17, presented by Monroe Little Theater players.

OPENING PLAY SET ON NOV. 17

'George Washington Slept Here' Promises Much Amusement

"George Washington Slept Here," the first play of the Monroe Little theater to be given this fall, will be presented in Neville High school auditorium, on the night of November 17. Rehearsals are in progress nearly every night, and directed by Mrs. Mildred Merrill, the outlook is for one of the best plays ever produced by this group, it is stated.

There are three acts and the farce moves merrily on from the time the curtain is raised on the first act on down through the entire performance.

The play revolves around the house in which history has said George Washington once honored by spending the night. The property is purchased largely because of its intrinsic value. But later on the sad discovery is made that the place was never occupied by George Washington for a single night, and that instead, Benedict Arnold slept there. This discovery has immediate and surprising effect on the new occupants of the prenises.

The entire cast is as follows: Mrs. Tom Davenport as Annabelle, Beula Johnson as Madge, Lloyd Barham as Steve Eldridge; Mrs. M. L. DeFreese as Mrs. Douglas, Margaret Templeton as Rena Leslie, John Mullin as Raymond, Everett Lawson as Uncle Stanley, Sonny Bubb as Leggett Frazer, Juanita DeFreese as Sue Barringer, Dulcy Nobes as Hester, John McDaniel as Mr. Kimber, Captain Theodore Merrill as Clayton Evans, Lieutenant James as Tommy Hughes, Mrs. James as Miss Wilcox, Tom Davenport as Mr. Prescott, Stanley Reid as Newton Fuller.

There will be a special dress rehearsal November 15 at 2:30 p. m. in the workshop at Neville High school for cadets and enlisted men only.

454,000 TONS SCRAP

A total of 454,155 tons of scrap rubber was raised in the whirlwind drive conducted from June 15 to July 10. Scrap is being moved to central receiving depots at the rate of 200 cars every 24 hours.

DERYL MORRIS JOINS AIRWAYS

Local Youth Prepares To Fly On Ocean-Going Clippers

NEW YORK, Nov. 7.—(Special)—Deryl Z. Morris, now a resident of New York City, who formerly lived with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. L. B. Morris, of 3303 DeSiard street, has joined the Atlantic division of Pan-American Airways as a junior pilot and is now completing his aviation training before being checked out on the giant ocean-flying Clippers.

Like all Pan-American junior pilots, Morris must complete a five-week course in ground training and plane familiarization before being included in a 12-man Clipper crew as a fourth officer, in charge of all mail and express carried on his flight. The training, given by company instructors at Pan-American's international base here, includes instruction in navigation, meteorology, radio, and use of flight instruments.

Morris, who took a government-sponsored civilian pilot training course at Monroe, taught flying at Northeast Junior college last winter, and now has 478 flight hours. He graduated from high school in Monroe in 1937 and from Northeast Junior college in 1940.

Congress To Have Anti-New Deal Majority Soon

Repeal Of Wage-Hour Law And Wagner Act Already Proposed

By Richard L. Turner

WASHINGTON, Nov. 7.—(AP)—Congress, which has a preponderance of New Dealers now, will have a potential anti-New Deal majority starting next January. That is made clear by analysis of last Tuesday's election returns.

The question engrossing Washington is: What effect will this change have upon national policy, foreign and domestic? Only the future can answer this with any certainty, but at least two courses were proposed even before all the election returns were in.

The proposals came from members of congress who have been either intense or moderate opponents of some of President Roosevelt's domestic policies. That is, they originated with men whose bloc voting power was tremendously reinforced by the elections of last Tuesday.

In the house, both a reelected Democrat, Representative Rankin of Mississippi, and a Republican who did not seek to retain his seat, Representative Rich of Pennsylvania, demanded that a coalition of Republicans and dissident Democrats repeal the wage hour law and the Wagner labor relations act.

Another coalition idea was suggested, at the same time, by Senator Vandenberg, Michigan, a leading Republican. He proposed a coalition of Republicans and Democrats to push the war effort, and the creation of a new congressional committee to oversee it.

For the duration, he said, the administration must pigeon-hole "New Dealism" and politics, meaning presumably any effort to extend the Roosevelt social program. It also, he said, must deal more openly with congress and the people.

He did not say whether, in return, the new anti-New Deal majority would refrain from any general attack on already-enacted New Deal social legislation. Some, however, thought that might be his intent.

The Rankin-Rich course, and the Vandenberg plan, were both offered to the country 24 hours after it had become apparent that although the Democrats would still have a majority in both houses, the New Deal could not count on one. During those twenty-four hours, Washington had been trying to gauge the future.

It was considered inevitable that proposals such as that of Rankin and Rich would, if put to the test, produce a snarling deep-striking row, a row rivalling or exceeding in its intensity anything seen in the parliamentary battles of Roosevelt's second term.

The Vandenberg plan appeared to offer somewhat different possibilities. Coming from a leading member of the bloc which has opposed many of the New Deal's social policies, from a man in a reinforced position to make endless troubles for the administration, it looked like an offer of a domestic truce for the duration. It held out the prospect of a congress, which, regardless of blocs and individual viewpoints, would work in close cooperation with the administration.

It held out that prospect, but only if the administration—not notable for a tendency to take opposition legislators into its councils—would consent to it.

The Vandenberg plan was put forward as a rough idea apparently. Probably, it would require considerable negotiation to make it effective. And even then, its effectiveness would depend to a large extent upon the will which lay behind it. It might even depend upon whether anti-New Deal leaders could restrain impetuous and independent congressmen from giving to the mat with New Dealers in an all-out tussle.

In total, it seemed to many Washingtonians to be a problem for the Republican leadership of exercising its newly won power with a restraint dictated by the responsibility that accompanies power. At the same time, it also seemed a question of administration acceptance of the election results as giving the Republican opposition a larger part in running the war.

A deal of negotiating was in prospect at the capitol. And a will to work the situation out seemed to be present.

MANPOWER STILL IS MAJOR ISSUE

Argue Whether Control Should Be Voluntary Or By Compulsion

NEW YORK, Nov. 7.—(AP)—The whole problem of controlling and channeling manpower, still far from solution, hung across the nation this week like a live wire, bound to give off sparks wherever touched.

Some controls will come, for the labor shortage may reach a crisis by mid-winter, but the question remains: Should those controls be on a voluntary basis or by compulsion.

Whatever the solution, it will affect millions of men and women if they are to be allocated efficiently among the armed services, industry and the farm.

If it is to be done by legislation, the Chamber of Commerce of the United States asks, "Who will decide who is essential, will management have to surrender the right to hire and fire, will labor have to submit to work assignment?"

President Roosevelt is now studying recommendations in a report by the labor-management policy committee of the war manpower commission headed by Paul V. McNutt.

Although McNutt declined to disclose the nature of the recommendations they reportedly:

Urged voluntary cooperation between management and labor on manpower problems; said proposed national service legislation, favored by McNutt, would not be the solution; and suggested that the selective service system be placed under WMC in order to insure the proper division of manpower between the armed services and industry.

It was also understood the committee recommended that all hiring should be done through the United States employment service.

McNutt said the report was fully equal in scope to the highly-praised report on the rubber problem drawn up late last summer by a president-appointed committee headed by Bernard Baruch.

But—the Chamber of Commerce suggests that, as a "first step towards solution" of the manpower problem, the Baruch committee be re-appointed to study it.

One of the best illustrations of the unbalanced manpower situation was given to the senate military committee by Agriculture Secretary Wickard who said:

"We are losing our most efficient agricultural workers very rapidly." He warned that unless means were found to keep "skilled, managerial help on the farms, all the unskilled workers you can place there won't help in this situation."

Wickard estimated that 1,600,000 men have left the farms in the last year and said about 60 per cent went into industry and the balance into the armed forces.

There are four pending manpower bills intended to mobilize war factory and farm workers, as well as fighters. Some observers believed that now, with elections out of the way, congress might speed up its efforts to reach a solution.

Organized labor is opposed to a national service act through which labor could be drafted for jobs. So are some farm groups. Some of those opposing legislative controls contend that voluntary methods should be tried out fully.

War Production Board Chief Donald M. Nelson announced a new plan—which he said was more efficient production requirements plan—to control scarce materials, speed their flow into war production, and eliminate waste caused by making too many of one part and not enough of another.

The program will be put into effect gradually, beginning at once, and according to Nelson will enable the government to earmark alloy steel, copper, carbon and aluminum in designated quantities for specified items.

FACTS ABOUT THE IDLE TIRE PROGRAM

WHAT IS AN IDLE TIRE? Under the Idle Tire Purchase Plan, the ownership of passenger car tires will be limited to five tires per passenger car owned and to one tire for each running wheel of each passenger car trailer or other such equipment owned. Any passenger car tire in excess of those limits is an Idle Tire. Beginning November 22, it will be illegal to use gasoline or permit gasoline to be used in the operation of any passenger car if the owner of the car owns one or more Idle Tires. Furthermore, it will be illegal for any person owning a passenger car, to use or permit gasoline to be used in its operation if any person in his or her household who is related by blood, marriage or adoption, owns one or more Idle Tires.

EXEMPTIONS—

(a) Passenger car tires intended for use on trucks, taxicabs, public rental cars, jitneys, buses, cars licensed for hire, etc., are exempt from Idle Tire Purchase Plan regulations. The exemptions do not apply, however, if the owner of such tires also owns a private passenger car and uses gasoline in its operation.

(b) Passenger car tires intended for use on cars owned or leased by Federal, State, local and foreign governments also are exempt.

(c) Passenger car tires in the hands of dealers (including car dealers), jobbers or manufacturers, bought or made for sale, are exempt if they have been reported to the Government on official inventory forms.

DISPOSING OF IDLE TIRES—Usable Idle Tires and Idle Tires that can be made usable by repairs can be disposed of only to the Government in accordance with the instructions given elsewhere on this page. Any other disposition of such Tires is illegal and subject to severe penalties. Idle Tires that are beyond repair should be sold to scrap dealers.

TRUCK AND BUS TIRES—TUBES—Compulsion does not apply to bus-type and truck-type tires and tubes, nor to passenger car tubes, but the Government will buy all that are offered.

PENALTIES—Severe penalties are provided for the illegal use of gasoline on and after November 22, or for making false statements about tire ownership. If in doubt on any question under the Idle Tire Purchase Plan, full details will be found in OPA Mileage Rationing Regulations.

READ THESE IMPORTANT INSTRUCTIONS

The Government's Idle Tire Purchase Plan requires that you do two things if you wish to use gasoline to operate your passenger car.

FIRST. You must dispose of ALL Idle Tires. If the Idle Tires are usable or can be made usable by repairs, they MUST be sold to the Government. If they are beyond repair, they should be sold to scrap dealers.

—In areas where gasoline is already rationed, Idle Tires must be disposed of before November 22.

—In areas where gasoline rationing becomes effective November 22, Idle Tires must be disposed of before you apply for a gasoline ration book.

SECOND. You must file a Government Tire Record Form. (Forms may be obtained at War Price and Rationing Board Offices, Post Offices and Garages.)

—In areas where gasoline is already rationed, Tire Record Forms must be taken or sent to your War Price and Rationing Board by December 12. Earlier is better because this form also contains the Tire Inspection Blank which must be signed by your War Price and Rationing Board and which you must have in your possession after December 12.

—In areas where gasoline rationing becomes effective November 22, Tire Record Forms may also be obtained at school houses when you register for gasoline. The forms must be filled in and presented before you can obtain a gasoline ration book.

Note: In both areas it will be illegal on and after November 22 to use or permit gasoline to be used in any passenger car you own if you, or any member of your household related by blood, marriage or adoption, owns one or more Idle Tires.

HERE IS HOW TO SELL YOUR IDLE TIRES TO UNCLE SAM AT CEILING PRICES

Keep your 5 best tires for each passenger car; one for each running wheel of passenger car trailers and similar equipment. All other tires, new or used, regardless of condition, are Idle Tires. Sell all usable Idle Tires (even those needing repairs), to the Government before Nov. 22.

Railway Express Agency has been designated to collect usable Idle Tires (at no cost to you) and deliver them to Government warehouses. In areas where Railway Express has "pick-up" service, call or write nearest Railway Express Agency office and say you have Idle Tires for Uncle Sam. A truck will call.

In rural areas beyond Express "pick-up" zones, take usable Idle Tires and tubes to the Railway Express Agency office, usually at nearest railroad station. The Express agent will give you a receipt. Scrap tires should not be turned over to Railway Express. Sell them directly to scrap dealers.

At Government warehouses, Idle Tires will be appraised at ceiling prices, according to make, size and condition, less cost of repairs, if needed. (Typical prices are shown elsewhere on this page.) A U. S. Treasury check for payment in full will be sent to you by mail. Tell the express agent if you prefer payment in War Savings Bonds or Stamps at current purchase value to the rear of his hard-pressed forces.

FIRST BIG-SCALE OFFENSIVE BEGUN

The White House announcement said the operations against the French colonies were undertaken to "forestall an invasion" of Africa by Germany and Italy.

The French government was informed of the action and told that "the Allies seek no territory and have no intention of interfering with friendly French authorities in Africa," it added.

The operations were carried out by the navy, army, and air forces, supported by units of the British navy and the R. A. F. Lieutenant General Dwight D. Eisenhower, commander of United States forces in Europe, is commander-in-chief of the operations.

The White House announcement said the United States forces in the immediate future would be reinforced by "a considerable number" of British army divisions.

Although the statement said the primary purpose of the operations was to prevent an Axis invasion of the colonies, it also declared they would "provide an effective second front assistance to our heroic Allies in Russia."

Thus the move is officially designated as the opening of a second front.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 7.—(AP)—Powerful American expeditionary forces are landing on the Atlantic and Mediterranean coasts of the French colonies in Africa in the first big-scale offensive of the war under the Star Spangled Banner.

An electrifying announcement of the action, obviously aimed at winning complete domination of the dark continent and reopening the Mediterranean sea for the United Nations in conjunction with the victorious British drive westward from Egypt, was made in a simultaneous announcement tonight by President Roosevelt and communique from the war department.

The White House statement said the purpose of the move was two-fold:

1. To forestall an Axis invasion there which "would constitute a direct threat to America across the comparatively narrow sea from western Africa."

2. To provide "an effective second front assistance to our heroic allies in Russia."

Thus the Axis had an emphatic answer to its attempts to "fish for information" by broadcasting accounts of heavy Allied troop convoys escorted by warships mustering at the Rock of Gibraltar in recent days.

The troops apparently were some of those which have been concentrated in the British isles for some time, itching for action as they went through the final stages of their battle training, for they were commanded by Lieutenant General Dwight D. Eisenhower, commander-in-chief in the European theater whose headquarters had been in Britain.

Eisenhower broadcast a message to the people of French North Africa on behalf of the president assuring them that "We come among you solely to destroy your enemies and not to harm you" and issued a proclamation instructing them how to cooperate.

To signify cooperation, the general directed that they fly the French tricolor and the American flag, one above the other, or two tri-colors by day and shine a searchlight vertically into the sky by night. He also directed French naval and aviation units to remain idle.

Eisenhower's message indicated that the troops were pouring ashore in Morocco, which has both Atlantic and Mediterranean shores, and the remainder of French North Africa which comprises Algeria and Tunis on the Mediterranean.

Landings also presumably were being made in the French West African colonies, including Senegal, whose capital of Dakar lies only 1,870 miles across the South Atlantic from the bulge of Brazil.

There was no doubt that the expeditions were made in heavy force with tanks, artillery and all the accoutrements of modern warfare for this new and promising phase of the conflict. The offensive far surpassed in weight the American invasion of the Solomon islands in the South Pacific undertaken just three months ago this day.

Announcement of the landings was timed to coincide with the actual debarkation of the troops on their destinations at 9 p.m., eastern war time (3 a.m. Sunday, West African time), and was made only after a reassuring message from Mr. Roosevelt's own lips had been broadcast to the French people, asking for their aid to rout their own enemies.

The landing, the announcement said, was being assisted by the British navy and air forces, and "it will, in the immediate future, be reinforced by a considerable number of divisions of the British army."

White House Secretary Stephen Early called newspapermen to a special press conference to make the formal announcement. He said it was issued in the name of President Roosevelt, with simultaneous communiques coming from the war department and in London.

The announcement said the landing was to prevent an enemy invasion which, if successful, would "constitute a direct threat to America" across the comparatively narrow sea from Western Africa.

"This combined allied force," the announcement said, "under American command in conjunction with the British campaign in Egypt is designed to prevent an occupation by the axis armies of any part of Northern or Western Africa, and to deny to the aggressor nations a starting point from which to launch an attack against the Atlantic coast of the Americas."

The formal White House statement also said the landing "provides an effective second front assistance to our heroic allies in Russia."

The president's statement went on to say that the French government and people had been informed of the purpose of the American expedition and had been assured "that the allies seek no territory and have no intention of interfering with friendly French authorities in Africa."

The government of France and its people and the French possessions, the announcement continued, have been requested to cooperate with and assist the American expedition "in its effort to repel the German and Italian international criminals, and by so doing to liberate France and the French empire from the axis yoke."

Without specifying the exact points where the powerful American force had disembarked, the announcement said the expedition "will develop into a major effort by the allied nations and there is every expectation that it will be successful in repelling the planned German and Italian invasion of Africa and prove the first historic step to the liberation and restoration of France."

Simultaneously with the official presidential statement, the White House made public a Roosevelt radio recording which was broadcast tonight to the French people by short wave from Washington and London.

The president delivered the message in French. An English translation said:

"Help us where you are able, my friends, and we shall see again the glorious day when liberty and peace shall reign again on earth.

"Vive La France eternellei."

The president asked the French:

"Do not obstruct, I beg of you, this great purpose."

Mr. Roosevelt declared that he spoke to the French as one "who was with your army and navy in France in 1918" and held all his life the deepest friendship for the French people.

"No two nations exist," he said, "which are more united by historic and mutually friendly ties than the people of France and the United States."

Americans, with the assistance of the United Nations, Mr. Roosevelt added, were striving "for their own safe future as well as the restoration of the ideals, the liberties, and the democracy of all those who have lived under the tricolor.

"We come among you to repulse the cruel invaders who would remove forever your rights of self-government, your rights to religious freedom and your rights to live your own lives in peace and security.

"We come among you solely to defeat and rout your enemies. Have faith in our words. We do not want to cause you any harm.

"We assure you that once the menace of Germany and Italy is removed from you, we shall quit your territory at once.

"I am appealing to your realism, to your self-interest and national ideals."

The president's announcement came exactly 11 months after the Japanese made their attack on Pearl Harbor and plunged the United States into the world maelstrom.

It also came as the British Eighth army was battering the combined Nazi-Italian armies in Egypt.

More than a score of newspapermen were called into Presidential Secretary Early's office to receive the news. Word that some kind of major war development was about to break spread throughout the city early this evening, but there was no definite word that an official announcement actually was coming until about an hour before it was released.

Early locked the door to his office after the newspapermen had entered and permitted no one to leave until the exact stroke of 9 p. m., E. W. T. He had only a few minutes to read hurriedly from the announcement and 9 o'clock came before he had an opportunity to finish.

Then there was a great scramble for the lobby, where an assistant secretary, William D. Hassett, had placed copies of the president's announcement and his address to the French people on a huge mahogany table.

The long-awaited news about a "second front" was out.

THE BOMBERS COME BACK TO CANTERBURY

monitor. To transport men, equipment and supplies there were two transports, one of them large, and possibly 40 merchantmen and 12 tankers. The remainder of the vessels were not identified.

Since the axis was fully aware of the departure of the convoy there was reason to suspect that it might be attacked as strongly as their depleted air and naval resources in the Mediterranean would permit.

The equipment of the assault force as well as its composition was a deep military secret, but the requisitioning of private barges and boats at Gibraltar—suited for landing craft—was reported by the Vichy news agency.

The presence of a tanker fleet at Gibraltar, as reported by Berlin, if correct, suggested the force might be carrying large supplies of fuel for swift mechanized forces as well as warships and planes.

The eventual objective of the striking force also was a secret, but the invasion obviously was geared meticulously with Lieutenant-General Bernard L. Montgomery's smashing offensive in Egypt and no doubt was intended to catch Marshal Erwin Rommel between two fires.

The best informed quarters in London had anticipated the action in North Africa for several weeks. As long ago as September the Associated Press began pointing its coverage of Mediterranean and North African events toward the eventual revelation of the new offensive.

Its continental staff was augmented and the Cairo office became the headquarters of an A. P. staff larger than any other single bureau in the foreign service.

In addition, the movements of several other A. P. staff men will be revealed as operations progress.

While security considerations prohibited mention of the intended campaign by allied observers, the axis obviously began to get wind of allied preparations. There is nothing yet, however, to indicate that Berlin and Rome knew the time, place and immediate objectives of the offensive.

The most intense precautions of war were taken to prevent a leakage of the news. United States intelligence officers in civilian clothes were reported circulating in London bars to prevent careless talk.

Still the axis had inklings. The presence of an unprecedented number of warships and transports at Gibraltar was too obvious to be ignored by axis agents at La Linea, Spain, just across the ditch from the British fortress.

For days DNB had been reporting the gathering storm although apparently not understanding its full significance.

the greatest tension yet of the conflict.

That is the weak segment, the chink in Axis armor. It must invite the attention of Allied war planners not only for the weakening of the Axis front in Europe which Italian defection could cause; but because unchallenged Allied use of the Mediterranean would vastly reduce the whole military logistics problem that still hampers and delays the Allied war effort on all fronts.

The department of commerce estimates that the value of inventories held by manufacturers, wholesalers and retailers at the end of August was $29,300,000,000.

and badly outnumbered remnants of Rommel's armored force.

After pursuing these tank elements 104 miles to Matruh, their chances of utterly destroying it before it even reaches the Libyan border seemed good, for Rommel still had more than half the distance to go. And even then he would not be safe.

Already they had overtaken him at Fuka, 62 miles west of El Alamein, and there the German Marshal had turned on his pursuers.

"Remnants of the Panzer army attempted to hold our advance on the Fuka escarpment but, after vigorous attacks by our armored forces, were driven further west," said the British communique.

Then the Allied air forces took up the pursuit, caught the fleeing tank force west of Matruh and battered it unmercifully. Flying low to give maximum effect to bomb, aerial cannon and machine-gun, the Allied airmen watched enemy tanks split open from explosions. Burning, wrecked hulks were left scattered along the coastal road which had become a defile of death for the Axis army that Rommel had hoped to lead to the waters of the Nile.

American fighters and medium bombers participated in this attack, as well as sweeps to the west against transport in the bottleneck at Halfaya and Salum and at Bugbug and Bardia.

In the air, the Germans and Italians remained impotent.

"No enemy air activity was reported" was the succinct statement of the British communique.

Four-motored bombers, British and American, hammered at Axis sea communications and ports.

The Americans destroyed a big Axis tanker at Bengasi yesterday—apparently the first tanker to reach the Axis forces in several days—and scored heavy hits on a merchant ship at Tobruk.

A strong four-motored force from Britain pounded the Italian embarkation part of Genoa where Axis broadcasts admitted major damage had been done.

SHOWS HEROISM

Aaron Moses, son of Mrs. Lillian Moses, 612 Layton avenue, Monroe, distinguished himself after an allied raid on German-held Lille, France, last October 9, by stopping a leaking fuel line with his bare hands. In this manner he saved the lives of the crew which was landed safely. His hands were frozen but his action was applauded by his fellows. He told of his exploit over an international radio hook-up recently.

49 SKILLED JOBS OPEN TO NAVY MEN!

EVERY MAN A SPECIALIST

The United States Navy is an organization of experts. Almost every man is trained to become a specialist in his specific job. If you have had previous training or experience in a trade when you enlist, you will be given a chance to continue in the same type of work. If you have not had previous experience, you may qualify for training under skilled Navy instructors for the kind of job for which you are best fitted.

There are seven branches of Naval Service for enlisted men comprising 49 different classes of jobs—or ratings. The men who hold these ratings are known as Petty Officers. There are four grades of Petty Officers—Third Class, Second Class, First Class and Chief—through which a man may advance according to his skill and experience.

Most men enlist as Apprentice Seamen. As such, you are automatically promoted with an increase in pay after two months of preliminary training. Thereafter, you may advance through trade school training or practical experience at sea as rapidly as your ability permits up through the various classes of Petty Officer. Men who qualify by reason of special training or experience in a trade may become Petty Officers in their particular specialty, provided there is a vacancy, immediately upon enlistment.

GOOD PAY . . . QUICK PROMOTION

You'll go ahead fast in the Navy. The Navy wants you to become skilled in your trade. And it will move you up as rapidly as you can learn your job. You don't have to ask for promotions. If you're willing and able, they'll come to you automatically. And each one is accompanied by a raise in pay.

★ ENLIST WITH THE "SEABEES" SEABEES ★

PREVIOUS TRAINING NOT ESSENTIAL

Remember, you do not need previous training in civil life to advance from Apprentice Seaman to a Petty Officer rating. In most cases your advancement will depend upon two things: (1) initial training the Navy gives you after you have enlisted; (2) proof of your ability to apply that training.

Except for a few ratings, there are no special educational requirements. However, practically all Navy jobs call for use of arithmetic, mathematics, elementary physics and science. So, if you have a basic knowledge of these subjects, it will help you to get more out of the training the Navy will give you.

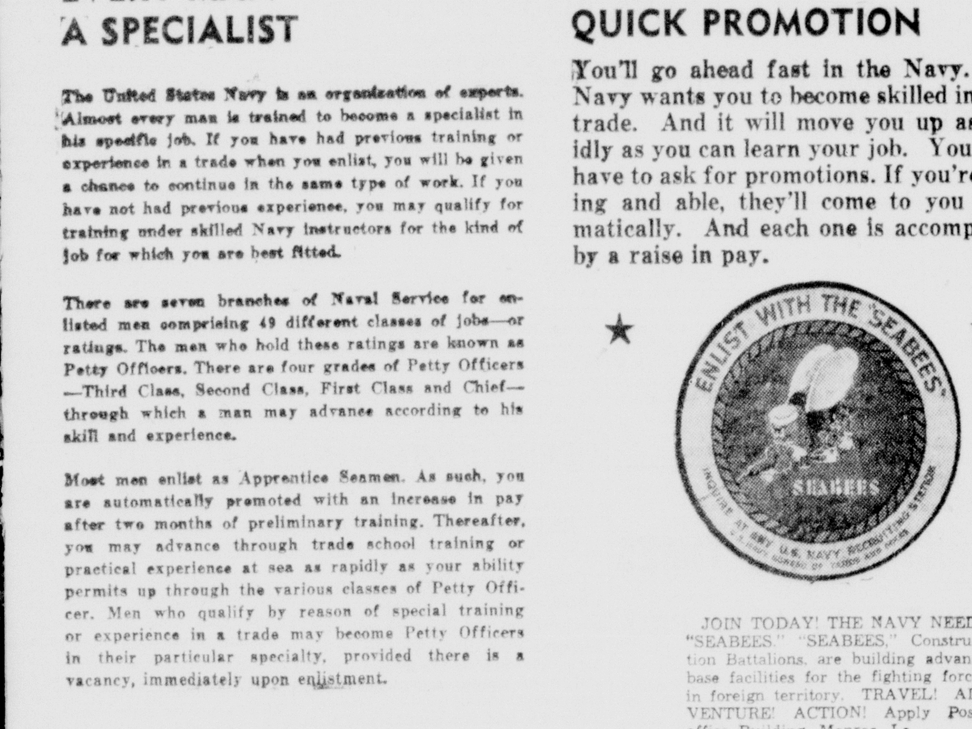

In addition, if you have taken high school or college courses in any subject which has a special bearing on a particular Navy job, it will naturally help you to get ahead faster. For example, a course in manual training will be helpful to the man who wants to be a carpenter's mate. Knowledge of how to read blueprints will be valuable to machinists and metalsmiths, etc.

PAPERS PRAISED IN SCRAP DRIVE

Parrish Fuller Extends Congratulations For 'Amazing Success'

NEW ORLEANS, Nov. 7.—(AP)—Congratulations to Louisiana newspapers which led Louisiana's scrap drive to "amazing success" were extended today by Parrish Fuller, chairman of the Louisiana Salvage committee of the national defense council.

The three week's drive was concluded two weeks ago with awards soon to be announced.

Through George W. Healy, Jr., managing editor of the Times Picayune here and chairman of the newspaper committee, Fuller said:

"May I take this opportunity, through you, to thank the Louisiana newspapers, daily and weekly, for an amazing accomplishment in the successful gathering of a critical war material. May I also praise their staffs for the personal time and effort that was so industriously given to make this vital war effort so successful.

"From the start of our conservation work in March, you have so patriotically given of your influence, resources and space, which has greatly contributed to Louisiana already shipping, from April to September, more than 100 pounds per person according to Inter-State Commerce commission reports and car loadings furnished us by the railroads.

"By your wise judgment of backing the school children and teachers in this particular drive, you developed a remarkable organization of coordination between the schools, the parish agriculture agents, the U. S. agriculture war boards and the salvage committees.

"The conservation division wants you to thank the members of your committee and all of those organizations associated with you for this great mobilization of the people's efforts in a critical war need."

This & that: One of the things for which this column was originally intended was to answer questions its readers might have.

The column doesn't know whether the News-Star and World cover the field so thoroughly that no one has any questions to ask, or whether readers simply don't know how to get their questions answered when they do have them.

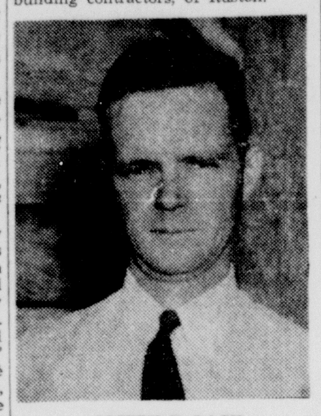

At any rate, this space is available for answering any questions that may occur to any one about any phase of the Monroe field, providing the information does not assist the enemy, or any of his agents into whose hands these pages might fall.

In this connection, by the way, any one who reads the public relations regulations issued by headquarters in Washington will be surprised to find how little there is about a military establishment that cannot be told. of training and so on, and technical The few things that are "censored" have to do with size, strength, state matters, such as performance figures, new equipment and methods and the like.

The intention of the officers responsible for public relations policy appears to be this: tell the people all you can about the Army because it is their Army. They have a right to know. Only don't tell things that might be of assistance to the enemy.

So shoot your questions in if you have any.

JOSEPH E. LACY

The story of Mr. Lacy and his job on the field, that of grading and drainage of the greater part of the flying area, occupied this space two weeks ago.

Before taking up the background and present activities of Mr. Williams, however, this column wishes to correct an omission made in that article, to wit, there was no picture of Mr. Lacy. Accordingly, a likeness of that gentleman is included herewith, along with one of his close collaborators, Mr. Williams.

The last twelve months have witnessed the accomplishment of four or five ordinary years' work in paving by T. L. James, due to the fact that during these recent months the company's paving activities have been concentrated on airfields.

With a million square yards of paving done in the past year on various projects, the company (and Messrs. Williams and Lacy), have done the Monroe field job in record time.

Mr. Williams' particular responsibility is the supervision of the actual paving. In this he has more than 11 years experience, for he joined T. L. James the Monday morning after he was graduated from Louisiana Polytechnic institute in 1931, and has been in the paving end of the business ever since.

El Dorado, Ark., is the birthplace of Mr. Williams, and the date is February 3, 1910. The boy was educated in Gibsland, La., and at Louisiana Polytech. In college he was president of his class during his last three years and managed the school band. For an undergraduate engaged in the notoriously demanding curriculum of an engineering course, that's a pretty tight schedule. Furthermore, Mr. Williams belonged to a musical, an engineering and a social fraternity as well.

On Easter Sunday, 1940, he married the former Miss Enajames Black, of

GEORGE D. WILLIAMS

Coushatta, La., at Baton Rouge. They have a three-months-old daughter.

A brother-in-law of the engineer, Captain Charles Black of the Medical corps, United States army, is in the Solomons area. Another brother-in-law, Lieutenant Elliot Black, is a flying instructor at Greenville, Miss.

The Army Emergency Relief section of the Navigation school had its first meeting the other day. The principal subject on the agenda was to get organized for the job of providing assistance to dependents of men in the service in the Monroe area where such assistance is needed because of casualties, sudden change of station and distant separation of the service men.

Even if these dependents living in the Monroe area do not need assistance, the Navigation School section wants their names and addresses. This is to facilitate speedy action in case assistance should be needed.

Any such dependents are requested to get in touch with the Army Emergency Relief section, AAF Navigation school, Monroe, La., by letter or telephone. Phone number 6400.

One of the first things the Army Emergency Relief section did at its first meeting was to acknowledge with thanks a contribution of $137.00 from the Ouachita Parish Salvage commission.

This contribution represented proceeds from the sale of scrap by the commission. It came in the form of a check from T. H. Scott, of the Scott Truck and Tractor company, Inc., who is chairman of the Parish committee.

MRS. DOCIA DAVIS CLAIMED BY DEATH

Mrs. Docia Davis, 67, mother of Mrs. Tom Breard of Monroe, died in a local sanitarium yesterday after a lingering illness. Mrs. Davis claimed Eros as her home but had lived the past six months with her daughter here.

Mrs. Davis is survived by two daughters, Mrs. Breard and Mrs. C. C. Hendrix of Shreveport; a son, W. H. Davis of Atlanta; a sister, Mrs. Bertha Horton of Anniston, Ala.; a granddaughter, Mrs. W. W. Curley of Munster, Ind.; and a grandson, W. H. Davis, Jr., of Hazelhurst, Miss.

Funeral services will be held this afternoon at 12:30 o'clock at Mulhearn Funeral home here with Rev. Ernest Duncan Holloway, pastor of the First Presbyterian church of Monroe, officiating. Interment will follow in Sibley cemetery near Choudrant.

Pall bearers will be Guy Campbell, Warren Breard, Raymond Hale Allen Phillips, Robert Edwards and Dick Brothers.

WILL NOT WRECK WORK STANDARDS

OWI Says Manpower Can Be Obtained Without Hurting Structure

WASHINGTON, Nov. 7.—(AP)—The office of war information said today this country could meet its manpower problem "without sweeping away the high standards which the United States has set up to protect working men and women."

In a report on the manpower situation, OWI said:

"The United States has great unused resources after spending the first two years of this country's war production in taking up the slack in its labor force. * * *

"The talk about manpower in America is not interpreted as a sign of alarm at a serious shortage such as Germany has known for more than three years. It is merely evidence that America is preparing to meet a problem before it develops in serious form."

Contrasting the status of labor in dictator countries with that prevailing here, the report said:

"Germany has, of necessity, forced the workers to put in the maximum possible number of hours. Latest figures released by the United States department of labor show the average worker in our aircraft industry is working 46.7 hours per week; the shipbuilder 48.5; the iron and steel worker, 42; the automobile worker (now on war work) 43.3; and the electrical machinery worker, 46.1.

"The average industrial working day in Japan was 12 hours, with 15 in certain essential industries such as steel. The development of the war has maintained and even increased these hours.

"The German worker, his unions destroyed, forced to belong to the labor front, has no voice in government decisions. * * * The American worker, both as an individual and through his powerful trade unions, makes his voice heard.

"There has been no relaxation of federal laws in American covering child labor. * * * Germany, too, has a national child labor law but Japan by 1935 had boys under 16 making up 8 per cent of factory workers."

President Roosevelt, in a press conference Friday, said it had been proven that production from a work week beyond 48 hours does not increase after the first few weeks or months.

Coincidental with the OWI's report came word of labor problems in the transportation system. The office of defense transportation said that eventually at least 300,000 women would be holding down jobs in railroad shops, terminals and yards and in airplane hangars, in addition to women office workers. Already engaged in the maintenance division of the industry are 120,000 women, ODT said, and 180,000 more will be called to replace men entering the armed services.

From Chicago, the employment service of the railroad retirement board announced it had written to about 14,000 pensioners who once filled critical jobs in the railroad industry to ask whether they wished to return to active duty.

The OWI summarized the nation's manpower requirements in this way:

"Today the United States faces the need of supplying a working and fighting force of 62,500,000 by December, 1943.

"To get the additional 5,400,000 million, the nation must dip into its potential labor reserve of 31,900,000 millions—the 2,000,000 farm labor operators working sub-marginal land and producing only 3 per cent of the commercial farm crop, the 4,400,000 non-farm housewives under 45 with no children under 16, the 9,100,000 non-farm housewives with children, the 9,000,000 non-farm housewives over 45 and the 6,900,000 students between the ages of 14 and 17."

RUSSIA HOLDING ON ALL FRONTS

lapse, was only of local importance, it reported that the Germans were bringing in fresh reserves to make up for the "tremendous losses" they have sustained in recent operations.

Earlier reports in the Nalchik plains battle told of the surprise move of the Russians in throwing the two armored trains into the engagement. Two Soviet armored trains, in a 6-hour battle, knocked out ten German tanks and armored cars, brought down a German plane and dispersed "about two companies of infantry," the afternoon communique said. Nowhere in that critical sector was a German gain acknowledged.

Northeast of Tuapse, close to the Black sea, the Russians continue to exterminate surrounded German forces. Some 170 Germans were killed and booty captured in the latest fighting.

In one sector the Soviets said they rushed a surrounded mountain village from the north and south capturing it.

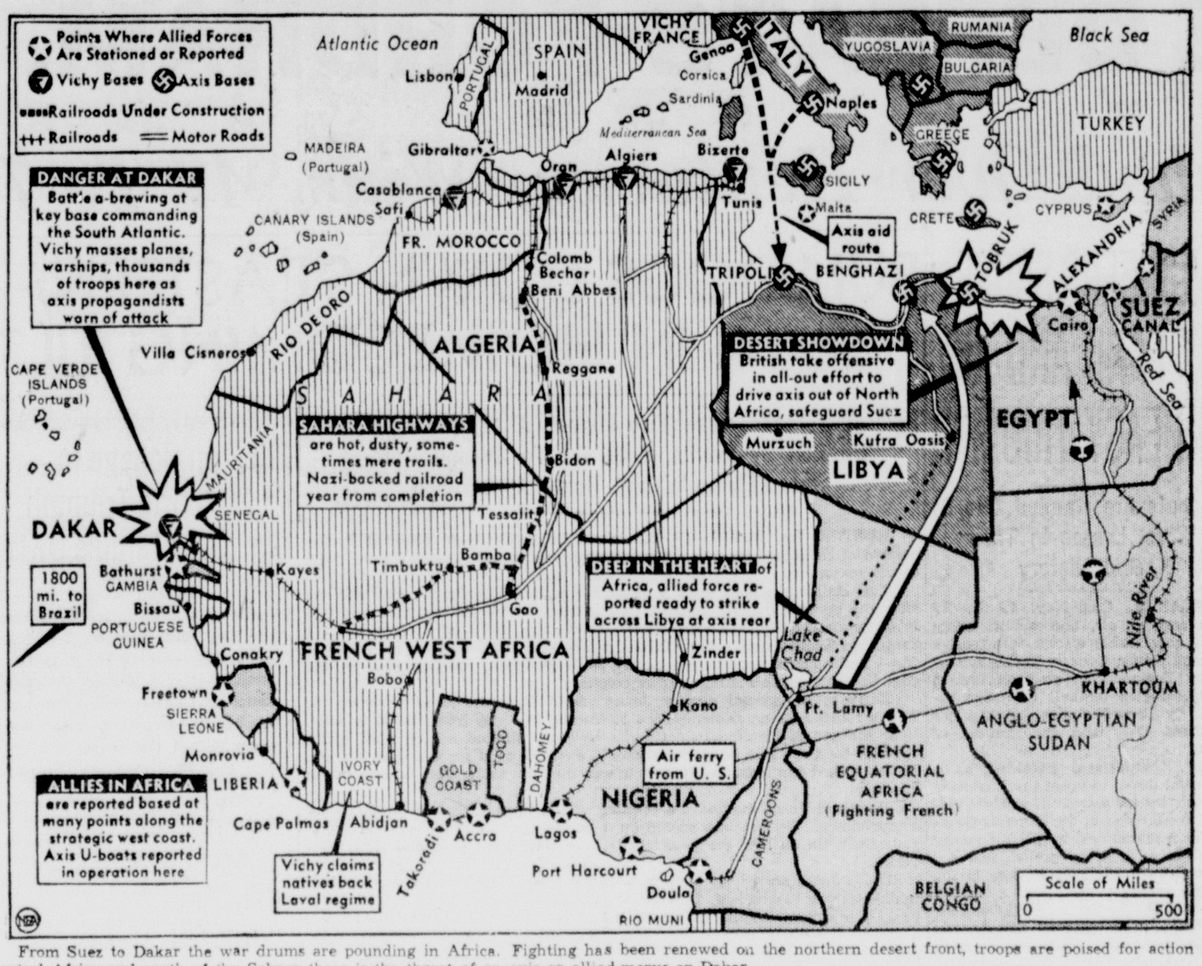

The Germans likewise were reported installed in the Mozdok region where their penetration into the Caucasus has been deepest.

The Germans again hinted that the Russians were massing for a winter offensive northwest of Moscow in the area of the sources of the Dvina and Volga rivers. German planes were said to have attacked troop concentrations and movements.

The Berlin communique said German infantry ousted the Russians from a western Caucasus height in a heavy rain. In the Nalchik area, an armored train and 30 tanks were declared destroyed "in defense against many counter-attacks east of Alagir. (The Stalingrad fighting was described as local.)

Two fortified positions were captured and a company of Nazi infantry was destroyed in the north Stalingrad factory district, dispatches said. The communique said nine blockhouses were destroyed in the southern part of the narrow, 15-mile-long Volga bend. Northwest of Stalingrad, Russian guns and mortars were credited with wrecking eight blockhouses and batteries and "annihilating about a battalion of German infantry."

ACTION IN AFRICA: WAR SPREADS ACROSS THIS VAST CONTINENT

From Suez to Dakar the war drums are pounding in Africa. Fighting has been renewed on the northern desert front, troops are poised for action in central Africa and south of the Sahara there is the threat of an axis or allied morve on Dakar.

AFRICA IS MADE SECOND FRONT

guns are pointing at Rommel's back with a threat to his future even greater than that of the British guns on his front. Upon him, his Mediterranean supply lines shattered by Allied bombs and submarine, a good portion of his planes grounded for lack of fuel, rest Hitler's hopes of defending the second front.

Hitler is prepared in the west, but no landing barges sweep across the English channel in brave but ghastly attempt to retrace the route of the 1940 B. E. F. Hitler himself, even while Britain waited with old American Springfield rifles with which to defend herself, scored that channel crossing down as suicidal. There may come a day for it, when Allied bombers have poured sufficient ruin on Hitler's continental bases, factories, gun emplacements and supply lines. There may be a third front, or a fourth, or a fifth, but Africa is the second, and its extension may be the last.

With the Axis and all its sympathizers swept from the south short of the Mediterranean, Hitler will face a series of new threats which will require defensive measures so great as to dwarf what he has been forced to do along the English channel and the North sea. He will not be safe anywhere, from the Atlantic to the Russian front. Gibraltar, southern France, Italy, still-fighting Yugoslavia, the ancient land route through the Balkans either by way of Greece or Turkey, the Caucasus—all will offer threatening routes for the invasion which the Allies one day will send against him—a day which may not be far off.

The Allied attitude toward the neutrals involved in this scheme of things also appeared to be cleared. To some, like Turkey, who has been waiting for years to see which way the tide of victory may turn, Allied domination of Africa may be the deciding factor.

To others it may bring sleepless nights of soul-searching.

The action spoke loudly of Allied determination that strategic territories which offer comfort to the enemy may no longer hide behind a spurious neutrality. It placed a new emphasis on Secretary Hull's speech of last July 23, in which he warned the neutrals that their positions were "absurd and suicidal," and reminded them that "there is no chance for liberty for any people anywhere save through the victory of free peoples. Never did a plainer duty to fight against its foes devolve upon all peoples who prize liberty and all who aspire to it."

And so in Vichy the men who kneel to Hitler may cry out tonight against what they will call the "perfidy" of their former Allies, but millions of Frenchmen will be happy that, through their empire, they once again provide a base for the A. E. F.

And over the line, in a Spain ravaged by a recent civil war and still torn by internal dissension, Generalissimo Franco may recall the warning of Secretary Hull, may take heed of the experience of his northern neighbors who sought to "collaborate" with Germany.

Certainly he will remember Gibraltar—the one bridgehead on the continent of Europe where the Allies would not have to fight their way in.

"His majesty's government subscribe in full to the policy and ideals of the president's statement.

as reported in navy communiques stands at 529.

An earlier communique announced that army troops had made an eastward advance on Guadalcanal in what appeared to be a drive to slash off the eastern arm of a Jap pincer movement against the American-held airfield. This account also disclosed that light Japanese attacks on the American western flank Thursday night (Guadalcanal time) had been repulsed and that United States aircraft were continuously bombing and strafing Jap troop concentrations and supply centers.

The Japanese renewed air attacks on American positions Thursday when 27 bombers and fighters came over but caused no damage. It was the first air attack there since October 29.

The navy statement summarizing Japanese killed gave a breakdown of the total which reflected clearly the periods of most intense action in the hard-fought campaign for control of the strategic jumping-off place in the south Pacific.

During the latest period of intensive operations which began October 22 and continued through the 27th, a total of 2,000 Japanese were killed.

In severe fighting which resulted the night of September 13-14 when the enemy made a major effort to take the airfield, 500 Japanese were killed.

On the morning of August 21, after the Japs had put ashore a force of 700 troops near the mouth of Tenaru river to strike at the airfield from the east, 670 Japanese were killed. In fact, this entire force was wiped out, as it had been previously reported that the 30 not killed were captured.

Of the remaining 2,018 Japs in the total of 5,188 dead, 1,000 were killed during the American occupation of positions on the islands of Tulagi, Gavutu, Makambo and Tanambogo August 7 and 8.

The rest, 1,018, were killed in various actions beginning with the aerial attacks preliminary to the invasion and continuing up to today. These actions included aerial strafing of enemy forces, naval bombardment of enemy-held areas, and minor skirmishes, snipings and small-scale engagements including hand-to-hand combat.

The navy said that the figure 5,188 was arrived at by "an actual count of enemy killed in actions ashore and does not include estimates of those killed in enemy-controlled areas where no count could be made."

The estimates not included would cover, for instance, the enemy troops killed at bases in the northern Solomons by aerial bombardment.

The American advance to the eastward, made against light resistance, placed United States forces not more than four miles inland and roughly parallel to the north coast of the island where the Japs have established around Koli point a beachhead from which to strike at the American east flank.

If successful, this latest American action, following up earlier attacks on Japan's Koli point forces, could well have the effect of confining the enemy within a small area from which he could neither advance toward the American-held airfield along the coast nor strike it from the rear by moving through the jungles.

A navy communique giving the latest reports of developments on the Solomons islands battleground said that the army advance was made Friday, Guadalcanal time, and carried the troops across the Malimbiu river. This fixed the inland limit of the advance since the river, which opens into the sea at Koli point, is only four miles long.

Fighting on the American western flank, where the main opposing forces had been hotly engaged all week, appeared to have decreased somewhat in intensity following the American offensive which began November 1 and two nights of Japanese counter-attacks.

On these night actions, the communique said that "during the night of November 5-6 United States marines repulsed light attacks against our western flank in the vicinity of Point Cruz."

In the air, United States planes were reported bombing and strafing enemy troops and supplies without permitting the Japs any breathing spell whatever.

The Japs, unable to press any such relentless aerial campaign as this because they have no airfield near at hand, attempted to renew their heavy bomber raids on American positions Thursday but failed to inflict any damage. Their planes, having suffered heavily in last week's main Solomon islands battle, had undertaken no raid on Guadalcanal since October 29. Clouds prevented United States fighters from contacting the 27 enemy bombers and fighters which came over Thursday.

Today's communique gave a better indication than usual of the geographical extent of the battleground over which such bitter fighting has raged since the American marines began this country's first offensive of the war by invading the Solomon islands just three months ago today.

The American line facing the sea and lying between the airfield and the coast runs, it now appears, between Point Cruz on the west and some place near Koli point on the east—about 12 1-2 miles. From these two points the line shifts roughly in a semi-circle to protect the strategic airfield from attack from the jungle to the south, southwest and southeast.

LOCAL BOARDS TO DECIDE ON TIRES

tires now on cars, which will be done with material made almost entirely of reclaimed rubber. Generally, car owners will not be eligible for replacement tires if their casings can be made serviceable by recapping.

When replacements are necessary, the type of tire granted will depend upon the amount of gasoline allotted to the applicant. Those with the highest gasoline ration will qualify for the best grade of tire.

A car owner with a gasoline allowance of 560 miles a month or less and whose tires are worn to the recapping point will be entitled to a recapping certificate, and if the casings are unfit for recapping, he will be entitled to a certificate to purchase a Grade 3 tire. Used tires, recapped tires, and new tires made of reclaimed rubber are Grade 3. This mileage applies to all motorists with a basic "A" book, as well as those holding both "A" and "B" books.

Passenger car owners who get gasoline for more than 560 miles but less than 1,000 miles a month will be eligible for recaps, or for a Grade 2 tire if recapping is not possible. This grade includes tires with a retail list price not exceeding 85 per cent of the price of standard Grade 1 casings, damaged new tires, "factory seconds," and all new tires manufactured before January 1, 1938. "Change over" tires which have gone less than 1,000 miles also are in Grade 2.

Car owners with gasoline allotments exceeding 1,000 miles a month will be eligible for recapping, or if their casings are not recappable, for Grade 1 tires.

All motorists will be eligible for inner tubes. They may buy new or used tubes at their option.

One exception to the general pattern is that in the case of a motorist who has received the basic "A" gasoline ration the local board may not issue a certificate for a Grade 3 tires for a spare (5th tire) until after the 25th of the month, and then only if it has part of its quota remaining after all other needs have been filled. This does not apply when the application is for a recapping service on a spare tire.

Cars held by dealers for resale are not eligible either for recapping or replacement tires, but they become eligible upon transfer and the issuance of a gasoline ration book to the new owner.

200,000 MARRIED MEN FACE CALL

strenuously to this restriction and has bent every effort to convince house members they ought to vote to eliminate it. The matter will come to a test in the house Monday on a motion by Representative Rankin, Democrat, Mississippi, to accept this and other senate amendments, including a provision directing draft boards to defer irreplaceable agricultural workers.

Selective service officials said it would take from 30 to 40 days after the bill becomes law to "process" the 18 and 19-year-old selectees and actually begin to get them into the army.

Those who have become 18 since the last registration may be asked to register shortly and there has been talk of installing an automatic system under which each youth would be required to report to his local draft board for registration within five days after his 18th birthday.

Major General Lewis B. Hershey, director of selective service, recently told congressional committees it would be necessary to call 100,000 married men without children to fill November quotas. He testified before the senate military committee October 14 that if the draft age were lowered from 20 to 18 immediately, selective service could begin calling 18 and 19-year-olds in December.

Reynolds said he did not believe the bill could become law until late next week, nearly a month after Hershey's appearance, thus delaying the induction schedule that long.

Hershey said that in order to increase the army to 7,500,000 by the end of 1943, it would be necessary to call about 200,000 selectees a month beginning in December.

He estimated that 800,000 to 900,000 men 18 and 19 would be available for these calls, counting out those in the age class already enlisted and those likely to be rejected as unfit. For that reason he said he believed he could delay calling married men, except those inducted in November, until April or later if the younger men were made available at once.

With about 300 youths reaching the age of 18 daily, Hershey said about 1,200,000 not now registered would be available during 1943. He estimated that these, with 800,000 now available, would produce between 1,300,000 and 1,500,000 selectees in 1943, when voluntary enlistments, the phyisaclly unfit and others had been deducted.

He said about 3,200,000 men would have to be inducted before the end of 1943 to bring the army up to the 7,500,000 goal announced by General George C. Marshall, chief of staff, the remainder coming from among the married groups and the presently deferred classes.

There was some doubt among legislators, however, that the army ever would be increased to 7,500,000 men. If developments arose which made it unnecesary to muster that many, the 200,000 married men to be inducted in December might otherwise not have been called at all, these legislators said.

BELIEVE ARMADA PLANS INVASION

nervously impressing the French with the danger of an Anglo-American attack on Vichy North Africa, most frequently mentioning Dakar and Casablanca on the Atlantic coast.

But a glance at the map shows Oran, 250 miles east of Gibraltar, Algiers, 500 miles east of Gibraltar; and Tunis, 900 miles east of Gibraltar in Tunisia, as points or localities about which the Germans might be worried if the Allies have decided to disregard Vichy's purely formal neutrality.

Any of these might furnish a quick bridgehead in Northwest Africa to open a "second front" against German Marshal Erwin Rommel just as he is staggering under the blows of disaster administered by Lieutenant-General Bernard L. Montgomery in Egypt.

But nearer home to the Axis is Tripoli itself, the chief North African base of Rommel and Mussolini. Tripoli is about 1,100 airline miles from Gibraltar and seemingly too much in the shadow of German and Italian airpower for the Allies to risk a direct sea attack.

But General Montgomery wrote in his Cairo communique yesterday that no enemy air activity had been reported at all, suggesting that the Axis air force in Africa had been rubbed out. On the other hand the Axis may be simply saving its planes to deal with a threat that it deems more dire even than the danger to Rommel.

Of course, the Allies could be planning a direct attack on Sicily or Italy itself.

Whatever any immediate plans may be dispatches from Cairo and London since Montgomery started his Egyptian offensive make it plain that driving the Axis from North Africa would clear the way to the opening of a second front in Europe.

The Allies could then attack not only in Norway, the low countries or northern France; they could also attack in southern France, Italy, Greece or the Balkans, depending on their choice.

The Berlin broadcast accounts of the movements of the convoy were somewhat at variance with dispatches from La Linea, across the bay from Gibraltar in Spain.

Berlin implied that the entire naval concentration noted in recent days at Gibraltar had left Thursday night. It said a big air umbrella covered the transports, freighters, tankers and warships which included the British battleship Rodney.

La Linea dispatches said the Rodney, two aircraft carriers, two cruisers and many destroyers and auxiliaries were still at Gibraltar, but said a huge fleet including the aircraft carrier Argus, five heavy cruisers, 27 destroyers and 24 merchantmen, including several tankers, had departed on its mysterious mission in the Mediterranean.

American Flying Fortresses and other four-motored bombers were said in the Spanish dispatches to have taken off in relays from the fortress, presumably to act as escort to the convoy.

The Vichy radio has reported the landing of 40 American bombers in one day at Gibraltar as well as the landing there of American troops from several transports.

General Walter Krueger, Third Army commander, started August 6, and were the longest and largest held this year.

In a series of strenuous training problems covering every type of modern combat, touch, realistic mock battles were fought out in a rugged section in which troops lived and operated in the field as they would on battlefronts.

McNair in a final summary of the games here said that the nation already has more men under arms than ever before in its history and now was beginning to feel the same pinch in meeting manpower demands which other belligerents have felt for some time.

"From now on," he said, "we must consider not only our military needs, but our civilian needs. We must balance one with the other so that either front suffers.

"The rapid progress displayed by the troops in this year's maneuvers convinces me of the practicability of shortening the training period. We have found that a 35-week minimum training period now is equivalent to a longer period a year ago."

EISENHOWER GETS BAPTISM OF FIRE

WASHINGTON, Nov. 7.—(AP)—The North African invasion served as a baptism of fire for 52-year-old Lieutenant General Dwight David Eisenhower, commander in chief of the Allied force.

Eisenhower's military career of more than a quarter century included service in the first World War, but his duty kept him in this country as a trainer of tank and other troops while the actual fighting took place largely in France.

In recent years, the American commander in Europe saw service in the Phillippines as the right hand of General Douglas MacArthur, but returned to this country before the Japanese invasion of the islands.

Deemed among the most brilliant of army strategists, he was designated commanding general of the European theater on June 25, with headquarters at London, after for months as chief of the army general staff's war plans division, subsequently changed to the operations division.

A native of Tyler, Texas, Eisenhower was graduated from the military academy and commissioned a second lieutenant of infantry in 1915.

In the first World War his service included instructing reserve officers at Fort Oglethorpe, Ga., other officers at Fort Leavenworth, Kas., and organizing and training engineer and tank corps troops.

His star rose when he became an aide to MacArthur, then chief of staff, in 1935.

BIG U. S. PLANES SMASH AT BREST

seen in reports of air alarms and anti-aircraft fire in western Switzerland and the fact that French radio stations at Toulouse, Lyon and Vichy went off the air.

The sirens sounded in Bern and Geneva after 8 p. m. and in a number of other Swiss localities, along the route the R. A. F. flies over he Alps.

Meanwhile, the air ministry news service disclosed that R. A. F. fighters and fighter-bombers had been busy during the day with a series of low-level sweeps over Belgium and occupied France.

Seventeen freight engines were damaged or destroyed by cannon and machine gun fire, the announcement said.

Hurricane bombers dropped explosives on hangars at a Belgian coastal airdrome and hit a tower from which anti-aircraft guns were firing at them. Whirlwinds bombed and hit a railway line south of Valognes, in the Cherbourg Peninsula, and damaged a locomotive.

Other targets for the fighters were German army trucks, electricity generators, pylons and gun posts on the cliffs near Cap D'Antifer.

Britain's heaviest bombers dropped ton after ton of high explosives last night on the northern Italian supply port of Genoa in a "concentrated and effective" attack doubling the destruction caused by two previous raids late last month.

Fires visible for 120 miles were seen by homing pilots, climbing over the snow-capped Alps in nasty weather on the return of their 1,500-mile excursion.

Photographs made in the day-like light of flares and numerous fires showed great destruction from raids of Oct. 22 and 23, the air ministry said. The latest attack was said to have caused at least as much more damage as had been done.

The Italian radio broadcast this high command version:

"Particular damage was reported in the center of the town and in the eastern part notable damage was caused. Casualties among the civilian population so far ascertained are 20 killed and 50 wounded. The behavior of the population was very disciplined."

Two planes were lost, but the British considered this a small price for the destruction wrought to the principal supply port from the running Axis army in Egypt.

One pilot saw three two-ton bombs burst in a patch of fires. The British did not say how many planes attacked, but the Berlin radio said wave after wave of the bombers passed over Vichy and it took 45 minutes for them to clear. This suggested upwards of 100 were used.

After previous raids on Genoa, Mussolini sent King Vittorio Emanuele II and the queen to calm the terrified Italians. It was the fourth raid since Oct. 22 on northern Italy with its ports, arsenals and plane factories as prime targets.

LOUISIANA STATE DEFEATS FORDHAM, 26-13

TIGERS SCORE IN FINAL PERIOD TO DOWN RAM SQUAD

Sulcer Harris Leads Bengals As Injuries Keep Dark Out Of Game

By Hugh Fullerton, Jr.

NEW YORK, Nov. 7.—(AP)—Backed up in their own territory through most of the first half, Louisiana State's Tigers came through in the last two periods to make Fordham's Rams look like so much cold mutton and defeat the New Yorkers, 26 to 13 before 16,400 spectators at the Polo Grounds today.

Fordham racked up a touchdown on two long passes late in the first quarter and appeared to have the game well under control at half time. The Tigers had been inside the 50-yard line only twice; they hadn't been able to gain consistently and they had been badly out-kicked.

But as the second half got under way, Sulcer Harris, 157-pound junior halfback from Baton Rouge, La., who was a starter today only because Sophomores Joe Glamp and Alvin Dark were sidelined by injuries, took charge of the L. S. U. attack. He engineered a third-period touchdown that put the Tigers into the game and then personally conducted L. S. U. to three more in the final quarter before Fordham could score again.

In the actual scoring, Harris passed to Woodrow Holland for the first Louisiana State touchdown and to Joe Nagata for the second, handed the ball to Walt Gorinski for the third and place-kicked the extra points after two tallies. But that was only half the story. On the way to these scores he completed three aerials and carried the ball for several good gains. In all he completed ten of 16 passes, lugged the ball 25 times and called the signals.

L. S. U. got its first break midway through the third quarter when Joe Andrejko fumbler and Willie Miller recovered on Fordham's 34. Three plays, two of them passes from Harris to Steve Van Buren and W. Holland produced the touchdown.

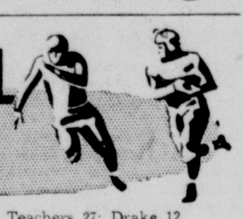

The Tigers took the lead on the fourth play of the final quarter, winding up a 75-yard march when Harris completed a 20-yard pass to Nagata who made a pretty running catch and galloped the last 19 yards.

The other two scores grew out of interceptions of Fordham's passes from deep in Ram territory. Lyman Richardson grabbed one on the 36 and ran to the two. A Harris-Gorinski reverse produced the touchdown. A few minutes later Center Jim Talley intercepted another of Steve Fili-

LONGHORNS DOWN BAYLOR, 20 TO 0

Defeat Of Golden Bears Gives Texas First Place In Conference Race

AUSTIN, Tex., Nov. 7.—(AP)—Texas took over first place in the Southwest conference football race today as Baylor's Golden Bears came to the end of their tethers, hobbled by a Longhorn team that laughed at the Bruin's vaunted goal-line stands and won 20 to 0.

Leading the charge was Roy McKay, Longhorn fullback, speedy Ken Matthews, and Jackie Field, trackman-halfback who smashed tackle and circled ends.

Texas first scored on a 46-yard parade with Raymond Jones, Max Minor, Ken Matthews and McKay carrying the mail. McKay raced around right end for 19 yards to get the touchdown.

The second Texas counter came from a 55-yard surge with Field and Matthews doing the work. Field rapped tackle for a first down then combined with Matthews for another on the Baylor 24. Here Matthews turned in the prettiest Texas run of the game. He went inside left tackle and end, cut to the sidelines and romped over with two Baylors grabbing futilely at him. McKay added the point.

A fumble by Kit Kittrell, who was chief ground-gainer for Baylor, paved the way for the final touchdown. Lewis Mayne got off a fine kick that Kittrell couldn't hold and the ball went to Texas on the Bear 25. On the second play from scrimmage Mayne cut through tackle and raced to a touchdown. Field kicked the goal.

DUKE CRUSHES MARYLAND ELEVEN BY 42-0 COUNT

DURHAM, N. C., Nov. 7.—(AP)—Demonstrating a power reminiscent of other better days' Duke's Blue Devils roared back from the depths of their worst season in a decade and scored almost at will today in crushing a highly-regarded Maryland team 42-0 before a crowd of 7,500.

The Duke team, which entered the game stinging from three previous defeats, struck twice for touchdowns in the opening period, scored once in each of the next two quarters, and topped the day off with a two touchdown final stanza.

Tom Davis, Duke's smashing fullback from Wilson, N. C., led the touchdown parade. He scored first on a 10-yard dash, and in the third period sprinted 52 yards for another score.

ENGINEERS SCORE BY LAND AND AIR IN EASY TRIUMPH

Wildcats Are Handed One Of Worst Losses In Their Grid History

ATLANTA, Ga., Nov. 7.—(AP)—By land and by air, and almost every other conceivable means of offensive striking power, Georgia Tech's rough-riding Engineers breezed on toward an undefeated football campaign today by overwhelming Kentucky's Wildcats, 47-7, with the greatest of ease.

The Kentuckians, heralded as a potential threat to upset the Engineers in their try for a seventh straight victory, were never in the game as Georgia Tech maintained its perfect record with scores in every period, featured by a three-touchdown splurge in the second frame.

It was one of the worst defeats for Kentucky in its football history, but the Wildcats managed to rise up from an extremely "flat" performance to score once in the final period. Aside from that, Tech, with every man on the squad in action, completely dominated the action.

The Engineers' great line, the sensational Freshman Clint Castleberry and Sophomore Eddie Prokop, all combined with a scintillating performance by Miami's Davey Eldredge to bury the Kentuckians under devastating attack of good, old-fashioned football scoring.

Georgia Tech, its fine galaxy of backs performing with precision, its ends snagging passes and the line out charging the Wildcats all the way, even brought out the old Statue of Liberty play to score once on the Kentuckians.

"Golly," remarked Coach Ab Kirwan, "they must have been mad at us."

From the figures, it appeared that might have been the case, for Georgia Tech rolled up 538 yards by land and by air, 350 of the total coming on running. Tech amassed 18 first downs to 8.

The lineups:

Kentucky	Pos.	Ga. Tech
Sengel	LE	Marshall
Johnson	LT	Anderson
Colvin	LG	Hardy
Walker	C	Manning
Beck	RG	J. Jordan
Griffin	RT	West
Parr	RE	Helms
Moseley	QB	Stein
Tunstill	LH	Sheldon
C. Kuhn	RH	McHugh
Herbert	FB	Dodd

Score by quarters:

Kentucky	0	0	0	7—7
Georgia Tech	7	20	13	7—47

Kentucky scoring: Touchdown, Althaus (for Sengel). Point after touchdown, Kuhn (placement).

Georgia Tech: Touchdowns, Dodd (2), Eldredge (3), (for McHugh); McDonald (for Dodd); Castleberry (for Sheldon). Points after touchdown, Helms, Plaster (2), (for Dodd); R. Jordan (2), (for Helms).

HOOSIER TOUCHDOWN IN FINAL MINUTES BEATS MINNESOTA TEAM, 7-0

MINNEAPOLIS, Nov. 7.—(AP)—Indiana knocked Minnesota, the defending Big Ten champions, out of any chance for a share in the 1942 title by defeating the Gophers, 7 to 0 today, on a touchdown scored with only three and a half minutes to go.

The trusty right arm of Billy Hillenbrand turned the trick for the Hoosiers. The stage was set for Hillenbrand's tosses when Bob Cowan intercepted a Minnesota pass on the midfield stripe and ran it back to the Gopher 25.

Hillenbrand made six yards in two rusnes and then shot a pass which Pete Pihos took off his shoe tops as he fell on the eight yard line. The Hoosier hot shot then pitched another one to Pihos who caught it on the Gopher 5 and was tackled immediately.

He wriggled free and after stumbling and touching one hand to the turf, regained his balance and loped across the goal line. Lou Saban kicked the extra point.

With slightly more than three minutes left, the Gophers made a real bid to tie the score but failed.

OKLAHOMA 76; KANSAS STATE 0

NORMAN, Okla., Nov. 7.—(AP)—Oklahoma, lean and hungry from a touchdown famine all season, gorged itself today at the expense of an unhappy Kansas State Wildcat in a 76-0 massacre.

BULLDOGS DOWN S'EASTERN, 56-14, IN HOMECOMING TILT

Louisiana Tech Scores Two Minutes After Opening Kickoff On Run By Perritt, Goes On To Swamp Hammond Eleven In Last Home Appearance

RUSTON, La., Nov. 7.—(AP)—Louisiana Tech's Bulldogs defeated Southeastern of Hammond 56-14 in a homecoming game here today, final local game of the season.

The Bulldogs scored with a 46-yard run by John Perritt two minutes after the opening kickoff, and went on to smother the visitors, who had two brief scoring flashes. Tech's second touchdown followed Pearce Didier's pass from Southeastern's 40 to Talmadge Foreman, who went across from the five. Hollis Jones then passed nearly 50 to Foreman, standing close to the goal line, for another first quarter counter.

Early in the second quarter Jones passed from the 18 to Foreman for Tech's fourth. Later, Didier passed to Perritt who ran from the 20 to tally. Near the end of the first half, Charlie Newman blocked a Lion punt which rolled behind the goal line, where Max Brown fell on it for the sixth marker. Didier kicked the extra point, which was the first extra Tech scored in six attempts.

Raymond Peace marked the opening of the third with a 65-yard run for a touchdown. Southeastern scored on a long pass from Reisz to Dennis, that gave them the ball on the two, from where Wolf went over and Reisz converted.

Hollis Jones scored for Tech on a 16-yard run. The Lions turned a Tech fumble into a touchdown, with Reisz passing to Manmuski to count. Later Peace scored on a running play from the 10 and Didier kicked the extra point.

Indians Idle This Week; Arkadelphia Team Next On List

The Indians of Northeast Junior college, who scored their fourth straight victory of the season Friday afternoon with a close 19-13 win over the air-minded Lamar college Cardinals of Beaumont, Tex., have an open date on their schedule for next weekend and then they leave Monroe the following week for their first and only game of the season away from home.

When all Arkansas schools except the state university abandoned football at the beginning of the season and junked their schedules, it was announced here that all N. J. C. games would be played at home.

But Ouachita college of Arkadelphia, Ark., decided to return to the gridiron, reclaimed its place on the Northeast Junior college schedule, and, as a result, the Tribe will invade Arkadelphia on Friday, November 20.

Ouachita college and N. J. C. have met five times since their first game in 1934 and the wildest margin of victory either way was a 9 to 0 victory in 1940 for the Tribesmen.

Ouachita's Tigers have won three out of the five games played and the Tribe needs this next game to even the count. Ouachita victories were 7-0 in 1934, 12-7 in 1936 and 12-6 in 1939. N. J. C. won as Northeast Center of L. S. U. in 1935, 6-0 and then the 1940 game. The teams did not meet in 1937-38-41.

The reappearance of Ouachita college on the Tribe schedule forced cancellation of a game scheduled with Sunflower Junior college of Mississippi after Ouachita had first decided to quit the grid.

GEORGIA PRE-FLIGHT '11' BEATS AUBURN

COLUMBUS, Ga., Nov. 7.—(AP)—Georgia's Naval Pre-Flight school powerhouse, featuring some of the nation's outstanding gridders, bowled over Auburn 41-14 today in a free-scoring battle of offensive tactics. Some 6,500 fans saw the game.

Auburn's strength even in losing was evidenced by the fact that the Plainsmen out-rushed and out-passed the Sky Crackers, but the future pilots took advantage of every break and showed themselves masters of team play and the job of taking the fight to the enemy.

Billy Patterson, the former Baylor ace, sparked the Navy's offense, but he was ably assisted by an assortment of stars such as this neutral battleground probably has never entertained before. Noble Doss, the Texas U. flash, for example, scored two touchdowns, and another Texan, Ken Whitlow of Rice, former All-American center, intercepted three passes, one of which he ran back 65 yards for a touchdown.

Patterson started things off by taking the opening kickoff on his own five yard line and racing 95 yards for the score, behind perfect interference.

It didn't take many plays to give evidence that this was to be a wide open game, and the fans were rewarded soon after Pat's first dash when Jim Reynolds plunged over for Auburn's initial touchdown after a sustained drive through the line and around the flanks.

While the fact remains that the navy boys made the most touchdowns —and that's what counts on the score board—Auburn made 18 first downs to their opponents 13; gained 205 yards to 176 by rushing; 130 to 107 on passes.

Navy Squad Scores Once, Staves Off Penn Assaults To Win, 7-0

By Whitney Martin

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 7.—(AP)—A Navy eleven which wasn't bluffing when it made its one big threat of the game in the first period today astonished a near-capacity gathering of 74,000 in Franklin field by defeating a highly-favored Penn football team which was forever a menace, but never quite could make good.

The score was 7-0, the points resulting from a 59-yard march midway in the first quarter, the march climaxed by an 11-yard pass, H. A. Hemberg to Ben Martin. Martin took the ball in the end zone for the touchdown, Oreal Crepeau came in and place kicked the extra point, and the Middies dug in to protect that lead faithfully the remainder of the afternoon.

At times it appeared they would need outside help. Nearly every time the hard-driving Quakers got the ball they would start a drive which this time, the surprised fans said time after time, couldn't fail.

But the drives always did fail, bogged in the Navy's defense in depth by which the Middies would permit their aroused and possibly over-confident opponents to roll down the field, only to be swallowed without a trace when it appeared they were certain to go all the way.

VANDY DEFEATS OLE MISS, 19-0

Commodores Play By Spurts In Gaining Easy Win Over Rebels

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Nov. 7.—(AP)—The Vanderbilt Commodores proved themselves good mudders today in turning back the victory-starved Mississippi Rebels, 19 to 0, before approximately 6,000 spectators who braved unfavorable weather.

The Tennesseans played by spurts to push a touchdown across in the second period and two in the fourth. In between these markers they presented the Rebels with everything from intercepted passes to blocked punts but the damage amounted to naught.

Art Rebrovich set the stage for the first Vandy marker midway of the second period when he intercepted a Mississippi pass on the Vandy 28. J. P. Moore knocked off 10 yards and Bernie Rohling blasted through the line for a net of 26 to put the ball on the 36. He hit left guard, then cut back to his right and raced to the one-stripe from where he went over on the second attempt. Jack Jenkins' try for the point from placement was blocked.

The Commodores loafed through the third stanza, confining their efforts to punting, until Jimmy Webb moved into the spotlight. Fast afoot, the substitute back clicked off 21 yards through tackle, then went over guard for 23 and a touchdown. Jenkins made the point from placement. Alf Satterfield recovered a Mississippi fumble late in the game on the Rebel 17. Jack McDavid and J. A. Ball shared the attack that went to the one-marker from where the latter went over on fourth down.

Ole Miss threatened twice in the second period but neither time did they produce the power needed to crack the Commodore line which held when necessary.

Buck Pennel intercepted a Commodore pass on the Vandy 39 but Vandy came right back with an interception of its own after they were back within 22 yards of the double stripe. Later, the Rebels recovered a fumble on the Vandy 37 but they got no closer than the 24.

The third period produced another heart-breaker fo rthe Mississippians. Charles Conerly knocked off 25 yards to reach mid-field where he lateralled to Ray Poole. Poole went to the 25 and lateralled to no avail. Rebrovich ended the threat when he intercepted for Vandy on the four.

CLOSING DRIVE WINS FOR AONBARR OVER RIVERLAND

BALTIMORE, Nov. 7.—(AP)—Louisiana Farm's Riverland, fashioner of two of the biggest upsets of the racing year in the last week, had the tables turned on him today as he was edged out of the $4,130 Grayson handicap before a crowd of 15,000 persons at Pimlico.

The four-year old gelded son of Coldstream, the sensation of the turf after his startling triumphs over Whirlaway and Alsab, just didn't have the necessary speed when the chips were down in the stretch run of the mile and a half Grayson.

He was defeated by a veteran router, Miss Helen Hickman's Aonbarr, which was the second choice of the crowd. Aonbarr's margin at the wire was a neck, and Riverland held a six-length advantage over the third horse, Hal Price Headley's Equinox. H. M. Babylon's Abbe Pierre was last in the field of four.

The Grayson provided Riverland a valuable test for the Governor Bowie handicap at Pimlico on Wednesday.

On that day, the Louisiana Farm racer is scheduled to meet Calumet Farm's Whirlaway at a mile and five eighths. Each has beaten the other once.

RICE 40; ARKANSAS 9

FAYETTEVILLE, Ark., Nov. 7.—(AP)—Rice Institute's alert Owls turned Arkansas' 21st homecoming into a sad affair for the Razorbacks today by bagging an easy 40 to 9 football victory before approximately 4,000 fans.

Three touchdowns in the last quarter turned the game into a rout after Rice had held a 13-2 half-time lead. Both teams tallied once in the third stanza.

Boston College In 20-0 Grid Triumph Over Temple Owls

By Bill King

BOSTON, Nov. 7.—(AP)—After stubbing their toes on Temple's 10-yard-line during the first few minutes of play, Boston College's undefeated Eagles settled down to touchdown-a-period gait and overwhelmed the Owls, 28-0 before a 20,000 crowd at Fenway park today.

Coach Denny Myers' high-powered operators, while piling up a total yardage of 416 yards against 39, scored twice on one-foot bucks besides registering on a 25-yard pass from Mickey Connolly to Johnny Killelea and a 48-yard dash by Substitute Bernie Lanoue.

Shortly after they fumbled away their first scoring chance, the Eagles demanded another one by blocking one of Fullback George Sutch's punts on Temple's 35-yard line. Mike Holovak then banged to Temple's 25 and Connolly tossed his touchdown pass to Killilea. Another Sutch punt started the Eagles on their second touchdown jaunt late in the second period. After Ed Doherty ran it back four yards to Temple's 48, Lanoue twisted through the right side of his line and raced into the end zone.

Holovak was the first Eagle to bang over the last 12 inches on fourth down but before he did so in the third quarter, Connolly set the stage by passing from B. C.'s 40 to Charley Furbush, the left end, on Temple's five. The Eagle's final scoring drive, midway through the finale, started in mid-field with the ball within a foot of the Temple goal-line Boudreau went over. Connolly made three successful conversions and Commane one.

IRISH OVERPOWER FIGHTING CADETS IN 13-0 VICTORY

Army Bottles Up Bertelli But Fails To Halt Tricky Running Attack

By Gayle Talbot

NEW YORK, Nov. 7.—(AP)—Notre Dame's talented football forces gave a crowd of 76,000 an impressive exhibition of sheer power at Yankee stadium today in defeating a fighting but outclassed Army eleven 13 to 0 in the 29th renewal of their colorful gridiron rivalry.

In staking a further claim to high national ranking, the polished machine from South Bend proved that it could eat up vast distances without recourse to the passing arm of its great quarterback, Angelo Bertelli, and in holding the Cadets to three first downs the Irish defense looked nearly impregnable.

For a half, the soldiers managed by furious tackling in their own end of the field to hold the surging Green Shirts off their goal line, but in the third period the visitors drove 34 yards to score, and again in the waning minutes of the contest they plunged and bulled and finally passed the way a total of 80 yards for a second touchdown and a decisive victory.

There was no comparison in the statistics. The Notre Dame backs running from their new "T" formation, piled up 250 yards from scrimmage against Army's 68, and chalked up 14 first downs to the Cadets' three. Practically the entire game was played in Army territory, though the Cadets by one lightning stroke penetrated to the Notre Dame four-yard line late in the third quarter to send their supporters into momentary ecstacy.

Army obviously was determined to shackle the enemy sharpshooter, Bertelli, and succeeded to a remarkable degree. Out of 17 aerials attempted, Notre Dame completed only four for a total gain of 21 yards. But Bertelli's final peg was for a touchdown and besides, Army's intense occupation with the threat from the air made them a set-up for the visitors' tricky running game.

Army, suffering its second straight shutout defeat, did not make a first down until the third period, when Hank Mazur shot a 42-yard pass to John Hennessy deep in Notre Dame

MISSISSIPPI STATE EDGES TULANE, 7 TO 0

ABSENCE OF LOU THOMAS CRIPPLES GREENIES' PUNCH

Weak Punt Enables Maroons To Score On Wave In Second Quarter

By Elliott Chaze

NEW ORLEANS, Nov. 7.—(AP)—Minus Lou Thomas, their blond scoring punch, Tulane's Greenies went down, 7-0, before Mississippi State here today as a homecoming crowd of 28,000 looked on.

Yet, except for one flash of weakness, a shaky 11-yard punt by Milton Pittman in the second quarter, Tulane apparently would have held the defending Southeastern conference champions to a scoreless tie.

Pittman's pigmy punt bounced weakly out on his own 34 and State went all the way on three ground plays. Blondy Black, who had come in to tee off just such a drive, slammed 13 yards around left end to the 21. Charles Yancey slicked off tackle on a fake reverse to the 18 and Lamar Blount ran wide of right end to score standing.

State's Black, although hampered by leg injuries, looked anything but a cripple in the open. A few minutes before the end he faked a punt, whipped and twisted 59 yards downfield before he was knocked down on Tulane's 11 by Center Al Stolen. Tulane held and a State placekick effort by Fred Shuff hit the cross bar.

Lamar Blount, State wingback who scored the game's lone touchdown, appeared State's best all-around back, stabbing past the Tulane line consistently on reverses and batting down a couple of Greenie passes in the flat. Tulane's little Don Fortier, squat left halfback, the first freshman ever to start with a Tulane team, proved a solid enterprise.

In the final quarter Fortier's pitching threatened to deadlock the ball game as he hit Halfback Joe Renfroe and Fullback Julian Brignac with a pair of passes that netted 53 yards. But State's stonewall line in the danger zone held on the 13 where State's Black took over and ran the Maroons out of trouble.

The win was Mississippi State's fourth straight conference victory. They had beaten Vanderbilt, Florida and Auburn, after dropping early games to Alabama and L. S. U.

"I was a mighty worried man until it was all over," confessed Allyn McKeen, State coach. "Tulane played some fine football out there today. I think Tulane is the best team we have played with the exception of Alabama. And I was plenty satisfied to get that 7-0 decision.

"We just didn't have the punch to

LIONS FACE BYRD HERE THIS WEEK

Win In Game Friday Would Give Ouachita Eleven Double-A Title Of North Louisiana; Yellow Jackets Even With Locals On Scoring Records

Ouachita Parish High school of Monroe and Byrd High school of Shreveport meet here Friday afternoon at Brown field in a Class AA conference game that is expected to determine the Double-A championship of the North Louisiana district.

For Coach George Riser's Ouachita Lions victory would clinch the crown for O. P. H. S. the second year in a row so the Lions can be depended on to put everything they've got and a little more into this scrap. Byrd, also undefeated in the Double-A race, scored its first conference victory Friday night by walloping the Haynesville Golden Tornado, 25 to 7. Ouachita had previously beaten Haynesville, 19 to 0.

The Class AA standings of the north district:

Team	Won	Lost	Pct.
Ouachita	2	0	1.000
Byrd	1	0	1.000
Haynesville	1	2	.333
Fair Park	0	2	.000

The district championship will be determined next Friday only in the event of a Ouachita victory. If the Yellow Jackets should emerge on top they would still have to beat the Fair Park Indians, already subdued by Haynesville and Ouachita. However, Byrd would practically be conceded the crown if it could beat the Lions, for Ouachita tripped Fair Park, 13 to 0.

The game will be the last regularly scheduled home contest for the Ouachita forces, and in view of the importance of the engagement the largest crowd of the season to see a prep school game here is expected to be on hand.

The Yellow Jackets took to the air to beat Haynesville and if their ground game bogs down here, Byrd can be depended on to use plenty of passes. All Byrd touchdowns against Haynesville were the result of passes with Foster White, a left-handed tosser, pitching touchdown passes twice to End Dan Sandifer and twice to Halfback J. W. Saucier.

Ouachita isn't regarded as a passing team but the Lions quite frequently sandwich a few aerials into their attacks. The ground game usually features Richard Pate and Bruce Gregg in the role of ball carriers with ample blocking from such backs as J. M. McBeth, one of the greatest blocking backs Ouachita has ever developed, and Johnnie Simpson, Larry Bennett and Curtis Hall, depending on which is in the lineup. However, the Lion backfield was crippled up in the Fair Park game and the open date of the past week has been some help toward giving the ailing ones time to recover.

Simpson, who suffered a broken hand in the clash with the Tribe, may or may not play Friday and he can hardly expect to be at his best even if he does manage to play with his hand in a cast.

Then, McBeth received a sprained elbow and was still favoring his arm through the past week's drills. Center Fred Gulledge came out of the Fair Park game with a rib injury that had him crippled all week.

In the face of these ailments it looks like a rough day ahead for the Lions, and the sailing couldn't be expected to be any too smooth even if the squad was in top shape, considering the result of the Byrd-Haynesville tilt.

TAG TEAM MATCH IS SLATED HERE

Kallio, Barney, Fraley And Parker Will Battle In Event Tuesday

A tag team brawl that will bring together a conglomeration of wrestling talent the like of which has never shown here in a single night will feature Tuesday night's mat card at the Monroe Wrestling arena.

Promoter Gus Kallio, who reigned ten years as middleweight wrestling champion of the world; Bill Barney, the West Monroe service station owner who holds the northeast Louisiana amateur title; Mike Fraley, the bad boy from Omaha, Neb., and Allen Parker, the Nashville, Tenn., matman who formerly wrestled as the Masked Shadow, will all tangle in what promises to be one of the wildest mat shows here this season.

Kallio, who wrestled all over the world during his reign as king of the middleweights, has been shorn of the title less than four years and today he is about as tough and agile as ever. Kallio has kept in shape not only by a routine of regular exercises but has been working hard on government defense jobs and there isn't an ounce of fat on the rugged promoter.

Barney who won the northeast Louisiana wrestling crown last winter at the Ouachita Valley fair grounds, has never lost a match since taking the amateur belt. Lately, since Aldin "Butch" Martin left for service with the United States marines, Barney has been serving as referee on the weekly mat cards and getting some valuable pointers on professional wrestling tactics.

The plan at the present is to match Kallio and Barney against the team of Fraley and Parker. The promoter and his No. 1 pupil will find Fraley and Parker a tough combination to handle. Last week Parker turned in one of his best matches here despite defeat at the hands of Jack Curtis, World's light heavyweight champion. Fraley, also on last week's card, defeated Carl "Turtle" Zuppe of Minneapolis, Minn.

The tag team show, the final event on the card will be a 90-minute time limit affair, two falls to win.

Preliminary to the tag team match the four principals will meet in a pair of 15-minute time limit, one fall scraps with Barney facing one of the pros, and Kallio tackling the other. The order in which the preliminaries go on won't be decided until Tuesday night.

The usual admission prices will prevail. Promoter Kallio also announced all military police, members of the Monroe police and fire departments in uniform would be admitted free. Soldiers will be admitted for half the general admission.

OREGON 14; U. C. L. A. 7

EUGENE, Ore., Nov. 7.—(AP)—U. C. L. A.'s Rose bowl stock dropped several points today as the Bruins lost their first Pacific Coast conference start of the year, 7-14, to Oregon before a homecoming crowd of 8,000 persons.

Tommy Roblin, plunging Oregon fullback, made the Hayward field jinx—the Bruins never have won a game here—hold good with a last-period touchdown that gave the lowly Webfoots their victory margin.

BULLDOGS SCORE EIGHTH STRAIGHT WIN THIS SEASON

Sinkwich Tallies Twice; Top Georgia Players Given Plenty Of Rest

By Romney Wheeler

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., Nov. 7.—(AP)—Georgia's unbeaten, untied football team pulled out all the stops today, turning up a prelude to post-season bowl music by overwhelming a bewildered Florida eleven, 75-0, before 22,000 hoarsely-cheering fans.

It was Georgia's 14th consecutive victory since mid-season of 1941, and the eighth straight win of 1942.

All-America Frankie Sinkwich, Georgia's Youngstown Yankee captain, scored two touchdowns and pitched to his one-time schoolboy pal, George Poschner, for two others in a spectacular 30-minute performance. He gained 112 yards passing and 71 rushing to push his offensive mark of the season toward an all-time record.

Poschner, himself a candidate for All-America end, played brilliantly and scored a third touchdown on a pass from Sinky's sophomore understudy, Charlie Trippi, although he had suffered until just before game-time with acute indigestion.

Georgia broke Florida's resistance with a staggering offensive which yielded a 28-0 lead in the first 10 minutes of play. The second and third stringers hammered out another touchdown in the next quarter to give Georgia a 35-0 advantage at half-time.

Wally Butts, the Bulldogs' dour coach, gave his Orange bowl champions another workout in the third period, for 27 points, and the third-stringers scored 13 in the last period just for exercise. It was the worst defeat ever handed Florida by a Georgia team, eclipsing the 56-0 rout administered in 1920.

After the game, Coach Tom Lieb of Florida exclaimed:

"My boys did their best, but they were beaten by the greatest football team Floridians have ever seen, or probably ever will see again."

STANFORD 20; WASHINGTON 7

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 7.—(AP)—Stanford's amazing Indians, low one week and high the next, racked up their second upset of the season today by trouncing University of Washington's Huskies, 20 to 7.

The loss smeared Washington's Pacific Coast conference hopes all over Kezar stadium. Like Stanford, its record now lists two league defeats.

COME TO PAPA

Hot Off The Gridiron

DARTMOUTH 19; PRINCETON 7

PRINCETON, N. J., Nov. 7.—(AP)—Dartmouth's rugged runners made three short, quick touchdown trips to capitalize all their scoring opportunities today and smother Princeton 19 to 7 before a crowd of about 16,000.

TENNESSEE 34; CINCINNATI 12

KNOXVILLE, Tenn., Nov. 7.—(AP)—Tennessee unleashed its substitutes today to throttle Cincinnati handily, 34-12, with the help of Bearcat miscues before 6,000 fans.

Cincinnati's touchdowns were scored in the final two minutes of play with passes clicking against a freshman Tennessee backfield. Freshman Bill Williams of Portsmouth tossed the passes, but interception of his aerials gave Tennessee two markers, too.

Bobby Cifers passed 15 yards to End Dick Jordon, who galloped 15 yards to score the first Tennessee touchdown.

Tennessee marched again in the second period, with Fuson plunging over from the five on the second play. Bearcat Williams' aerial was snatched by Center Brandau, who returned the interception 32 yards for another Vol touchdown. A fourth Tennessee tally resulted in Walter Slater's pass to End Bud Hubbell from Cincinnati's 17. Midway in the third period Cifers connected with Hubbell for 29 yards, the snatcher racing 33 yards for the touchdown.

MISSOURI 26; NEBRASKA 6

LINCOLN, Neb., Nov. 7.—(AP)—Missouri, defending champion of the Big Six conference, spotted Nebraska a touchdown today, then ran the home boys into the ground to take a 26 to 6 victory and move into commanding position in this year's race.

SOUTHERN CAL 21; CALIFORNIA 7

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 7.—(AP)—Southern California's speed-burning halfback, Mickey McCardle, personally led the Trojans to an upset 21 to 7 victory today over the University of California in a football game watched by 50,000 persons.

Mickey's blinding speed on punt returns and his shiftiness on cutbacks through the big California line was the real scoring difference between the teams. He got two touchdowns and set up the other, and for the three periods he was in the game he was pretty much the whole show.

California looked good for only a brief time in the second quarter, Jim Jurkovich, Walt Gordon and Frank Porto slashing off the tackles in a sustained 70-yard march that netted a touchdown in 15 plays.

OREGON STATE 33; MONTANA 0

CORVALLIS, Ore., Nov. 7.—(AP)—Oregon State college, defending champion in the Pacific Coast football conference, hauled itself out of a mid-season slump today at the expense of Montana university, 33 to 0.

CORNELL 13; YALE 7

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Nov. 7.—(AP)—A closing minutes drive, featured by a 47-yard pass and run, set the stage for a four-yard touchdown by Nick D'Onofrio and enabled Cornell to come from behind and upset Yale, 13 to 7, in the bowl today before 21,000.

TEXAS TECH 13; T. C. U. 6

LUBBOCK, Tex., Nov. 7.—(AP)—The Texas Tech Red Raiders scored two touchdowns in the fourth quarter today to beat Texas Christian university, 13 to 6.

The Christians scored in the second period on a pass from Nix to Ezell. The Raiders won the game on a blocked punt that Ralph Geddie recovered for a touchdown and on a pass to Maxey McKnight which was good for 36 yards.

OHIO STATE 59; PITT 19

COLUMBUS, O., Nov. 7.—(AP)—Ohio State scored at will today to swamp Pittsburgh 59 to 19 in their intersectional football game before 34,893 fans.

ISTROUMA WINS

BATON ROUGE, La., Nov. 7.—(AP)—Burt Payne, second-team Istrouma tailback, led the Istrouma Indians to a 26-6 district win over the Bogalusa Lumberjacks here tonight. The Indians piled up 12 first downs to the Lumberjacks' one.

WASH. STATE 25; MICH. STATE 13

SPOKANE, Nov. 7.—(AP)—Bounding Bob Kennedy staged a one man football show in Gonzaga's stadium today, leading the hefty red-clad Cougars of Washington State college to a 25 to 13 victory over the valiant but outgunned Michigan State Spartans.

DUQUESNE 7; ST. MARY'S 7

PITTSBURGH, Nov. 7.—(AP)—The proud and dashing Duquesne Dukes, stripped last month of their long victory string, barely held onto another record today—that of remaining unbeaten at home in four years—when hard-fighting St. Mary's of California drew a 7-7 tie before nearly 14,000 fans.

The Dukes, reaching into their famed bag of tricks, struck first, with Halfback Max Kielbasa taking the ball on a deceptive deep reverse and flashing 63 yards over the Californians' goal line on the game's second play from scrimmage.

The Gaels, sparked by the passing and running of Johnny Podesto, of Modesto, Calif., roared right back in the next quarter, traveling 43 yards to the Dukes' 15, where Fullback Ray Ahlstrom, of Oakland, Calif., took a reverse from Podesto and went over a minute before the half whistle sounded.

Both Kielbasa and Gonzalo Morales, of San Francisco, kicked perfect extra placements to insure the tie.

ILLINOIS 14; NORTHWESTERN 7

EVANSTON, Ill., Nov. 7.—(AP)—Don Griffin passed 7 yards to Red McCarthy for one touchdown and End Elmer Engel ran 53 yards for another as Illinois defeated Northwestern 14 to 7 today for the first time since 1937 before 35,000 fans.

'BAMA TAKES IT EASY, BEATS CAROLINA, 29-0

TUSCALOOSA, Ala., Nov. 7.—(AP)—Alabama's once-beaten Crimson Tide rolled up a wide lead over the South Carolina Gamecocks in the first half here today and then coasted for a 29-0 victory before 10,000 homecoming day fans.

The victors, scoreless in the second half, used their regulars sparingly and held the upper hand for most of the proceedings, despite the daring passing of the Gamecocks, who seemed to improve as the contest progressed.

Alabama's second team, which started the game, pushed over two touchdowns in the opening period, and the regulars came in to count two touchdowns and a safety in short order in the second.

MICHIGAN 35; HARVARD 7

ANN ARBOR, Mich., Nov. 7.—(AP)—Michigan, rolling up four touchdowns in the first half, extended its winning streak in intersectional football competition to 11 games today by crushing Harvard, 35 to 7, before 25,534 spectators.

NEVILLE INVADES CLARKS FOR GRID GAME WEDNESDAY

Lumberjacks Victors In Only Previous Engagement Of Two Elevens

The Neville High school Tigers, after an open date the past week as the result of the cancellation of a game scheduled with Bolton of Alexandria, return to the gridiron Wednesday when they meet the Clarks High school Lumberjacks in an Armistice day battle at Clarks.

This week was originally designated as an open date for the Bengals, but Coach Elgin Boggs two weeks ago made arrangements with Coach Paul Kennon of Clarks for the game.

Neville and Clarks have met only once before in a game which the Tigers insist was a pre-season warm-up in which few regulars took part but which the Lumberjacks listed as a bona fide game. Clarks won 20 to 0. That was in 1939 when the Lumberjacks won the North Louisiana Class B championship and was runner-up to Kentwood for the state title.

The Tigers, whose Class A title hopes, weak as they were, were blasted by the Ruston Bearcats, will conclude their season's campaign with two Class A games here.

They meet the Rayville Hornets at Neville stadium on November 20, and then the Bastrop High school Rams, leading candidate for the northeast district Class A crown, will invade the Tiger field on November 27.

TEXAS AGGIES 27; S. M. U. 20

DALLAS, Nov. 7.—(AP)—Blazin' Barney Welch passed the ball just three times—all good for touchdowns—to lead the Texas Aggies to a thrilling 27-20 win today over Southern Methodist.

Welch, a substitute for the Aggies' big show, Leo Daniels, glided across the turf like a drop of mercury on the bedroom carpet.

The Aggies burst loose in the first quarter, scoring two touchdowns. The Mustangs, stunned but game, struck back for two touchdowns in the second quarter to tie it.

The Aggies scored late in the third after a long drive, and got another early in the final period. The fans began to leave but S. M. U. immediately stopped them with a clever drive for their third touchdown.

Iowa Beats Wisconsin, 7-0

IOWA CITY, Ia., Nov. 7.—(AP)—Iowa sent Wisconsin's proud Badgers reeling from the nation's undefeated football ranks today.

A trigger-like touchdown toss by Tom Farmer and a dramatic goal-line stand gave Iowa a stunning 6 to 0 upset victory that severely shook Wisconsin's hopes for its first Western conference championship in 30 years and carried the inspired Hawkeyes into a first place tie with Illinois and Ohio State.

Iowa, given a tremendous inspiration lift by a cheering homecoming crowd of 32,700, outplayed the Badgers, who went into the slam-bang battle with six victories and a tie in seven games. The outcome gave Iowa its third Big Ten triumph in four contests.

The only touchdown came after 10 minutes of play in the second period, Farmer finishing an Iowa advance from the Hawkeye 45-yard line with a touchdown toss to Bill Burkett, big senior end. The payoff throw was good for 21 yards.

TRAINING GIVEN IN WAR STRATEGY

Thousands Of Officers Get Final Weeks Of Polishing Up

FORT LEAVENWORTH, Kan., Nov. 7.—(AP)—From the outside the building looks like a college gymnasium. Inside it's almost as bare. But the floor is covered with hundreds of kitchen-like wooden tables, and hundreds of folding chairs.

There were hundreds of men in khaki, seated one to a table, when I stepped into the hall. On the platform an army officer talked into a microphone. He illustrated, tracing lines on a huge map. Each man had a similar map in front of him.

It was the morning session at the army's nerve center: The command and general staff school at Fort Leavenworth, where thousands of army officers take a final nine weeks' polishing before they go off to the war zones.

The men sat motionless. The only sound was the lecturer's voice. He said, "Gentlemen, the critical point is the bridge at 'X.' Captain Baylor, what protects it?"

The night before the men had been given the opening facts of the battle. They'd been told the distances, the numbers and kinds of troops, the possible roads to use, the force of the enemy and his location.

So Baylor made his way to the aisle. Another man ran up with a hand microphone and Baylor took it: "Sir, the Hundred and First cavalry protects the bridge."

"Thank you," said the man on the platform. "But the Hundred and First must move within an hour after dark. Major Thompson, what will you leave to protect the bridge?"

A man down front made his way to the aisle. The man with the mike ran to him. The new speaker replied, "I'll leave the anti-aircraft unit at the bridge, and strengthen it with infantry now at 'Y'."

"I agree."

The lecture went on. It had started at 8 a. m. It would close at noon. Then the men would rumble off in buses to lunch, talking over the "battle" they had just "fought." They would return for more lectures and conferences until 4.30 p. m. Then they still have five hours of study before bed. It takes them into the midnight oil hours. They get one evening off: Saturday. They're back at work Sunday dusk.

They're the hand-picked men of the American army: Thousands have gone through the school. They're still streaming through. They leave here to take command of troops, some going overseas.

They're an alert, intent looking lot. They must be captains to enter, and under 40. They live with field equipment: A bunk, chair, desk and chest of drawers for each man. They're housed in old family apartments which have been cut up to take care of the throng.

It's their last chance to learn the tricks of modern war: To plan counter tricks. It must become second nature to them to hold the details of a huge battle in their minds; the number of trops, the terrain, the speed with which troops can move, their equipment, the strength of the enemy. Try it, yourself, some time. Try to keep the details of Guadalcanal in your mind from day to day.

These men have been regular army, national guard and reserve before the the war. Two years ago most of them were selling insurance and autos, trying law cases, working for railroads, telephone companied, banks.

The nine weeks' study at Leavenworth is the hardest thing most of them have done. The course is so stiff the fort has been dubbed the "suicide post" by the army.

Some of these men actually know where they're going to fight when they enter the school. They've been tagged to lead mountain troops, paratroops, tank corps, armored and air forces. They know whether they'll fight in ice, in sand or jungle, on enemy beach heads.

That's tremendously important. It gives an officer a chance to get accustomed to the speeds his troops and supplies can make over certain terrain. He comes familiar with the strength of the "air umbrella" he'll need for each thousand land troops. And so on.

It's part of the changed world. The terrifying speed of today. The world in which men fighting in Burma can take sick leave in San Francisco, men on intelligence missions in North Africa can return to Washington to report.

That speed has changed the course at Leavenworth. Up to right now the students here have worked out their battles on maps called "Gettysburg Sheets." They were just that: Maps of the battle of Gettysburg. The officer learned his fundamentals from them: But what about needs like knowing the roads which fan inland from Dieppe, for instance?

The Gettysburg sheets now are going into the ash-can. Major General Karl Truesdell, who devised this war time polishing course, has just ordered them out. He now commands the school. The men will study henceforth from maps of the actual country over which they'll fight.

Planes drop into Leavenworth with the latest "army, confidential" movies taken on the battle fronts. Aerial shots arrive from the latest air-blitzed city of the reich. Confidential reports stack up from the Philippines, the Solomons, the Axis countries, Africa and the Aleutians.

The men actually see, and memorize, what they've got to meet.

They enjoy another advantage. It's an old method of the school. But it's neat and handy right now. The men who must specialize on the war fronts learn here to know the problems of the other specialists with whom they'll work.

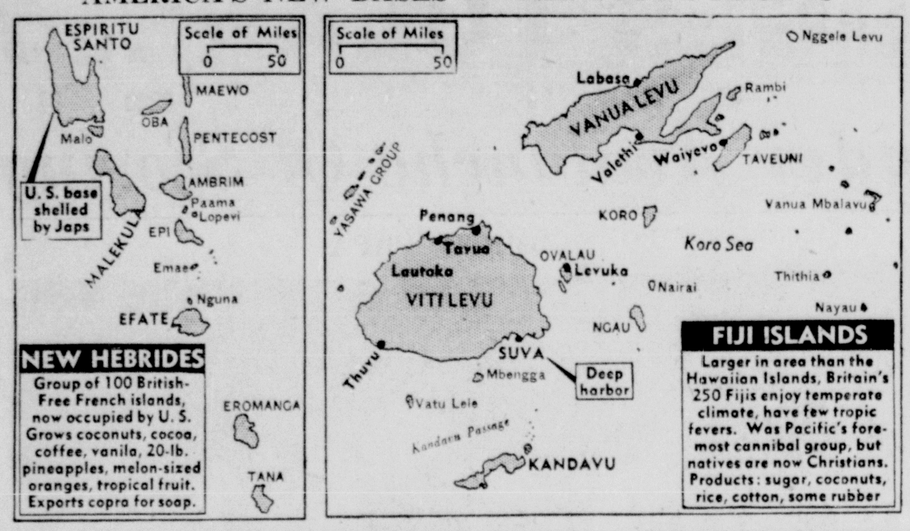

The man, for instance, who must know in battle just how many troops are at hand, where he can get more (he's called G-1 by the army) works here with G-4 who must keep the roads open, bring the supplies in and the wounded and dead out. They both learn the working methods of G-2 who has to know—everyone hopes—where and how strong the enemy is. They must all know the plans of G-3, the officers who prepare the battle orders, plan the attacks and call the retreats.

That molding together into teams has been refined even further here. Trusdell is particularly proud of this training:

The actual officers who are now taking command of each of our new army divisions start together here: They take their last nine weeks together. They know each other when they leave here.

The fort has a "zero hour" feeling about it. The men are deadly serious. Ten-to-one they don't even know there's such a song as "My Devotion" rippling the air waves every night. But they could tell you the secret of the second front. They're going to run the big shove.

AMERICA'S NEW BASES IN THE SOUTH PACIFIC

The storied Fiji islands and New Hebrides make the headlines today as important United States bases on the supply line to Guadalcanal and Australia. Long-range American bombers based in the New Hebrides have raided Jap positions in the Solomons, and a Jap sub brought the war here, shelling Espiritu Santo. United States forces repelled a Jap naval thrust toward these islands late in October.

RAMS POINT FOR DISTRICT TITLE

Bastrop Downs Ruston 7 To 0; Only Winnfield, Neville Still In Path

BASTROP, La., Nov. 7.—(Special)—The Bastrop High school Rams were pointing for the Class A championship playoff again today after a 7-to-6 victory over the powerful Ruston High school Bearcats here last night. Only teams remaining in the path of the Rams in their drive of the northeast district crown are Winnfield and Neville of Monroe.

Coach "Dutch" Binion's charges have an open date next week end but meet Winnfield on November 20 and Neville on November 27. Last fall Ruston eliminated Bastrop, 14 to 13, in the district playoff, and the year before Coach Binion's charges won the northeast and north district crowns and were runners-up for the state title.

Last night's battle was a thriller all the way.

The Rams scored first in the initial period when Howard Cupples, Bastrop's bid for all-state, circled left end for 30 yards and a touchdown. Lloyd McGough kicked the all important point after touchdown that provided the margin of victory.

Zane Skinner, classy Bearcat back, scored the lone Ruston touchdown on a 20-yard dash through right tackle. Ruston's try for the tying point failed when Jack Pyle, a second string Bastrop end, crashed in to block the kick singlehanded.

Warring Wray, big Ruston tackle and an all-state performer last year, was hard on Bastrop's offense and looms as definite all-state talent for the second straight year. Cupples was easily the outstanding Bastrop performer.

Ruston outplayed the Rams in the third quarter but were held in check. The fourth period saw another Bastrop threat which the Bearcats checked.

AAF CHAPEL HERE TO BE DEDICATED

The North Chapel of the Monroe AAF Navigation school will be opened with a dedicatory service at 11 o'clock this morning at which Ch. Phillip H. Oxnam, Post Chaplain, will officiate.

The North Chapel is one of two permanent chapels, and will be used for Protestant services on the field. The South Chapel, which is to be opened shortly, will be devoted to Catholic and Jewish services.

Colonel Norris B. Harbold, the commanding officer of the Post, and Mrs. Harbold, will head the list of officers, cadets, enlisted men and civilian employes attending the service, together with their families.

The Post ban, the Pre-Flight School Glee club, Jean Marie Erdman and Aviation Cadet Herbert Young will provide music for the service in the form of group and solo performances. Chaplain Oxnam will preach on "The Master Builder."

MARION DUPONT IS RAISED TO SERGEANT

Marion Dupont, son of Mr. and Mrs. M. E. Dupont, 810 Alabama street, who enlisted here six weeks ago in the army air corps, has been promoted to sergeant, according to information received here last night by his parents from Arlingen, Texas, where he had been attending a gunnery school.

Sergeant Dupont is a graduate of Northeast Junior college where he was an honor student and a former associate editor of the Pow Wow, college publication. His father is a veteran of the World War.

PERMITS BOOSTS IN SOME PRICES

Increases Are Granted On Potatoes, Onions And Turkeys

WASHINGTON, Nov. 7.—(AP)—Stores got permission today from Price Administrator Leon Henderson to increase the price of potatoes, onions and turkeys.

These and a number of other foods were placed under temporary price "freezes" October 5. Today's order is the first of a series designating permanent price controls.

For the housewife, Henderson said, the effects of the order, some of which probably will be noticeable within a week, will be:

About one cent a pound increase on Maine potatoes, but probably no change on western potatoes, about one-half cent a pound increase on onions; no material change on turkeys during the holiday season but about a three per cent increase in February.

Meanwhile, the labor department reported that the food bill of the average American family rose 2.4 per cent between September 15 and October 13.

At the mid-October levels, foods in retail grocery stores sold 6.6 per cent above the level of mid-way and 16 per cent above the October 1941 levels. The cost index stood at 129.6 per cent of the 1935-39 average in mid-October, the highest point since May, 1930.

Most of the September 15-October 15 rise occurred before the OPA brought under price control an additional 30 per cent of the family food bill.

Henderson explained that the foods involved in today's announcement were pegged October 5 at their September 28-October 2 prices but in preparing a permanent regulation he found it only fair to permit "normal seasonal fluctuations."

Among other foods now controlled by temporary orders for which Henderson soon will issue permanent regulations are: Butter, cheese, eggs, poultry, dry edible beans, flour, mutton, canned milk, cornmeal and citrus fruits.

The orders on potatoes, onions and turkeys specified prices or price formulaes for every transaction from the farm to the consumer.

Henderson said that the prices which "country shippers" will be permitter to pay farmers for the three foods will give the farmer "a full 100 per cent of parity," and will also provide the farmer with "financial incentive for maintenance of peak output."

For the consumer, Henderson said, "the new ceilings will give assurance of a stable and reasonable price for turkeys during peak sales in the holiday season and will prevent civilian shortages of beef, pork and lamb from bringing excessive turkey prices."

Henderson also announced that he had sent more than 4,000 warnings to retailers found by investigators to be breaching the cost-of-loving rules.

"Many others," he said "who plainly showed willful violations were not included among those receiving warning notices. These latter cases, including many instances of plain overcharging, selling of inferior-quality goods and reduction of quality in packaged goods, are being reserved for more drastic action."

ABSENCE OF LOU THOMAS IS FELT

put it over," said "Little Monk" Simons of Tulane. "The boys played as well as could be expected, but we should have been able to score on one of those times we got down there. I believe if Thomas had been in there it would have helped a lot. He is experienced and his passing down there near the goal line would have helped, I believe. The other boys did well, but its hard to fill Thomas' shoes.

"But State has a fine, well-coached team and I figured they would probably be too good for us. But when we got going in that first quarter it looked like maybe we could take 'em. But the punch wasn't there, and they deserved the victory."

territory. That also was the first time the Cadets had carried the ball past mid-field against the Irish' stubborn defense, and they were to pass the 50-yard line only once more in the game.

In winning today Notre Dame ran its record against Army to 21 victories against only five defeats and three ties.

Almost from the opening kick-off it was obvious that Notre Dame, which has lost only to formidable Georgia Tech this season, had entirely too many guns for the future officers. Within two minutes the Irish had recovered an Army fumble, had passed and plunged for a first down, and were attempting a placement field goal from the 22-yard line. Tom Creevy's kick was blocked by Dean Crowell, Army end, however, and Notre Dame was to have to wait a while.

Two dollar bills are the only United States' paper currency permitted to circulate officially in Mexico, the department of commerce says.

THUNDEROUS DUEL IS FOUGHT AT SEA

WASHINGTON, Nov. 7.—(AP)—A thunderous duel with depth charges, gunfire and torpedoes raged for days in the North Atlantic between a United Nations convoy and a pack of submarines, the navy disclosed today.

The navy announced the loss of a Panamanian merchant vessel but did not disclose whether others of the convoy were lost or whether any of the attacking submarines were sunk.

The bitter battle was fought during September in a calm sea, "an unusual condition in those waters," the navy said.

"For three days there was a battle between submarines with their deadly torpedoes and the convoy. The air was charged with smoke from gunfire and spray from depth charges. On the fourth day the Panamanian merchant vessel was struck squarely amidships by a torpedo and immediately began to list. The captain ordered the men to abandon ship when he saw the vessel was doomed. She sank shortly after."

At Northfield, N. J., a 20-year-old crew member, one of 40 survivors who were landed at an Allied port, told of what happened after the ship was abandoned. Robert Vetter, a junior officer, said he and two fellow officers, one of them the captain, were in a lifeboat which barely cleared the sinking ship.

A submarine surfaced near them and ordered the three officers aboard. The enemy commander took the captain prisoner, ordered the other men back into the lifeboat "and then, as a gesture of meanness, or perhaps to instill the fear of the sea in us, he rammed our lifeboat and completely demolished it way out there hundreds of miles from land," Vetter said.

Those in the lifeboat succeeded in reaching rafts which were floating nearby and were picked up after seven days during which they lived on a few malted milk tablets and a half keg of water.

HIGHEST HABITATION

Immigration into Panama has been made more difficult by a recent decree increasing residence and in-transit fees, the department of commerce reports.

Coal is being conserved in Uruguay through a voluntary agreement among dealers requiring that consumers purchase equal quantities of firewood when ordering coal and coke, the department of commerce reports.

CHICAGO: Wheat: Firm; mill buying. Corn: Higher; good demand for cash corn. Catle: Nominally steady. Hogs: 15-20 lower; top $14.35.

NEW YORK STOCKS

NEW YORK, Nov. 7.—(AP)—So-called peace stocks continued to attract buyers in today's brief market but profit cashing on Friday's sharp rally tended to stem the advance in many cases.

While bullishness persisted over the Allied victory in Egypt, the election results and relatively good earnings prospects for many companies, there was some trimming of commitments on the idea the recent swing to the best average mark since November 5, 1941, called for at least a temporary technical adjustment.

Transfers of around 500,000 shares were among the largest for a Saturday this year.

KILLED

James Roderick Hundley, 19, of West Monroe, was killed in a training plane crash near the naval air station at Corpus Christi, Tex., Friday. Funeral services will be held here.

HUNDLEY'S BODY TO ARRIVE SUNDAY

The body of James Roderick (Roddy) Hundley, 19, of West Monroe, who was killed in a plane crash at Corpus Christi, Tex., on Friday, will arrive in Monroe over the Missouri Pacific railroad Sunday at 6 p.m. according to information received. It will be taken in charge upon arrival by the Mulhearn Funeral Home. The funeral arrangements are not as yet completed, but interment will be in Hasley cemetery.

Hundley is a son of Mr. and Mrs. F. C. Hundley, who live on highway 80 near Claiborne. He graduated from Ouachita Parish High school and Northeast Junior college. He received his pre-flight training at the college here and had been in Corpus Christi only a month, taking advanced training in aviation.

LESS SUGAR FOR DRINKS ADVISED

Medical Association Also Would Reduce Amount For Candy

CHICAGO, Nov. 7.—(AP)—The American Medical association urged today that consumption of sugar in soft drinks and candy low in nutritional value be limited to improve public health.

It suggested a change in candy and soft drink advertising and said "there is merit" in a suggestion that the sale of candy and soft drinks be prohibited around schools.

The recommendations, made by the A. M. A. council on foods and nutrition in the A. M. A. Journal, urged that in rationing sugar, priority be given to the use of sugar in "more nutritious foods."

"The consumption of sugar and of other relatively pure carbohydrates has become so great during recent years that it presents a serious obstacle to the improved nutrition of the general health," the council declared.

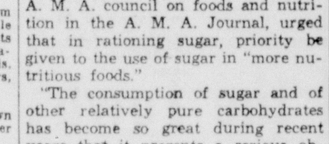

The report said that sugar, like flour, is a highly processed food and a staple item in the modern diet. It recalled that in 1939 the council advocated restoring vitamin B-1 and other nutritious elements lost in highly refining flour, which led to action by the cereal industry and the government to make available and promote the use of enriched white flour and white bread.

Vitamins and minerals in sugar cane and sugar beets are "almost completely removed" in processing, it added. The council said that enriching flour is feasible because other members of the vitamin B complex, besides the B-1, are lost much less in milling, but that in refining sugar "only traces of vitamins survive the process."

Another solution, it said, is to reduce sugar consumption, which is now being done because of war conditions, so that people eat more of other foods containing vitamins lost in refining sugar.

The A. M. A. council concurred in the opinion of the national research council's food and nutrition board that "very considerable reduction of sugar in products which carry no other nutrients in considerable amounts, such as candy and soft drinks, would certainly not be deleterious to the nutrition of the public health."

It said that such views "regrettably have not as yet been adopted in official rulings on the allocation of sugar."

WHITTLING JOE

By Ogden Nash

Here's a fellow you'd like to know,
A citizen named Whittling Joe.
Whittling things the Axis can't,
Whittling with his sharp machines
Cargo ships and submarines,
Whittling bombers, whittling tanks,
Whittling shells in shiny ranks—
Shave a sliver off Benito,
Slice a slab off Hirohito,
And Joseph really whets his whittler
Whistling as he whittles Hitler.
That's a job that Joe enjoys,
Whittling down the Axis boys.
Whittling Joe is never through;
He likes to whittle with dollars, too,
So every payday Joe is fond
Of whittling Hitler with a bond.
Multiplied by fifty million,
Whittling Joe is some civilian.

OBJECTIVES OF G. O. P. LISTED

Martin Will Seek Increased Representation Of Committees

WASHINGTON, Nov. 7.—(AP)—Increased representation for his party on congressional committees and sharp reductions in non-military government expenditures were listed today by Representative Martin of Massachusetts, the house minority leader, as prime objectives for the greatly-strengthened Republican forces in congress.

Beaming his glee at his party's gains throughout the nation in Tuesday's election, he disclosed that he would resign as chairman of the Republican national committee December 7 to give his full time and attention to guiding Republican strategy in the house.

While Martin made it clear that the Republicans would fight for a greater voice in running the affairs of congress, he pledged that they would cooperate in the war effort "regardless of how the Democrats treat us."

His declaration that the Republicans would attack non-military expenditures raised a strong possibility that some administration agencies would be eliminated or starved to death through lack of appropriations.

Although the Democrats will have numerical control of the house, where all appropriation bills originate, a substantial bloc of anti-administration Democrats during the past year joined Republicans in voting for reduced non-military allotments. Republicans won 208 seats in the house and Democrats 221 with two still undecided.

"Non-military expenditures," Martin told a press conference, "should be decidedly reduced. When you get a payroll tax, the American people are going to insist that non-military expenditures be cut, and cut drastically. There is certainly room for cuts, and I hope the appropriations committee goes about it diligently."

He suggested that each appropriations subcommittee be given a trained auditor "so that they could go into each department and find an accurate picture of just how much each needs."

A reporter's reference to President Roosevelt's press conference comment yesterday that he consulted Republicans as well as Democrats on pending legislation drew a grin from Martin.

"I'm only the official leader of the house," Martin said, "but if he consults Republicans, I don't know who they are." He added that he could recall being called to the White House only twice during the past year—the night the Japanese attacked Pearl Harbor and again when Prime Minister Churchill was here.

In an interpretation of the election, Martin declared that "what the American people want is to have the war conducted efficiently. They want less bungling. They want less inefficiency. They want less politics."

He hinted strongly that he would lead an attempt to bring congress into closer touch with the war effort. Martin said he was "leaning" toward creation of a joint house and senate committee on the conduct of the war as proposed by Representative Dirksen, Republican, Illinois.

U. S. SOLDIERS RUNNING TRAINS

Take Over Operation Of Fairport, Painesville And Eastern

PAINESVILLE, O., Nov. 7.—(AP)—With United States soldiers mounting its six locomotives and guarding its right-of-way, the small but important Fairport, Painesville and Eastern railroad resumed hauling war goods today in the face of a strike by 84 men.

An army engineer battalion, augmented by military police, moved in upon the road's 3½-mile Fairport-Painesville link at 7 a. m. and within three hours had the locomotives shuttling supplies to and from chemical and magnesium factories near Lake Erie.

"Continued delay in the delivery of vital raw materials would have resulted immediately in irreparable damage to equipment in plants engaged in essential war work," the war department stated.

The strike was called Friday by district 50 of the United Mine workers, which announced it represented maintenance, shop repair and section men, as well as car inspectors. Maurice J. Dineen, regional director of the John L. Lewis union, said the men were protesting against employment of 30 non-union workers as train operating crews.

"Prospects for a settlement don't look very good," Dineen said. He declared some district 50 members at Diamond Alkali company, one of the war plants served by the railroad, were refusing to load cars.

The alkali plant makes various chemicals. Other plants served by the road's Fairport-Painesville section are the Diamond Magnesium company, which recently went into production of magnesium ingots, and the Industrial Rayon company. At Painesville the road connects with trunk lines.

L. D. Dixon, general manager of the road, referred inquiries to army officers, who said the soldiers were ordered out only after other efforts had been unsuccessful in restoring operations. The war department said its control would continue "only so long as and only to the extent necessary" to protect and maintain equipment."

Cole Show Arrives Today For Monday Performances

Helen Partello, pretty girl performer with Cole Brothers Combined circus, is posed with one of more than a score of performing Palomino stallions due here Sunday with the big circus. Performances are scheduled for 3:30 and 8 o'clock Monday, on the grounds at Plum street. The long special railroad trains bearing the personnel and equipment of the circus are due to arrive about 9 a.m. Sunday, via the Missouri Pacific railroad. Unloading of the vast equipment will start immediately after arrival.

Tomorrow is circus day in Monroe. The big Cole Brothers Combined circus is due to roll over the rails to arrive here about 9 p. m. today for performances Monday at 3:30 and 8 o'clock, on the grounds at Plum street.

Hundreds of youngsters—oldsters, too—are expected to throng the circus unloading point as the long special circus trains arrive. Early arrivals will see the hundreds of workingmen as they pour forth from the long sleeping cars; will see, too, the 21 huge elephants as they step gingerly forth from their special-built, low-swung "elephant pullmans," to be slipped quickly into harness to become working units of the circus.

Visitors can see the more than 200 fine performing horses as they are walked to the "lot." The scores of heavy cage and baggage wagons, all mounted on solid rubber tires and equipped with ball-bearing wheels, will be moved in trains of five to seven behind huge diesel caterpillar tractors.

So highly organized and departmentized is the circus all twenty-six tents required to house the many departments of the big show will have been erected within four hours after arrival and everything placed in readiness for the whistle blast heralding the opening performance at 3:30 p. m. Monday.

Each performance here will open with the new inaugural spectacle, Sapa-Inca, a gayly garbed South American fantasy with a cast of more than 300 persons, scores of horses, animals and elephants brightly caparisoned in spangleland trappings. Lending color to the big pageant will be the singing of Florence Tennyson, operatic soprano star, and the dancing of an Argentinian ballet of 60 girls.

Lovers of fine horses will find favor with the newly created horse fair where more than 200 fine performing horses, including a score of three and five gaited Kentucky champions, are displayed to patrons without added charge.

345 stars and performers take part in the two and one-half hour performances. Included are many of circusdom's greatest entertainers. 50 clowns will handle the fun department.

For convenience of patrons a downtown office for the sale of admission and reserved tickets will be maintained from 9 a. m. Monday at Liggett's Drug Store, where prices will be the same as at the circus grounds.

FOR YOUNGSTERS

Through special arrangements with Cole Brothers circus management regular 50 cent child's circus matinee tickets, good at the 3:30 p. m. Monday show, will be sold at The World and NewsStar office for only 30 cents each. Clip the coupon from The World or News-Star and bring it with 30 cents to The World and News-Star office, Monday, from noon until 3 p. m., and get as many regular 50 cent tickets as needed for 30 cents each. These tickets will not be sold elsewhere and may be purchased by adults for use of the children. Two real clowns from the circus will be on hand at The World and News-Star office to entertain the youngsters.

CONTRACT AUTHORIZED

WASHINGTON, Nov. 7.—(AP)—The defense plant corporation authorized today a contract with Higgins Industries, Inc., New Orleans, under which it will provide machinery and equipment for a plant in Louisiana at a cost of more than $600,000. The company will operate facilities, but DUC will retain title.

The flow of non-food civilian goods to the domestic market of the United Kingdom had been reduced to one-third of pre-war volume by the middle of this year, the department of commerce says.

ALERT GIRLS IN NAVY REQUIRED

New Quota Set For Women Reserves In Eighth District

NEW ORLEANS, Nov. 7.—(Special)—There is a definite need for alert and wide awake girls in the navy. "Women in the navy are actually in the navy, not auxiliary to anything—as much in the navy as any sailor," stated Lieutenant Katharine L. Luna, W-V(S), USNR, in announcing the new quota for women reserves for the Eighth naval district. Lieutenant Luna is the officer in charge of the women's reserve recruiting for the Eighth naval district.

Now that the mechanics for the selection and appointment of women reserves have been set in order, the original procurement policy has been modified and a new quota set up with each branch office of naval officer procurement given a sub-quota.

The qualifications with one exception remain the same, the exception being now women between the ages of 20 and 50 may be considered for enlistments and commissions. All those accepted are sent to midshipmen school for an indoctrination period of 60 days before being commissioned.

In view of the allocation of new quotas for all naval districts and because of the limited facilities available not all accepted will be sent immediately to indoctrination schools, but will be held on an inactive status until those now attending are graduated.

Those accepted for service in the navy are rated or commissioned the same as men in the navy, they are under the same dicipline as the men in the navy and they have the same rights and privileges as the men in the navy. They are, as well as the men, the navy.

Each applicant when being considered is given a chance to state where and what duty she would prefer and this is carried out the same as with the men, as far as is compatible with the navy's needs as they exist at the time and with the applicant's ability.

Each one that is accepted in the women's reserves, United States naval reserve, will be directly fighting the enemies of our country by making it possible for the able bodied men now on duty ashore to go out to fight on the front lines.

Those desiring to apply may do so by writing to the office of naval officer procurement, 219 Camp Street, New Orleans, Louisiana, or the nearest branch office of naval officer procurement.

If You Get Up Nights You Can't Feel Right

If you have to get up 3 or more times a night your rest is broken and it's no wonder if you feel old and run down before your time. So if you get up nights or suffer from burning, scanty or frequent passages, leg pains, backache, or swollen ankles, due to non-organic or non-systemic Kidney and Bladder troubles, you'll make no mistake in trying the prescription called Cystex. Because it has given such joyous, happy relief in so high a percentage of such cases, Cystex is sold under a guarantee of money back on return of empty package unless completely satisfactory. Cystex costs only 35c at druggists.

Mrs. Wallie Stovall Witte, last week's bride, who was formerly Miss Evelyn Rhodes, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter M. Rhodes of this city, upper right, is seen with her attendants, Miss Jane Warren, Miss Floye Rhodes and Mrs. Walter Swain of Leeland, Miss. Upper left.

Mrs. Benjamin Dawkins and daughter, Miss Jane Dawkins, to the left, await guests in the home of Mrs. Clyde Brown where tea, one complimenting Miss Dawkins, was given by four hostesses, Mrs. Richard Kellogg, Mrs. Howard Greene, Mrs. Brown and Miss Carrie Jo Hill. They are seen to the right.

Miss Evelyn Rhodes Marries Dr. Wallie Stovall Witte In Ceremony Here

Popular Couple Wed At Baptist Church

Reception At Home Of Bride's Parents Follows Nuptial Ceremony At Church

Mellow candlelight flooded the First Baptist church Thursday night, November 5, when Miss Evelyn Rhodes, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Marvin Rhodes, became the bride of Dr. Wallie Stovall Witte, son of Dr. and Mrs. K. L. Witte of Leeland, Miss., in a ceremony characterized by dignity and wartime simplicity.

Myriad cathedral tapers in seven-branched candelabra of graduated lengths, were silhouetted against a background of southern smilax. At either side of the altar were placed tall, white wicker basket overflowing with superb white chrysanthemums.

A distinct feature of the nuptial hour was the lighting of the tapers by the two groomsmen, Mr. Walter Swain of Leland, Miss., and Dr. Harold Hodge of Shreveport. They were both in formal evening attire.

While the guests were being seated, the organist, Mrs. Charles Gaushell, rendered a brilliant nuptial concert and accompanied the soloist, Miss Eloise Temple, whose beautifully cultivated lyric soprano voice was heard to splendid advantage in "I Love Thee" by Edward Grieg and "At Dawning" by Charles Wakefield Cadman.

The maid of honor, Miss Floye Rhodes, sister of the bride, and the bridesmaids, Mrs. Walter Swain, sister of the bridegroom, and Miss Jane Warren, walked altarward in picturesque gowns of maize taffeta fashioned with tight fitting basques buttoned down the back with self covered buttons. The sleeves were three-quarter length and the skirts were long and full. They wore Juliet caps of maize taffeta and carried arm bouquets of golden hued chrysanthemums tied with long lengths of bronze satin ribbon.

The bridegroom was attended by his father, Dr. K. L. Witte.

The bride, on the arm of her father, walked down the isle in the traditional white satin wedding gown fashioned along graceful flowing lines. The basque was long and tight fitting and the sleeves, full at the shoulders, were tight fitting from the elbow and pointed over the hands. The skirt, with much fullness in the back, ended in a long court train. Her finger-tip veil was caught to the hair with a chaplet of stephanotis. An exquisite corsage of orchids, white bride's roses and stephanotis was carried.

Following the ceremony members of the wedding party, members of the family and a few intimate friends attended the reception at the home of the bride's parents on Louisville avenue. Mrs. Rhodes welcomed the guests in a beautiful Peacock blue lace model and Mrs. Witte, the bridegroom's mother, wore a black crepe, sequin trimmed model.

Before departing on their honeymoon the bride and bridegroom cut their wedding cake, a three tiered confection placed at one end of the lace covered refreshment table. A shower of miniature white chrysanthemums and silver tulle with long streamer of narrow white satin ribbon fell from the chandelier directly over the table. White candles in crystal candlesticks were placed at the four corners.

Following the honey moon Dr. and Mrs. Witte will be at home at 617 Kirby Place, Shreveport.

The bride is a graduate of the Neville high school and Northeast Junior college and the Louisiana State university. She is a member of Alpha Chi Omega sorority. She is a registered medical technologist and previous to her marriage was employed in Shreveport.

Dr. Witte is a graduate of Leland High school and attended Virginia Military institute. He received his M. D. degree from Baylor University of Medicine and is a member of Phi Chi, medical fraternity. He holds a commission of first lieutenant in the U. S. Army medical corps reserve and at present is interning at Shreveport Charity hospital.

Mrs. Lindley Addresses Members of Book Club

Members of the Miro Book club were privileged to hear a timely talk when Mrs. C. C. Lindley spoke on the American Red Cross and reviewed the life of Clara Barton at the regular meeting of the club, held in the home of Mrs. J. B. Collins.

Mrs. Lindley based her biographical talk on the founder of the American Red Cross on Jeannette Nolan's book, "The Biography of Clara Barton." She said in part:

"We have all heard of Clara Barton, founder of the American Red Cross, but few of us know the constantly exciting events in the life of that shy but gallant person, who is one of the great heroines not only of our country, but of the world as well.

"This splendid biography of Clara Barton begins with her happy childhood in her large Massachussetts family, and carrying on thru her growing up years, to the scene of the war between the states, it pictures Clara a slight gray figure, forgetting her timidity and never thinking of her own danger, as she made her way to the hardest fought battlefields, where she could nurse and feed soldiers who needed her attention, whether his uniform be blue or gray How she crossed the ocean, to work on a foreign battlefield and to meet some of the royal families in Europe, and then achieved her greatest triumph in winning the signature of the president of the United States to a treaty, which was to result in the great International organization that we know as the Red Cross, makes a glowing climax for this story.

"As this achievement by no means marked the end of the work, that went on and on for the rest of her life, so will Clara Barton's memory live on and on in the hearts of those who knew her brave and unselfish devotion to the welfare of her fellow men. She belonged and still belongs to that select company of American immortals, whose glory cannot fade or perish, while the country she loved exists, while the scarlet and white banner of the Red Cross, floats beside the Stars and Stripes, then and always will Clara Barton live."

The world at large is quite familiar with the traditional worthwhile activities of the Red Cross. It was with much interest that the members listened to Mrs. Lindley's talk of these glorious activities being carried on—for no home is untouched by this splendid work today.

At the conclusion of the meeting, presided over by Mrs. A. S. Tidwell, the president, Mrs. Collins served a variety of confections to the following members: Mrs. F. C. Bennett, Mrs. S. M. Collins, Mrs. C. C. Lindley, Mrs. J. W. Murphy, Mrs. W. G. Murphy, Mrs. A. L. Peters, Mrs. John Pracher, Mrs. J. T. Pugh, Mrs. J. M. Russell, Mrs. A. S. Tidwell, Mrs. C. R. Tidwell, Mrs. H. M. Venable, and Mrs. J. E. Whitfield.

Mrs. James Addresses Music Guild Members

The Music Guild met in the home of Mrs. J. Norman Coon. After a short business session, Mrs. Dallas Goss, program chairman for this year, presented the following program:

Discussion from "The Well Tempered Listener" by Deems Taylor was led by Mrs. H. M. James. The main emphasis was put on three musicians, Tchaikovsky, Rimsky-Korsakoff and Victor Herbert. Mrs. James said in part, "Tchaikovsky's writing for the symphony is almost childishly simple. He uses scarcely a combination that a first year student of orchestration wouldn't understand at a glance. The writing is so technically easy that any competent orchestral musician reads his part perfectly at sight. But elementary as Tchaikovsky's scores may look, he is just as great a master of orchestration as we find. Every bar of his music sounds, that is every note written for an instrument to play will, if it is played as he directed, be heard by the listener. No other composer of orchestral writing has exceeded Tchaikovsky in perfect balance. Then, too, his music is incorrigibly melodious. The second theme of the first movement of the Pathetique, the main theme of Romeo and Juliet, the theme of the first movement of the B-flat minor Piano Concerto—why they are tunes. Not only are they tunes, but they are tunes so simple that they can be easily grasped, that one can whistle them after hearing them only once. We can say of Tchaikovsky that he is a true master of his art because he says what he wishes to say simply and directly.

"The operas of Rimsky-Korsakoff, with the exception of LeCoqd'or, have not achieved a genuine and permanent success in America. It is something to ponder about, why a nation that can produce such superb plays as Russian playwrights have written should turn out such dramatically formless operas. Russian audiences must be very lenient in their demands upon opera. We find Rimsky-Korsakoff taking an act of one opera and putting it into another, or taking an orchestral piece and turning it into an operatic scene and all without the slightest idea that he is doing anything open to criticism. We must say that even though this is true Rimsky-Korsakoff has given us some delightful music.

"Victor Herbert's music inspires us with a love for his genuis that the years will never lessen. For this German-trained Dubliner who wrote like a Frenchmen was a genius. In Victor Herbert's writings, it is the music that counts. In 1924 after the mild successes of his "Dream Girl" he said, "My day is over. Already they're forgetting poor old Herbert" and he half believed this. On May 26 he died. Had he lived a little longer, he would have seen the radio gradually emerging as the greatest purveyor of music the world has ever known. He would have heard Herbert's music on every program. Today there is no composer living or dead serious or light, whose music is more in demand. They haven't forgotten poor old Herbert."

Mrs. Charles Gaushell played in artistic manner the theme of the first movement of the B-flat minor Piano Concerto from Romeo and Juliet by Tchaikovsky.

A vocal duet, "Because You're You" from "The Red Mill" by Victor Herbert was delightfully sung by Mrs. Cecil Hill and Mrs. J. Norman Coon, accompanied by Mrs. P. A. Poag.

During the social hour the hostess served a salad course and spiced tea to the members and one guest, Mrs. Guy Durbin.

The members present were: Mrs. J. L. Cheshire, Mrs. J. Norman Coon, Mrs. R. W. Cretney, Mrs. Charles Gaushell, Mrs. Dallas Goss, Mrs. Cecil Hill, Mrs. F. C. Holden, Mrs. Willys Hopkins, Mrs. H. M. James, Mrs. E. Everett Lawson, Mrs. B. B. Martin, Mrs. P. A. Poag and Mrs. Raymond Spence.

Valuable Books Given To Monroe's Library

The Woman's Auxiliary to the Ouachita Parish Medical Society recently gave the book "Ambassadors in White" by Charles M. Wilson to the public library in memory of Dr. E. R. Yancey. In 1940 the Woman's Auxiliary gave "Healthful Living" by Herold S. Diehl in memory of Dr J. B. Vaughan, and in 1941 "Progress in Medicine" by Iago Galdston in memory of Dr. R. W. O'Donnell.

Another valuable contribution to the library last month was the reference book "State Names, Flags, Seals, Songs, Birds, Flowers, and Other Symbols" given by Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Frizzell in memory of Mr. Sigmund Haas.

An impressive religious novel recently added to the book collection at the library is "The Robe" by Loyd Douglas, the author of "Magnificent Obsession," "Green Light" and other widely read novels. The story is filled with word pictures of the persons and scenes in Palestine, Greece and Rome in the year immediately after Calvary.

Another delightful book is Angela Thirkell's new novel "Marling Hall." Once again she has written of the charming but occasionally eccentric ladies and gentlemen of the English countryside. It is "tops" in escape reading.

"Thunder in Heaven" by Armine von Tempski is a romantic story of the Hawaiian Islands. The plot is concerned with Dr. Graham, a brilliant New York specialist who was unfairly barred from practicing medicine at home, of Kauka, a half-white plantation doctor, and of beautiful April Wilde, daughter of a powerful Island family.

One of the outstanding non-fiction titles of the year is "Van Loon's Lives" by Hendrik W. Van Loon. In this book he gives the backgrounds, the achievements and the personal philosophies of nearly fifty of the great men and women of the past, from Plato and Confucius to Fridtjof Nansen and Emily Dickinson.

"Last Train from Berlin" by Howard K. Smith, former Berlin correspondent for CBS, is a careful study of the Nazi home front during 1941 and '42. He also gives Germany's attitude toward the Nazi party and Hitler, with emphasis on the breakdown of German morale.

Miss Dawkins Honoree At Spinsters' Supper

Another "kicking out" party was in progress last week when members of the Spinister club gathered around the supper table in the Blue room of the Frances hotel where Miss Jane Dawkins, bride-to-be, formally resigned from the club and presented the customary five dollars.

The table was banked high with Shasta daisies and brightly illuminated with myriad candles in low crystal candlesticks. Miss Clara Virginia Terzia, club president, presided and requested that Miss Dawkins read the poem each member must write when she leaves the state of Spinisterhood. The poem, entitled, "Here Today and Gone Tomorrow" was cleverly written and created gales of laughter when read aloud. It was dedicated to the remaining Spinisters.

Miss Dawkins was also called to make a donation of five dollars, the price each Spinister pays when she becomes a bride.

The beautiful corsage of American Beauty roses presented to Miss Dawkins looked altogether charming at the neckline of her attractive navy blue ensemble.

A delicious turkey supper was served to: Miss Dawkins, Miss Clara Virginia Terzia, Miss Dorothy Graves, Miss Betty Reily, Miss Marjorie Farmer, Miss Beverly Russell, Miss Mildred Breard, Miss Jane McKenzie, Miss Carrie Jo Hill, Miss Roberta Neel, Miss Jo McCranie, Miss Hazel Mitchell, Miss Robertine Rhymes, Miss Sara Cole Morrison, Miss Nan Buckner, Miss Virginia Earle Kersh, Miss Ellen Hale, Miss Mary Louise Fudickar.

Jack Edward Hackley Weds Dorothy Smith

Miss Dorothy Tilson Smith, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Carl Tilson Smith, of Radford, and Jack Edward Hackley, son of Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Leonard Hackley, were married Friday evening at 7:30. The ceremony was performed at the home of the officiating minister, the Rev. Conrad J. Marrama, in Blacksburg.

The bride was attired in a suit of autumn brown with mink collar. Her accessories were of dark brown and she wore a shoulder corsage of talisman roses.

The mothers of both bride and groom each wore shoulder corsages of gardenias.

Immediately following the wedding, a reception was held at the home of the bride's parents for relatives and close friends of the couple. Mrs. Hackley, a graduate of Radford State Teachers College, class of '42 majored in music. She is a member of Pi Gamma Mu, Kappa Delta Pi and the National Scholastic Honor Fraternity. She has the distinction of being listed in the 1942 edition of "Who's Who" among the students in the American Colleges and Universities. While attending the college she was editor of the college newspaper, "Grapurchat" and was an active member of various organizations.

The groom attended Junior College in Monroe, La., and received his higher education at the University of Southern California and Louisiana State University.

The couple will reside in Christiansburg upon their return from a wedding trip through the Smokey Mountains. The groom is a government inspector at the Radford Ordnance Works.

Miss Rhodes Honoree During Coffee Hour

The flower banked reception suite of Mrs. C. C. Colvert's home was thronging with guests, one hundred or more, who called during the coffee hour to pay their respects to one of the season's lovely brides, Miss Evelyn Rhodes, whose marriage to Dr. W. S. Witte was a brilliant event of Thursday night.

Miss Rhodes, standing with her hostesses, Mrs. Colvert and Mrs. A. D. Tisdale, was wearing a charming model of crimson light weight wool with a corsage of tube roses presented to her by her hostesses.

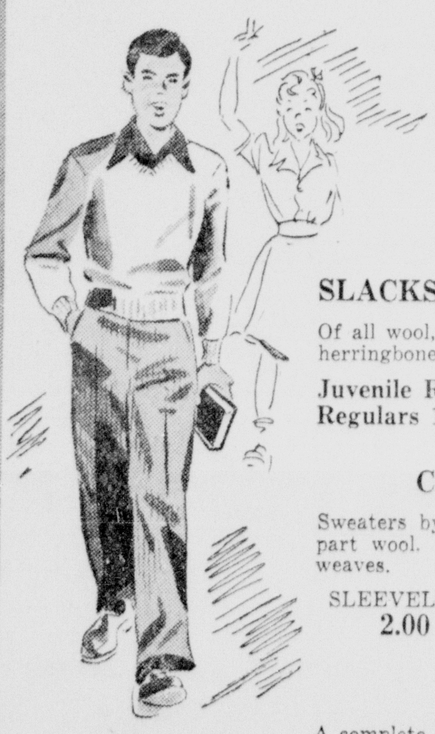

Extending courtesies in the dining room were Mrs. W. C. Smith, Mrs. R. C. Frisbie, Mrs. J. W. Cummins, Mrs. L. L. Price and Mrs. Stanley Blower. Trays laden with a variety of delicious viands, associated with morning coffee hour, were passed among the guests.

The coffee table was charmingly developed in pink and blue. The central decor, a pyramid of pink chrysanthemums and blue salvia was arranged with exceeding artistry. Mrs. B. M. McKoin and Mrs. Joe Hann presided at the handsome silver coffee services gracing either end of the table.

Miss Jane Dawkins Honoree At Several Beautiful Pre-Nuptial Parties Here

Popular Bride-To-Be To Wed Next Saturday

Tea With Mrs. Brown, Mrs. Kellogg, Mrs. Greene And Miss Hill Hostesses Outstanding

The famed hospitality of Monroe lived up to all its traditions last week when charming hostesses entertained for several brides-to-be. Prominent in the galaxy of lovely girls, who were feted with pre-nuptial affairs, was Miss Jane Dawkins, daughter of Judge and Mrs. Benjamin Dawkins, whose marriage next Saturday night will be one of the most brilliant events of the early winter season.

Highlighting the week's activities especially, was the tea in the beautiful home of Mrs. Clyde Brown with Mrs. Richard Kellogg, Mrs. Howard Greene and Miss Carrie Jo Hill, co-hostesses. Crimson roses, placed with exceeding artistry throughout the reception suite, library, dining room, created dramatic splashes of color in complete harmony with the furnishings and the draperies.

Mrs. Thomas Hayes in a black velvet, floor length skirt with white beaded chiffon bodice, and Mrs. Edward Seymour in a long, full skirted, black velvet model, welcomed the guests in the reception hall. The hostesses, their guest of honor and her mother stood in the drawing room. Mrs. Brown wore a black crepe evening model of charming simplicity. Mrs. Kellogg wore aquamarine blue crepe trimmed in gold embroidery. Mrs. Greene wore a silk jersey evening model of ashes of roses. Miss Hill wore a black crepe evening model.

Miss Dawkins selected one of her most distinctive trousseau gowns for this affair. It was a rose de Pompadour crepe model fashioned along simple lines. A beautiful corsage selected by her hostesses to harmonize with the color of her gown, was worn at the neckline.

Mrs. Dawkins wore a watermelon pink chiffon evening model embroidered in silver. Her corsage was fashioned of pink snapdragons and gardenias.

Mrs. Walter Kellogg, Miss Clara Virginia Terzia, Miss Sara Cole Morton and Mrs. Mary Powers Barfield assisted in receiving. Mrs. Kellogg wore a black chiffon and net evening model and Miss Terzia wore a diaphanous gown of pale blue net. Miss Cole wore a white crepe model and Miss Brown wore a pale yellow net, full skirted model.

Conversational groups gathered in the dining room where the handsome gleaming silver tea and coffee services, were presided over by Mrs. J. Powers, Mrs. Hugh Hill, Mrs. J. Graves and Mrs. John Breard.

The tea table covered with handsome imported lace cloth was magnificent in appointment. Superb Calillies were arranged in the form of a heart fluted around with pale pink tulle. Long lengths of tulle drawn the full length of the table were caught with sprays of stephanotis and valley lillies in the most fascinating manner. Pale pink tapers in antique silver candelabra of baronial proportions were placed at either end of the table.

The confections served during the afternoon from large silver trays were unusually delectable.

Between the hours of four and six two hundred or more guests paid their respects to the hostesses and enjoyed a few minutes of conversation with Miss Dawkins.

Lieut. Eckel Addresses Temple Sisterhood Here

Members of the Sisterhood of Temple B'Nai Israel, were privileged to hear an interesting and constructive talk on the subject of training air navigators delivered by Lieutenant George L. Eckel, public relations officer at the A. A. F. Navigation school, when they met for their regular meeting last week.

Mrs. Percy Sandman introduced Lieutenant Eckel.

The discussion of navigation training began with a description of the air navigator's job and the conditions under which he has to work, as well as the performance for which he is called upon.

Having presented the function of the air navigator in an air crew, the speaker related the various phases of cadet training on the Monroe field to the future responsibilities of the navigation cadets.

Navigation training, it was explained, is divided into a pre-flight and a navigation stage. The courses given in the pre-flight and navigation schools here were described in some detail.

The course of navigation officers after graduation from the Monroe navigation school was briefly treated. Other points taken up were the types of planes used at the navigation school, the selection of navigation cadets, and the organization of the Southeast Army Air Forces Training center, of which the Monroe post is a unit.

A quiz period followed the talk.

Ann Dodge Goodbee Sees Dewey's Election

Friends will read with interest the following article appearing in the New Orleans Item concerning a former resident of Monroe:

Ann Dodge Goodbee, Louisiana attorney and a leader of the Republican party in Louisiana, said today she believed the election of Thomas E. Dewey to the governorship of New York would definitely lead to the White House in 1944.

Mrs. Goodbee, wife of Gordon Goodbee, New Orleans attorney, led the Southern Republicans in support of Dewey for presidential nomination in 1940, with 100 delegates from Southern states at the national convention.

"In the recent election in New York, Attorney General Bennett used all the political ingenuity known to James Farley," Mrs. Goodbee said. "He even went so far as to advise people to vote for the anti-poll tax law as a last desperate measure, deserting the last bulwark of the Democratic party."

"Dewey is the greatest vote-getter in the country today. Had he been nominated by the Republican party in 1940, he would have carried the presidential election. I don't see how he can fail in 1944. At least, I will have 250 delegates from Southern states to support him at that time."

Miss Dawkins' Nuptial Plans Are Completed

Wedding Of Attractive Daughter Of Judge And Mrs. Ben Dawkins Slated Nov. 14

Wedding plans are always intriguing and especially so when the bride-to-be is attractive and as popular as Jane Dawkins, daughter of Judge and Mrs. Benjamin Dawkins of this city.

Miss Dawkins is one of the most popular members of the younger set of this city where her parents have been prominent figures, socially and otherwise ever since their marriage. Mrs. Dawkins, like her daughter, was a great favorite socially during her girlhood days. She was formerly Alice McLeod.

The announcement of the engagement and approaching marriage of Miss Dawkins to Captain William Hudson created a furore of interest not only in younger circles but among the married set as well. Hostesses are girls and matrons preceding the vying with each other in arranging lovely prenuptial affairs despite wartime regulations. Wartime simplicity is being observed but none of the lovely details are sacrificed.

The wedding will be a brilliant event of November 14 at Grace Episcopal church with a galaxy of lovely girls and matrons preceeding the bride to the altar. Mrs. James Stader Richardson of Alexandria will be the maid of honor and Mrs. Benjamin Dawkins, Jr., of Shreveport will serve as matron of honor. The bridesmaids are intimate friends of the bride, Miss Lela Germany, Mrs. William Potts Clark of New Orleans and Miss Sara Marquerite Prindle of Tulsa, Okla.

Four lovely little girls have been selected for the flower girls, Caroline Cummings, Helen Louise Theus, Virginia Blanks and Ashley Hamilton. The ring bearer will be the bride's neice, Cynthia Ashley Dawkins of Shreveport.

Elmer Slagle, Jr., and Alymer Montgomery, Jr., wearing black and white vestments, will serve as acolytes.

The soloists will be Mrs. Clyde Paine and Mrs. John Thurman of Ruston.

Captain Hudson will be attended by Lieutenant McVea Oliver, Richard B. Sadler, Jr., of Alexandria, Henry D. Foote, Jr., of Alexandria and J. L. Buchanana of Rayne, La. Mr. William R. Hathorn, Jr., of Birmingham, Ala., will serve as best man.

World Fellowship Week To Be Observed By 'Y'

Three of the great principles underlying the philosophy of the Y. W. C. A. are; Religion or faith, democracy or freedom, and building a world community or fellowship. As our thoughts are on world affairs today, so the Y. W. C. A. is thinking of world fellowship.

The week of November 8—15 has been set aside by the National Y. W. C. A. as the annual World Fellowship week. The theme for this week is "The Enduring God." On Thursday morning, November 12 at 10:30 a. m. at the "Y" the local association will have a worship service in observance of world fellowship. The service will consist of music: songs by the group and a solo by Mrs. J. Norman Coon; prayer by Rev. D. D. Cantrell; a devotional by Rev. R. F. Watson; and a talk by Rev. E. F. Hayward.

The Y. W. C. A. extends a cordial invitation to anyone who would like to participate in this service.

Barkdull Faulk Group Holds Board Meeting

The executive board of the Barkdull Faulk Parent-Teacher association met Thursday afternoon, with nine members present and the president, Mrs. Harry N. Black, presiding. Mrs. Jones, membership chairman, reported 196 members.

Much interest was expressed in the newly organized Mother Singers. Mrs. Charles Gaushell is giving assistance to this group which met for the first time just before the board meeting. She emphasized the fact that trained singers were not needed to make a satisfactory chorus. A group like the Mother Singers sing more for their own pleasure than for audiences, and group singing provides relaxation for strained nerves in troubled times. The group will meet at the home of Mrs. H. W. Montgomery on Forrest Avenue Monday and Thursday. Patriotic songs, and old familiar songs will be used.

It was announced that Mrs. C. K. Crandall will conduct the Study club next Thursday evening at seven o'clock. Study will be based on articles in the October issue of the National Parent-Teacher magazine.

Welcome Branch Club Meets With Mrs. Scott

Silver Tea And Book Review Will Be Sponsored For Benefit Of Cooley Sanitorium

Mrs. R. C. Stokes, Mrs. Kurt Thies and Mrs. T. H. Scott were hostesses to twenty-five members and four guests of the Welcome Branch Book club when they met in the home of Mrs. Scott.

Reports were given by the department chairmen which revealed that the club members were giving generously of their time and money to all civic activities. Mrs. J. T. Eubank, chairman of the library commission of the G. B. Cooley sanatorium, announced that a Silver Tea and book review, sponsored by the club would be given Friday afternoon, November 20, at three o'clock at the Y. W. C. A. Mrs. J. Norman Coon will review, "Big Doc's Girls" by Mary Medearis. The proceeds from the tea will go toward buying books for the library on the grounds of the sanatorium. The public is invited and all members are urged to attend.

At the close of the business session Mrs. L. V. Tarver, president, turned the meeting over to Mrs. T. H. Scott, program chairman, who in turn presented Mrs. Adair Smith, who gave an interesting talk on "New and Odd Occupations Are Chosen by Women of Today." Mrs. Smith chose Oveta Culp Hobby, Martha Sleepers, Helen Bates, and Captain Mary as outstanding women of the time. She said in part, Oveta Culp Hobby, of Houston, Texas, commands Uncle Sam's new powder-puff army. As director of the Women's Army Auxiliary Corps, she'll lead 150,000 petticoat soldiers serving with the armed forces as clerks, cooks, telephone operators, and in other jobs where they will release men for combat. Her first unit of officers is now in training at Fort Des Moines, Iowa, Mrs. Hobby combines brains and beauty with energy of an army jeep. Used to be famous for wearing the wackiest hats in Washington; now as head W. A. A. C., she feels more at home in the official military cap of the Women's Corps.

Most of us do little with our pet pastimes except dribble away dollars. But Martha Sleepers, stage and screen actress of Chappaqua, New York, rides her hobby at full gallop and makes it bring in a nice, fat income. Martha designs costume jewelry that's honestly but definitely fun, and manufacturers turn out more than $300,000 worth of her brain children a year.

Helen Bates of Scarsdale, New York, is the Elsa Maxwell of the nursery. Her business is staging a dozen parties a week for small fry in the New York Metropolitan area without the usual aftermath of black eyes, broken furniture, and prostrate parents. For a fee of $15.00 she plans the games, decorates the house, acts as mistress of ceremonies. A specialist in fun and noise, she got her training as recreation director for a large New York department store.

Captain Mary, is Mrs. Mary Parker Converse, society woman and is 69 years of age. She taught the first navigation class of its kind in the world to be taught by a woman on October 4, 1940. Since then every three months a new class is formed with four to ten pupils. Through Captain Mary's work and study she has earned the right to be called captain and has authority to serve as navigator of "steam and motor vessels of any tonnage on the waters of any ocean." Her pupils have been found to be excellent navigators.

The afternoon program was completed with a book review, "The Strange Woman," by Ben Ames Williams, which was delightfully brought to those present by Mrs. F. H. Peterson. Mrs. Peterson said in part:

"'The Strange Woman' is a fascinating illustration of what happens when a writer's imagination takes the bit in its teeth and runs away with his sober intentions—doubly fascinating, of course, because in this case the accident befell a writer long disciplined in his craft. The book as it stands is much less a historical novel than a psychological study of that strange woman, Jenny Hoger.

"Nevertheless the novel is broadly planned. It begins in 1814, when forces landed from British naval vessels were burning Maine shipping and levying tribute upon the half-defended towns of the Penabscot Valley. It continues through the decades of frantic speculation in wild timber lands, when princes mounted constantly and men were sure that prosperity had come to stay, when tracts of virgin pine which had gone begging at 4 cents an acre were changing hands at $10.00 and $12.00. Bangor came of age as a city during those feverish days, and during the lumbering boom which followed, a tough and boisterous river town where the loggers came to blow their winter's pay in the saloons and brothels along the wharves.

"The 'Strange Woman' is the story of a woman not much different from other women, except that she more frequently let the worst parts of her have their way. She was, as may be supposed, very attractive to men. Everyone who knew her thought she was a fountain of goodness, a pillar of the church, in fact a pattern of what the perfect woman should be; all except seven men, her husbands, father and lovers were the only ones who knew Jenny Hoger, the strange woman, for what she really was. It is a story of Bangor, Maine, from the war of 1812 until after the civil war, it is a story of Yankees, who acted for awhile like gold miners. It is a quiet thoughtful, understanding book which probes the secret heart of a woman, who yielded to the evil in her, it is a helpful and hopeful book of optimism and faith. It is a book, I think, for all tastes.

"The first man in the life of the strange woman, Lieutenant Carruthers, of his Majesty's Navy who discovered in Jenny at the age of 4 years, the woman she would grow up to be, cold, calculating, wanton, and cruel as death itself. Her father, Tim Hoger, was destroyed because of his emotions for her. Her first husband, Isiah Poster, had desired her, had found peace in possessing her and finally died because of her manipulations. Her step son, Ephraum, who died a mental and physical wreck because of her, her second husband, John Evered, who endured her until she died. Her eldest son, Dan, who was the only one of her four sons who appreciated her goodness and had compassion for wickedness. Elder Pittridge, a man of God, even succumbed to her trickery and was destroyed. A strange woman who took pleasure in inflecting pain upon others, even those she loved best, finally died, hating with all her heart her two youngest sons who had moved to Georgia and fought with the Confederate armies during the Civil War."

Refreshments were served to the following members and guests: Mesdames H. V. Collins, J. T. Eubank, V. S. Garnett, E. C. Gibson, M. R. Hausherr, G. D. Holland, A. E. Kilpatrick, E. E. Lawson, Harry Moore, H. Osterman, F. H. Peterson, George Phebus, W. E. Sandel, T. H. Scott, Dean Selig, Adair Smith, Zell Smith, A. J. Speer, R. C. Stokes, L. V. Tarver, Kurt Thies, Paul T. Wright, O. R. Bridges, C. D. Lyons and guests Mesdames L. A. Henderson, A. M. Culpepper, H. A. Whitfield and C. C. Long.

Miss Edwina Slater, Grady Thompson Wed

Impressive Ceremony Performed Before Friends And Family At Church Of Christ

A wedding of affectionate interest to a wide circle of friends took place November 3 at 7:30 o'clock in the evening when Miss Edwina Slater, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Dewey Slater, became the bride of Mr. Grady Levins Thompson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Grady Thompson.

The marriage attended by intimate friends and members of the family took place at the Church of Christ with the pastor, Rev. J. P. Lowery, officiating.

The picturesque little church was candlelit and banked with Shasta daisies and Woodwardia fern. Candles encircled with daisies gleamed in the low window sills and on the altar. Candles in tall, individual candlesticks gleamed in the background where yellow chrysanthemums in floor standards formed a semi-circle for the wedding party.

While the guests were assembling a prenuptial concert was rendered by Mrs. Roy Nichols, pianist and Miss Marjorie Gremillion, soloist.

The bride's attendants, Mrs. Gene Wall, Miss Helen Mitchell, Mrs. Raymond Teske, Miss Marie Thompson and Miss Anna Johnson, flower girl, wore full skirted gowns with fitted jackets and carried arm bouquets of California daisies tied with blue and pink ribbon streamers. The bridesmaids' gowns were of stone blue and the maid of honor wore a lovely shade of fuchsia.

Mr. Grady Thompson served as best man. The groomsmen were: Mr. Clyde Benson, Mr. E. C. Keene, Mr. Edwin Courtney, Mr. John Robert Grayson and Mr. Bill Husted.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore the traditional white satin wedding gown with tight fitting basque, long, leg-o-mutton sleeves and sweetheart neckline and long, full skirt ending in a court train. The finger-tip veil of illusion was caught to the hair with a chaplet of valley lillies and bouvardia. She carried an arm bouquet of gardenia and bouvardia and for something old she wore an antique blue saphire ring.

Immediately following the ceremoney an informal reception was held at the home of the bride's parents on St. John street. Pink Radiance roses, and orchid colored dahlias were warranged in artistic profusion in the reception suite and dining room. The bride's mother received the guests in a semi-evening model of black crepe. Mrs. Thompson, the bridegroom's mother, wore a black crepe model.

The beautifully embossed, four-tiered wedding cake was placed on the bride's table in the dining room. The table was beautiful lace cloth. Tapers in silver candlesticks burned at the four corners.

Following the cutting of the cake the bride changed her wedding raiment for a lovely, light blue wool jersey model with dark brown accessories. Following a short honeymoon Mr. and Mrs. Thompson will be at home in their attractive apartment at 114 Grayling Lane.

The bride is a graduate of the Ouachita Parish high school and Northeast Junior college. Mr. Thompson is a graduate of the Ouachita Parish high school, Northeast Junior college and the Louisiana state university.

Welcome Garden Club Has November Meeting

Members Vote To Hold Flower Show And Silver Tea Here On November Sixth

Mrs. C. N. Jones entertained members of Welcome Garden club in her beautiful suburban home on Bayou DeSiard, for the November meeting. The informal beds of her garden were gay with coxcomb and chrysanthemums, and artistic flower arrangements were placed throughout the reception suite. At this time club members voted to hold their flower show and silver tea on Friday, November 6.

During the business session presided over by Mrs. Jack Bagwell, the club voted to contribute $5.00 to the Community Chest and to purchase a patron's ticket to the Clare Tree Major plays to be presented at the Crosley school.

As there will be a Christmas tree at the U. S. O. center, club members voted to buy individual gifts for the men and take them to the December meeting. Such gifts as shaving cream, razor blades, towels, and soap were suggested. Mrs. John Harper was appointed to be responsible for keeping fresh flowers at the center.

"Don't tell us you have a back yard" was discussed in an interesting manner by Mrs. H. V. Collins. She reminded members that unsightly back yards went out with long-sleeved bathing suits. Eye-sores can be hidden with a vine-draped trellis or the branches of a well-placed tree. Decide on the plan of your yard and make it as attractive and livable as possible. The bare garage walls can be used for vines, or bordered with flower beds or blooming shrubs. Mrs. Collins concluded her talk with the following poem, "Into My Garden:"

Whenever the wind is right;
They blow on wings of the breeze by day
And they ride on the gales by night.

Your seeds blow into my garden, friend,
And nestle among my flowers;
In the soft, sweet soil of my garden plot
They wait for the sun and the showers.

Whatever you grow in your garden, friend,
Of beauty or ugly weed—
The fall will come and the wind will blow
And over will come your seed."

Mrs. J. C. Steele gave an interesting paper on "Trees." She said in part: "Trees are an inexpensive but beautiful way to decorate the garden. The apple tree is most effective for it possesses excellent fruit and decorative blossoms. The apple tree belongs to the great rose family, and was brought to the country about 1629 by one of the governors of the Massachusetts Bay Colony. As the colonists moved westward they planted apple orchards until the entire United States was settled, and it became the greatest apple country in the world, producing annually about 200,000,000 bushels. The peach tree can add much beauty to our gardens with its delicate, fragrant, pink blossoms as well as its prized fruit. Among the many other trees that will add interest to our gardens are the American and Japanese persimmons."

Members present were: Mesdames E. M. Baber, Jack Bagwell, F. E. Black, O. R. Brauer, A. R. Butler, H. V. Collins, H. B. Cruthirds, V. S. Garnett, John Harper, Carey Holmes, G. O'Quinn, C. N. Jones, D. L. Nicol, Vance Rhodes, A. J. Speer, Wm. A. Smith, J. C. Steele, Ralph Thompson.

Precious stones are composed of very simple elements. An opal, for instance, is flint and water, while the blue of the sapphire is the chemical action of one grain of iron on 100 grains of aluminum.

The Halloween theme was carried out in the decorations with yellow dahlias, yellow candles, and crepe paper black cas and witches contributing to the effect. The clues led to the dining room where delicious sandwiches, ice cream, cake and confections were served.

Guests from St. Joseph, Newellton, and Waterproof were present at the benefit entertainment given by the Tensas Garden club at the community house. A victory garden and harvest show was held in the afternoon and a Halloween party that night. The exhibits, a varied and beautiful display of autumn flowers, fresh vegetables, home canned vegetables and fruit, were shown in the auditorium.

Features of the Halloween party were the crowning of the king and queen by Jack Crigler, a floor show by the court and other pupils of the high school, a costume parade, fortune telling, a children's grab bag and a cake walk. CHAPTER XXVI

When Blythe entered the clothes closet off Nancy Hale's living room, she thought herself entirely alone. She had carefully made her plans for coming out later with the two gamblers at gun point. But as she pulled the closet door shut on herself, a man spoke in the darkness, then grasped her arm.

"Okay, sister who are you?" he said.

Blythe screamed in terror.

She didn't have to ask who the man was. She already knew! Indeed, there were two of them in the closet with her, she realized at once. It meant only that she had come up too late to carry out her plan. The gamblers had gotten there ahead of her!

Nevertheless she didn't wilt.

All the days of pent-up sorrow and anger seemed now to pour out. Blythe, an athletic coach's daughter, was plenty athletic herself, though small of stature.

Wham! . . . "Unh!"

She drove one elbow backward smack into a man's midriff! He grunted, and grunted again.

Overcoated arms reached around her then from the other side.

"Stop it!" she shrieked.

She jerked up her knees. That threw all her weight downward.

"Lord, what a hellcat!" The man gasped.

Her quick maneuver had dropped her right out of his grasp. In the darkness he was fumbling for her again, and, too, the other man was back in the fight.

"Hold her, Ed, hold her!"

She heard that, and heard the answer. "I can't get a hold!"

"Don't do her no harm!"

"I'm the one getting harmed—unh . . . UNH!"

Blythe was making that statement of his true! From the floor she kicked out wildly, and a dainty heel found a masculine shin.

Nancy's dresses had begun to fall on them now. Altogether the clothes, the two men, and the scrapping girl made a fantastic kind of hurricane there in the dark closet. Blythe wouldn't use the pistol she held. She couldn't, because it was Pop's starter's gun loaded only with blanks! It might be of some value if the men could see it. They wouldn't know but what it was real.

But at the moment Blythe felt certain she was fighting for her very life. Those gamblers had already threatened Pop and they would know that exposure and capture here would cost them prison sentences. They wouldn't hesitate to kill her if they could.

"Stop . . . fighting . . . sister!" one man said, straining. "Give us a chance to . . ."

Blythe struck at the sound with her fist. She felt it hit his cheek.

"Ed, for the luvva Mike, what have we got cornered here?"

She heard that over the flailing.

"Where is she? . . . Open that door!"

Voices were getting louder.

"Lay off, sister, before you get hurt! Okay, Ed, let's rush it! . . . GO!"

They made a concerted push, carrying Blythe, clothes, shoes, some of baby Scooter's toys, and themselves all out onto the living room floor in a grand pile-up. It could have been compared to a scrimmage in football.

Blythe was entangled and scared witless now.

"E-e-e-e-e!" she yelped involuntarily. And just as involuntarily she called out, "Help! . . . Duane . . . Oh, Duane! . . . Duaoooooomm!"

The outcry was muffled in a dress. She scrambled wildly, clutching at their legs, hoping to trip them, striving to regain her own feet.

"Look out, Ed! She's got a gun!"

She did still grip the pistol. On impulse she fired it now.

The fellow named Ed dived onto her right hand, forced the harmless gun away from her. She expected him to strike her but he didn't. She had a flash of feeling that these two gamblers weren't really fighting as aggressively as they might. Were they afraid? Cowed? Or—

She kicked at them with renewed fury. Regaining her feet, she knocked over a chair, then kicked it at one of the men to trip him.

He was a large fellow, and made quite a thump and a grunting when he fell. Next moment Blythe knew she would be conquered. They leaped up and drove at her with full force. But she would try once more. As both dashed toward her she threw her body headlong across their knees—in exactly the maneuver Pop taught his football tacklers.

The fierceness of that clash seemed to stun her a little, and when she found her senses again she was sitting on the floor quite unmolested. But she was having a crazy dream.

She thought she saw Duane Hogan lift one man bodily and throw him onto the other, thus driving both gamblers against the kitchen wall. Then she thought she saw Duane standing over them, alert, waiting, fists tight. As they shook their heads, holding bruises and trying to talk coherently, Duane spoke to her.

"Bly! . . . Bly!" he said. "Are you hurt?"

It wasn't a hallucination, it was still real!

"No! . . . They—those men . . . gamblers . . . they're gamblers . . . they were . . ."

"You got it all wrong sister!" one man managed to gasp. "Boy, what a punch you two kids carry! Lay off, Hogan—take it easy. . . . I know you . . . but you don't know us. . . . Sister, we . . ."

"Duane! Look out! They're desperate! I'm surprised they haven't used guns!"

"Do I have to bash in your brains?" Duane asked. He had lifted one of the chairs from Nancy's ready-set dinner table.

Both men on the floor managed to grin. "Save it for the game, son. Listen—your lady friend got us wrong!"

"Duane, don't you believe them! They're crooks! Dangerous!"

Duane looked confused, but he was waiting for more explanations. One of the men half groaned and made a move to stand up.

"I can kill you in one blow," Duane mentioned. "And I will!"

"Git down, Ed!" the other man ordered. "The boy ain't lying. But listen, son. I tell you we ain't what you think."

Blythe pointed her finger at them, gesturing. "They — they — they were hiding in Nancy's closet! They were! They got here too soon! I found them, and—"

One of the men chuckled a little wryly. "Didn't you, though! And you went into action. Unh! I'm glad you two bruisers are on our side in tomorrow's game! But you listen to me now, both of you. We can prove what I say. Here's our badges, and you can phone in and verify. We ain't gamblers. We're detectives, from the city police bureau!"

Veronica Lake And Brian Donlevy At Paramount Today

Here's a wife's eye view of "Orchestra Wives," the musical that tells why the excitement really begins for "brass" widows after the band stops playing. "Orchestra Wives" plays Thursday and Friday at the Capitol theater, starring George Montgomery, Ann Rutherford, and Glenn Miller and his band.

Betty Grable swings out a few steps as Jane Wyman and the dance instructor look on in "Footlight Serenade," playing today and Monday at the Capitol theater, with John Payne and Victor Mature as two rivals of Betty's.

'The Glass Key' Plays For 2 Days

Alan Ladd And Bonita Granville Also Included In Cast Of Hit

TO readers of mystery stories, and to devotees of mystery movies the name of Dashiell Hammett is no mystery. From his prolific pen have come some of filmdom's most exciting who-done-its—"The Thin Man" series and "The Maltese Falcon" at the time of their release having been responsible for an increase in pulse and blood pressure of movie-goers.

High up among Hammett's best-sellers is "The Glass Key," a mystery charged with suspense and action, and enhanced by an exciting three-cornered romance. Paramount brings it to the screen of the Paramount theater today with a strong, star-studded cast headed by Brian Donlevy, Veronica Lake and Alan Ladd and supported by Bonita Granville, Richard Denning and Joseph Calleia.

From all reports "The Glass Key" rates with the best of the Hammett thrillers. Bringing together again, as it does, Veronica Lake and Alan Ladd, co-stars of "This Gun For Hire" plus the extremely popular Brian Donlevy, it is easy to believe that Hammett followers have another treat in store for them.

The story of "The Glass Key" concerns itself with Donlevy's efforts to win the love of Veronica Lake, daughter of a candidate for mayor on the reform ticket of a politically crooked city. Donlevy is the city's political boss, a loud, uncouth character said to be reminiscent of "The Great McGinty." He runs into trouble when, in supporting Veronica's father, he closes several gambling joints operated by powerful Joseph Calleia.

Alan Ladd, the lad who became an overnight sensation with his killer-characterization in "This Gun For Hire," plays Donlevy's right-hand-man, the brains of the pair—a hard-hitting man whose deep loyalty almost costs him his life. Veronica falls in love with him, although, to further her father's chances of election, she becomes engaged to the influential Donlevy.

Ladd discovers that Donlevy's sister, Bonita Granville, is running around with Veronica's ne'er-do-well brother, Richard Denning. Donlevy tries to break up the romance. When Denning is found murdered, suspicion is pinned on him.

Word has it that the unraveling of the plot at the end of the film represents a typical Dashiell Hammett surprise, so "The Glass Key" sounds like the kind of thriller movie-goers should welcome.

Music goes to your head and romance goes to your heart in "Springtime in the Rockies" filmed in technicolor, starring Betty Grable and John Payne with Carmen Miranda, Cesar Romero and Harry James and his Music Makers which plays Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday at the Paramount theater.

'Footlight Serenade' At Capitol

Betty Grable, John Payne, Victor Mature In Entertaining Film

Betty Grable, John Payne and Victor Mature are starred in 20th Century-Fox's new musical, "Footlight Serenade," coming to the Capitol Theater today, which is hailed as the "perfect tonic for the times." Featuring love, laughs and lyrics, it is indeed a merry musical treat.

With a story that spells entertainment all the way, "Footlight Serenade" tells of a fighter who turns actor. Victor Mature realistically portrays the boxer, as John Payne can testify—while both boys are "nuts" about curvaceous Betty Grable, as who isn't!

Rated by previewers as a worthy successor to "My Gal Sal," the picture is studded with topflight talent, such as Jane Wyman, James Gleason, Phil Silvers and Cobina Wright, Jr. Produced with all the embellishments that mark a top-flight musical, "Footlight Serenade" has been hailed as one of the best.

Leo Robin and Ralph Rainger have provided the sparkling music. Among the hits you will be hearing with increasing frequency in the coming weeks are "I Heard the Birdies Sing," "I'm Still Crazy for You," "Are You Kidding Me?" and "I'll Be Marching to a Love Song."

Dazzling new dances have been created by Hermes Pan, who teams with Miss Grable in some of the routines. Gregory Ratoff directed the picture from a script by Robert Ellis, Helen Logan and Lynn Starling, based on a story by Fidel LaBarba and Kenneth Earl. The film was produced by William LeBaron.

It's dangerous business when Veronica Lake becomes engaged to Brian Donlevy and falls in love with his best friend, Alan Ladd, in the exciting murder-mystery, "The Glass Key," which is playing today and tomorrow at the Paramount Theater, with Bonita Granville, Richard Denning, Joseph Calleia and William Bendix. This thriller is packed with the kind of suspense and dramatic action which characterized previous Dashiell Hammett successes, "The Thin Man" and "The Maltese Falcon."

Pat O'Brien is shown as the commander of a naval gun crew aboard a merchant freighter in this scene from "The Navy Comes Through," which opens Friday at the Paramount theater for two days, with George Murphy, Jane Wyatt, Jackie Cooper, Carl Esmond, and Max Baer in the supporting roles.

C. OF C. HAS WAGE RULES AVAILABLE

Copies of Order 4001 of the Office of Economic Stability, restricting wage or salary increases or decreases, are available at the Chamber of Commerce office, George D. Holland, Chamber secretary, said Saturday.

The restrictions, effective October 3, 1942, do not apply to employers in the case where eight or fewer employees are employed by an individual firm, Mr. Holland stated. Section 4001.11 exempts such employers. Further, there are six categories of employers of more than eight employees who are exempted from the order.

Employers of more than eight, except those specifically exempted in the order, must secure the approval of the board or commissioner of economic stability before increasing or decreasing the salaries or wages of the employees, above or below $5,000.

Orsen Welles, the man who gave you "the best picture of 1941," brings "The Magnificent Ambersons" from Booth Tarkington's great novel, starring Joseph Cotton, Dolores Costello, Anne Baxter, and Tim Holt, which appears Wednesday only at the Capitol theater.

M'KENZIE TO BE SPEAKER NOV. 11

Armistice Day will be observed at the American Legion's memorial home, Forsythe park, Wednesday at 10:30 a. m. The speaker of the day will be Charles E. McKenzie, congressman-elect and former post and state Legion commander.

All veterans of the country's past wars and their auxiliaries are invited to attend.

There will be no parade or other ceremonial this year because of wartime conditions but the general public is invited to attend the exercises at the Legion home instead.

CAMERA CLUB IS TO BE FORMED

USO Group Will Be Organized Here On Monday Night

The organizational meeting of a camera club will take place at the USO club, 115 Catalpa Street, Monday evening at 7:45 o'clock, as a result of the growing interests and many requests from service men who participate in these activities.

Every soldier, whether he has a camera or not, is invited to join the Camera club. In fact, even those who have never before snapped a camera shutter are welcome. Every amateur can now have the opportunity to learn some of the tricks and secrets in using the camera, in developing prints, and in making enlargements. The club will sponsor contests and award prizes for the best photographs. Dark room facilities will soon be made available at the USO club.

Fortunately, among the service men stationed at the Monroe airport are Staff Sergeant John McDougall, Corporal John Popp, Privates Wilfon Marlowe, Francis Kukeck and Jack Gottlaub. These men were newspaper photographers in civilian life. In their photograph albums they have pictures of outstanding news events which they covered in years gone by.

They have had experience in aerial photography, lithography, and portraits. These men have offered their experience and knowledge gained from years of professional work to the members of the club.

Service men, who would like to keep their cameras at the USO will find an adequate free checking service provided there.

BLOOD PLASMA ON D. A. R. PROGRAM

WASHINGTON, Nov. 7.—(Special)—Further expansion of one of its major war projects, the blood plasma program, is announced by Mrs. William H. Pouch, following action by the executive committee.

The patriotic society will provide funds for establishment of two permanent blood donor centers for the American Red Cross. It also will purchase at least 10 mobile blood plasma units, for collection of blood donations by the Red Cross, and as the American Red Cross expands its centers, many more mobile units will be taken.

Each mobile unit costs upwards of $2,350 and each blood center $1,500 up to $2,000, Mrs. Pouch said, adding: "There is vital need for expansion of the blood plasma program in order to keep pace with the great war effort. This project may be the means of saving countless lives."

It is expected that well over $100,000 will be raised by the D. A. R. at once for the blood plasma program. All contributions come as voluntary gifts of D. A. R. members.

TAXES ON MOVABLE PROPERTY ARE DUE

State and parish taxes on movable property are due and delinquent at this time, Sheriff Milton Coverdale said Saturday in his announcement that his department has received the 1942 tax rolls and had started collection of taxes on movable property and real estate.

Under the law it is necessary for the tax collector's division to send delinquent tax notices to all of those who have not paid their taxes on movable property. This will be done on November 16, after which date there will be a ten cent cost for notice. This ten cent cost can be saved by payment of taxes on movable property before November 16.

Taxes on real estate will become delinquent January 1, and will accumulate interest from that date at the rate of ten per cent per annum until paid. Payment of taxes on real estate before January 1 will not involve the ten per cent interest, Sheriff Coverdale said.

ACCIDENT RATIOS

Night accidents at grade crossings in the United States caused 2,084 injuries and 444 deaths in 1939. In 69 per cent of these accidents passenger cars were involved; trucks in 16 per cent; pedestrians in 13 per cent; all other types of vehicles only 2 per cent.

U.S. MARINES

WILL CELEBRATE THEIR 167th

Birthday

TUESDAY, NOVEMBER 10th

They're Fighting Fools—
Give 'em the Best You've Got!

Marines Bear Inspection—
Their Deeds Mean Your Safety!

Displaying the same fighting spirit and heroism that marked the glorious march of their predecessors down the years of devoted service to the nation, the United States Marines observe their 167th Anniversary November 10, while blazing a trail toward victory in World War II.

Today's rough and ready Leathernecks not only are living up to traditions of the corps' brilliant past but are writing a new chapter in American history, beginning with their successful launching of America's first land offensive of this global war.

At the Solomon Islands, these specialists in quick-death kept the faith of those liberty-loving sons of the Revolution. In so doing, they more than matched the first mission of the Continental Marines.

Eight months after the Declaration of Independence, the newly-formed Continental Marines, under the leadership of Captain Samuel Nicholas, performed their first mission in March of 1777, a landing operation from navy ships at the British-held Bahama Islands. It was perhaps the most successful naval operation of the Revolutionary War, carried out with practically no resistance and with no bloodshed.

Eight months after Pearl Harbor in this "survival of the fittest" war, the Marine Corps last August hurled its largest landing force in history against the Japanese, forcing them to relinquish control of the vital Solomon Islands. It marked a turning point for America and the United Nations in the Pacific area. But it was accomplished only after much bloodshed because the Japs were strongly entrenched.

The Marines proved at Solomon and Makin Islands—and are still proving—that man for man they are more than a match for the Japs.

Marines in the Solomon offensive, no doubt, were inspired by the valorous Wake Island "sea-soldiers" whose gallant stand under the leadership of Major James P. S. Devereux, now a lieutenant-colonel, will never be lost from the memory of red-blooded Americans.

Hopelessly outnumbered, but inflicting heavy damage on the Japs until the very end, the small force of Wake Islanders answered when messaged if they needed anything:

"Sure, send us more Japs!"

So long as that fighting spirit flourishes—and you can count on it to the last Leatherneck—Marines will be found equal to every emergency in the future as they have in the past.

A glance back into history shows clearly why Marines fight with the fury of all hell broke loose, tenaciously stick to their tasks and display versatility, individual courage and heroism. It's a matter of tradition.

Marine Corps traditions are deeply entrenched in the soil of America. Corps history is the history of America.

A man desiring to enlist in the Marine Corps must have the following qualifications:

- He has to be in good physical condition.
- He must be between the ages of 17 and 36 years.
- He must not have been convicted of a crime of any sort.
- He must be of good habit and character.
- He must have the equivalent of a fifth grade education.
